Blaze destroys Sikeston stores

Fire swept through a block of stores in downtown Sikeston Friday night, destroying seven stores before cold and weary public safety officers could bring the flames under control.

The fire was fought with temperatures dipping down to five degrees. A steady north wind produced a wind chill factor well below zero.

The bitter-cold temperatures helped send two public safety officers from the fire division and one from the patrol division to the emergency room of Missouri Delta Community Hospital. One officer, Captain Sam Chadd, sprained a knee in a fall on icy North Kingshighway and fireman George Williams suffered frostbite to his right hand. Patrolman Ed Grace, injured a knee in a fall on Front Street.

Stores destroyed were Thrower's Shoe & Repair, Voelker's Credit Jewelers, Vogue Dress Shop, Hamra's Den for Men, James Drug Store, all on Front Street; Hart's Fabric Store on North Kingshighway; and Morgan Music Co. on American Legion Drive.

James Drug Store was taken over Monday by Archie and Virginia Parker from its former owner Lula Gregg.

The Parkers were planning to remodel the store and expand the inventory.

Parker says he does not know what he will do now.

The fire was discovered about 6:40 p.m. when heat tripped a burglar alarm in Voelker's Credit Jewelery.

The first squad car arrived moments later and the officer reported smoke coming from the corners of the building.

The fire apparently started in a faulty heating unit in a small sleeping room at the rear of Hamra's, according to fire division commander Vernon Morris.

Neither Morris nor Public Safety Director Kenneth Francis knew the identity of the person reportedly occupying the room. Francis said that the man was not in the building at the time of the fire.

Fire departments from Miner, Morehouse, and Charleston sent pumpers and East Prairie and Benton sent firemen to assist the Sikeston public safety officers. Officers from the Scott County Sheriff's Department and the Highway patrol also assisted.

The fire was brought under control about 10:30 p.m., but the fire in Harts was still burning Saturday morning.

Morris said that fire would continue to smolder there for the next two or three days.

"Those bolts of fabric smolder like bales of cotton," Morris said.

The building housing Harts store was owned by Stanley Hart.

The building fronting on Front Street was owned by Elliott-Newton Inc. Ted Elliott, a partner in the firm, said he did not have an estimate of the loss.

The Public Safety Department estimated the building as being worth $150,000. No estimate was given for the inventory in the stores.

Francis said he just finished watching a television news program about a major fire in Minnesota when the alarm came in.

"It always seems we get these kind of fires in this kind of weather," Francis said.

The bitter cold froze the water from fire hoses on the streets and parts of the buildings away from the heat of the fire.

It also froze on the firemen, who found themselves caked with ice from head to toe.

Firemen and spectators alike crowded into stores along Front Street and Kingshighway looking for a place to get warm.

A number of restaurants and private citizens brought coffee and donuts for public safety officers. Warm ski hats and gloves complete with price tags suddenly appeared for the cold officers.

For related photographs see page 2A. . . . .

Public Safety officers said this morning they did not know if the clothing was purchased by someone or donated by the stores.

City Manager Charles Church and several officers expressed their appreciation for the clothing, food and shelter. They said without the public help, there probably would have been more cases of frostbite.

A heavy-duty front end loader was brought in Saturday afternoon to knock down the walls of the building which were in danger of collapsing.

The fire division answered two fire calls Saturday morning.

At 12:21 a.m. they were called to the Jim Moore Jr., residence at 212 Kramer Drive when a fire was discovered in the hearth of a fireplace. Damage was listed as minor.

At 8:43 a.m. firemen were called to the Christopher Warren home at 203 William St., when lint under a furnace caught fire and set a box of clothing in a closet on fire. Damage was listed as minor.

Drugs, money taken from dental offices

Two dental offices were burglarized Thursday night or Friday morning, with drugs, money, old coins and stereo speakers reported stolen.

The burglary of the office of Larry Lester, located at 404 Tanner St., was discovered by Ginger Ann Thernell, Route Three, when she arrived for work Friday morning. Officers of the Department of Public Safety could find no sign of forcible entry to the office.

The thieves took $3 worth of change, two half dollars valued at a total of $160 and a quantity of drugs from the office.

The second dental office burglary occured at the office of Dr. G.W. Weathers, 405 Tanner St. Dr. Weathers discovered the break-in Friday morning.

Taken were $30 worth of codine tablets and two stereo speakers worth a total value of $200.

Officers reported the burglars entered the building through a window in the garage at the southwest of the office. They crawled up to the attic entrance and walked along the ceiling, then broke a hole in the ceiling and entered the office below.

Pedro Simmons honored

CHARLESTON — Mississippi Countians paid tribute Friday night to one of it's leading citizens as a crowd of more than 500 braved the freezing temperatures to attend a dinner honoring former Sheriff W.J. "Pedro" Simmons.

Participating in the "Pedro Roast" held in the high school gymnasium, were former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, State Senator John Dennis, Circuit Judge Marshall Craig, State Rep. Fred DeField, Col. John Doherty, chief of detectives from St. Louis, Mrs. Helen Currin, H.R. Hequembourg and Weber Gilmore, who served as roastmaster.

Claiming to have nothing good to say about the "roastee", the audience was entertained with many humorous incidents--many fabrications--related by the "roasters" pertaining to Simmons' 34 years in public office in Mississippi County. On a more solemn note, Mrs. Currin, who worked with Simmons to quiet racial tension in Charleston, expressed her "debt of thanks to Pedro", remarking that "during some sleepless nights in the '60's, Charleston would have become another Cairo if not for W.J. Simmons."

A recliner chair and engraved plaques were among the gifts bestowed on the honoree, purchased from proceeds of the dinner. Personal gifts were also presented, along with resolutions from the State Senate and the House of Representatives and a "master key to all the county jails in Missouri."

Simmons, 64, was first elected sheriff in 1960 and held that position 16 years. He did not seek re-election in 1976 and retired Dec. 31. From 1938 to 1954 he served as County Clerk and was elected Presiding Judge of the County Court in 1958.

Cited as the "Don Rickles of Charleston" for the many times he has served as master of ceremonies at civic events, he has also been honored as the Lion's Club Man of the Year and has been actively involved in many civic organizations and committees.

Not to be out done, Simmons had a rebuttal for each of his "roasters" and expressed his deep appreciation for "his night". He had a word of thanks for all who helped him in his career, including his late father, whom he said taught him to "tell the truth, pay his debts and vote Democratic."

Simmons introduced his family present at the event, including his wife, Mary Jean, his daughters and their families, Suellen Fenton, Jenneth Kellet and Cindy Simmons, his son, Woody, and sister, Mrs. Nadine Thomason of Brawley, Calif.

Serving as general chairman for the event was Sheriff Norris Grissom. The invocation was offered by the Rev. Vergil Eaton, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, and dinner music was played by Mrs. Velma Brown. Dr. Carter P. Fenton, son-in-law of Simmons sang "America The Beautiful" and "I Did It My Way."

Near the close of the evening the following poem, written and read by Roastmaster Gilmore, was presented.

"Roasting" Pedro

Former Mississippi County Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons reclines in his new chair, a gift presented him Friday night at a roast in his honor. With him is his wife, Mary Jean, whom he credits with being instrumental in his success in public office during the past 34 years.

Preliminary hearing set in Dexter sodomy case

By FRANK WATSON

BLOOMFIELD–Preliminary hearings for George Riddle, 47, of Dexter on three charges of sodomy will be held Feb. 10 in Stoddard County Magistrate Court before Judge Jimmie Trammell.

In complaints filed by Prosecuting Attorney Phil Ayers, it is alledged that Riddle engaged in homosexual activities with three juvenile boys on different occasions i November and December of 1976.

Riddle is one of three men charged with sodomy after an investigation of nearly two months by local law enforcements officials. Also charged were Cecil Fortner, 45, and Michael Tomes, 21, of Dexter.

All three are free after posting $5,000 bond each. Officials say the homosexual activity is more widespread than the cases they have on file.

The investigation leading up to these arrests started when a teacher at Dexter Middle School heard some of the the boys talking in his special education class, and looked into the problem.

After talking with the students, the teacher talked with Melvin "Churn" Williams, Stoddard County Juvenile Officer, who in turn discussed the problem with Stoddard County Sheriff Ralph Mouser.

Mouser contacted Ayers, who filed the charges.

Ayers says he doesn't know how widespread the problem is, but maybe as many as 25 or 30 more children have been involved. That number is not verified, he said.

However, he said the homosexual activity extends beyond the class of slow learners to the other students on the junior high school level.

There may be a few involved on the high school level, he said.

"A lot of children just won't talk about it," Ayers said.

Williams agreed that it was hard to get some of the children to talk.

"When we first found out about it, a lot of the children didn't want to admit it," Williams said, "but they realized it was not normal, and most responded pretty well."

The older the child, the less inclined he is to talk about it, Williams said.

"A number of the older boys, maybe a little smarter, have more knowledge," he said. "It is easier to get somebody to admit to pot smoking beer drinking, or shoplifing than to admit homosexual acts."

Williams referred to a thick file open on his desk. He has a list of 32 names involved in the case, names of boys who often spend time around the lumberyard owned by Riddle, names mentioned by others boys known to be connected with the case.

He says it is hard to determine how much these boys are invlolved in the activity.

He has statements from six persons saying that homoxexual acts took place.

Williams said other adults' names pop up occassionally in connection with the case, but he doesnt't believe any "ring" is involved.

"They're probably all cronies or buddies, since they know each other," he said.

Earlier reports referred to a homosexual ring, implying an organization, but Ayers also discounts that talk.

"Apparently, it's not an organized ring," he said, "but a series of related incidents."

Asked about the possibility of violent coercion being used, Ayers answered, "We've had conflicting reports. It could be that violence was used."

Williams said he doesn't think violence was used to a great extent: "Maybe somebody was pushed around , or thumped on the head. Most are promises to entice.

"Most of the boys tell us they give them a little money, a soda, let them sniff glue, maybe a little money to play pool on or a ride on a motorcycle."

Drugs may also play a part, as an enticement in return for "favors."

"Possibly a little marijuana," Williams said, "but I don't suspect hard drugs."

None of these kids were forced to go to Riddle's place of business, Williams said. Most went on their own after they heard about other kids getting money or other favors.

Some of the older, smarter, children will admit spending time at the lumberyard, but will deny any homosexual activity while there.

Some of the children are enrolled in a special class in the Dexter School District, but apparently none of the activity took place on school grounds.

Williams has statements from boys in the seventh and eighth grades, and one from a boy in the fifth grade.

Parents of all the all the children involved know what happened and are aware of the problem.

Based on discussion with the boys, Williams said, this round of activity started during the summer of 1976 and the investigation started in December of 1976.

Following alleged previous homosexual activities, Riddle was was committed to the state hospital at Farmington in 1954 for an examination, where it was found, in the opinion of the doctors at the hospital that he was a criminal sexual psychopath within the meaning of the law.

He was later committed to the hospital for eight months, after which the doctors concluded, "In our opinion he is safe to be returned to society."

The boys connected with this case are still young, Williams said, and it is hard to judge if their experience with homosexuality has hurt them emotionally.

The results will probably not show up until later in life, he said. "These children will have a hard enough time in life without somebody warping them. I feel the children's parents and citizens of Dexter ought to put enough pressure on the public to do someting about it.

The results will probably not show up until later in life, he said. "These children will have a hard enough time in life without somebody warping them. I feel the children's parents and citizens of Dexter ought to put enough pressure on the public to do someting about it.

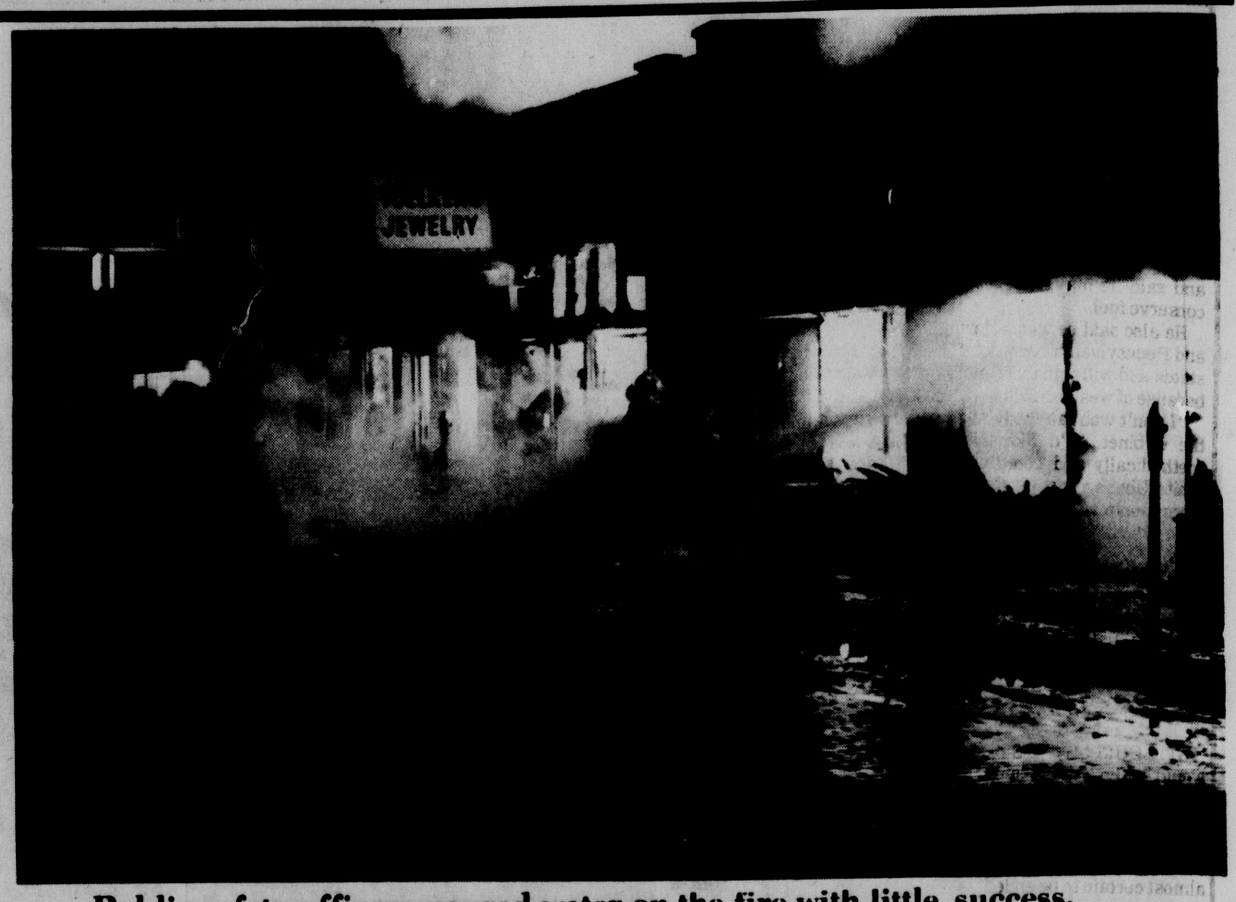
Some merchandise was saved from Voelker's store.



Public safety officers poured water on the fire with little success.

They came in from the cold covered with ice.

Saturday morning only a shell was left standing.

Under the ice. . . a parking meter

The shoes were ice covered but still in place at Thrower's.

Todays News In Brief

Carter calls session on energy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter hurriedly called his Cabinet into an hour-long session over the energy shortage Saturday and said he may ask industries to go on a fourday work week to conserve fuel.

He also said he was ordering federal disaster relief for New York and Pennsylvania because of the extreme cold, snow and ice in those states and will sign emergency aid legislation for Florida on Monday because of weather-inflicted crop losses there.

"I don't want anybody to be unduly alarmed," the President told the Cabinet. "I'd like the whole process to be done carefully, methodically and coordinated with Jack Watson." Watson is the White House assistant Carter placed in charge of the White House team monitoring the energy situation.

He added: "I'll be maintaining personal contact with the governors."

The President also urged the governors of 17 states to give him assessments of their current energy problems.

He pointed out that 11 states are in "some degree of crisis" and six states are having problems because of blizzard conditions.

Senator may drop dam support

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., has said he would withdraw his support for the Meramec Dam project, if no advisory referendum is held on the issue.

Friday Eagleton told St. Louis labor leaders that the project is in "serious jeopardy" in Congress. Eagleton said without a referendum showing public support for the dam, Congressional funding is almost certain to be ended.

PB man freezes to death

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) — Earl Van Buren Brown, 63, was found frozen to death Saturday at the base of the steps to his front porch, and investigators said he apparently fell and could not get up.

A passerby discovered the body about 12:20 p.m. Coroner Larry Cottrell said Brown apparently slipped on the steps. He ruled it was an accidental death due to exposure.

There was no ice or snow on the steps, but the overnight low in Poplar Bluff was about 10 degrees below zero. Investigators said they could not determine when it was that Brown fell.

Brown lived alone at the house in the south part of Poplar Bluff. His mother is a resident of a nursing home.

$50 rebate spurs economy

Supporters of the Carter administration's plan for a $50 income tax rebate cite the 1975 rebate pushed by the Ford administration as evidence that such steps spur the nation's economy. A congressional study says there are 101 million Americans who are either unprotected or have inadequate health coverage. MADRID — Police round up scores of leftists in the hunt for the killers of three Spanish policemen. A far-left terrorist organization threatens to step up a campaign of violence against the government. LONDON — A man claiming to represent the Irish Republican Army says the IRA was responsible for the 12 bomb blasts that rocked central London in the pre-dawn hours. WASHINGTON — Newspapers and broadcasters could be affected by legislation awaiting action in Congress.

Bad coffee beans in, prices up

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the price of coffee was doubling last year, more than 70 million pounds of green coffee beans entering the United States were found to contain insects, mold, rodent droppings and other contaminants.

Thousands of pounds already in this country also were seized by the Food and Drug Administration after inspectors found them being stored and shipped under unsanitary conditions. One batch contained human feces.

Most of the contaminated coffee, whether it was detained at ports like New York, New Orleans and San Francisco, or seized after it had made its way into interstate commerce, was ultimately released for consumption after it had been cleaned under FDA supervision.

Figures provided by the National Coffee Association show, for example, that it costs about $6 to recondition a 132-pound bag of coffee containing insects, a cost which ultimately is passed on to the consumer. Industry executives say this added cost "is not a significant factor in the price of coffee to the American consumer."

Frigid weather brings standstill

Frigid weather and a windwhipped blizzard brought much of the East and Midwest almost to a standstill Saturday, closing roads, factories, businesses and places of entertainment.

President Carter said Saturday he may urge that industries go on a four-day work week because of the shortage of natural gas brought on by heavy demand during the cold spell which gripped much of the nation.

The freezing or subzero weather that hit much of the eastern half of the country during the early morning hours followed a blizzard that dumped as much as 14 inches of snow on the Northeast.

At least 36 weather-related deaths have been recorded in eight states during the recent brutal weather.

Stockmarket yields to weather

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market yielded again to cold-weather energy worries this past week, keeping its early-1977 losing streak intact.

Big-name growth stocks were among the primary casualties.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 4.90 to 957.53, bringing its four-week decline since the start of the year to 47.12 points.

No. 1 fan was Gilmore

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Her No. 1 fan, murderer Gary Gilmore, is dead, but 11-yearold "Amber Jim" Hunt continues to excite the local Golden Gloves boxing world. The Salt Lake City girl, who received hundreds of dollars worth of gifts from Gilmore before his Jan. 17 execution, has won all eight of her fights against boys by technical knockouts. Amber Edwina Hunt — she prefers "Amber Jim" — has had six exhibition victories in the 65-pound class, all first-round TKOs.

Gradual inflation reduction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal says he is not counting on a quick reduction in inflation. "We'll be very conscious of the danger of inflation, just as we're conscious of the need to bring unemployment down," Blumenthal said in an interview Thursday. But Blumenthal, who said the administration will appeal to business and labor to hold down wages and prices, added that President Carter intends to reduce inflation gradually over the next few years.

Segregation bothers churches

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Archbishop Joseph Fitzgerald, South Africa's top Roman Catholic, says his church is integrating its schools because "we could no longer live with our conscience." Last week about 80 black, Indian and "colored" (mixed race) children were admitted to nine of the 171 Catholic schools or white children in South and South+West Africa. The Anglican and Methodist churches indicated they would follow suit.

Gradual inflation reduction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal says he is not counting on a quick reduction in inflation. "We'll be very conscious of the danger of inflation, just as we're conscious of the need to bring unemployment down," Blumenthal said in an interview Thursday. But Blumenthal, who said the administration will appeal to business and labor to hold down wages and prices, added that President Carter intends to reduce inflation gradually over the next few years.

Segregation bothers churches

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Archbishop Joseph Fitzgerald, South Africa's top Roman Catholic, says his church is integrating its schools because "we could no longer live with our conscience." Last week about 80 black, Indian and "colored" (mixed race) children were admitted to nine of the 171 Catholic schools or white children in South and South+West Africa. The Anglican and Methodist churches indicated they would follow suit.

Two more points

Big Lex Drum of the Poplar Bluff Mules lays in two of his 30 points after grabbing an offensive rebound during Friday night's finals of the Poplar Bluff Invitational Tournament. Drum's 30-point night wasted as Jays win Bluff Tournament

By CHARLIE FRANCIS
Daily Standard
Sports Editor

POPLAR BLUFF — Lex Drum of the Poplar Bluff Mules may have won the battle Friday night, but it was the Charleston Bluejays who won the war.

Drum, the Mules' big 6-9 center who joined the team only three games ago, turned in the finest individual performance of this year's Poplar Bluff Invitational Tournament in the finals against Charleston. But it was the balance of the Bluejays that made the difference at the end as the top-seeded team survived a fourth-quarter scare to post a 69-63 win over the hosts and claim the championship of the Bluff event.

Although outrebounded 10-9 by 6-6 Ricky Frazier of Charleston in the battle of the big men, Drum canned a spectacular 13 of 15 floor attempts and four of five foul shots for 30 points Friday night. Frazier, who got into foul trouble and missed much of the second half, hit five out of ten from the field and wound up with 11 points.

Bluejay coach Mitch Haskins, whose team has been in the finals of the Poplar Bluff Tournament each year since taking over the post there three years ago, said the emergence of Wilbert McCain as a consistent performer the past few games has given his team more balance. "Wilbert is a much better passer than Percy (Owens) and is a better shooter, too." McCain edged Owens, last year's starter at the forward position for the Bluejays, out of his job early in the season and has especially blossomed as a scorer and rebounded lately. All five Bluejay starters scored in double figures.

Both teams shot well in the game, although it was Drum's stats that brought the Poplar Bluff percentage to where it was at game's end. Charleston canned 53 per cent of the floor shots, hitting 31 of 59, with high-scorer Danny Farmer leading the way with 8 of 15 from the field. Farmer, the 6-5 forward who wound up with 17 points, did most of his point-making from the 20 foot-plus range, teaming with guards Michael Smith and Mike Dean to take some of the scoring pressure off Frazier.

Smith scored 15 and Dean threw in 10.

But Bluff's lack of balance and depth was evident in their floor statistics. Drum's 13-of 15 night brought their percentage to 51 per cent, but the rest of the team was finding the range at a sub-par 16 of 42 clip (38 per cent).

Only 6-5 Dale Hinton (13 points) and guard Denis Duncan (10 points) joined the giant Drum in breaking the double digit barrier for Poplar Bluff.

Charleston's biggest advantage in the game came in the rebound department, where they held a 29-22 margin over the first team all season to be taller than them. Five of those rebounds came on the Jays' first possession, when they got off six shots without finding the hoop. In all, 15 of Charleston's 29 caroms came off the offensive boards.

The Mules took the area's only undefeated team man to man on defense throughout the contest and were successful in keeping the ball away from Frazier for the most part. "Ricky got only ten shots," pointed out Haskins while crediting the Bluff "D" for a job well done. "He'll usually get about 20."

Charleston Controlled the tempo in the first quarter and enjoyed a six-point lead at one point, although they were ahead only 17-14 at the end of the period.

Although the Mules did a much better job on the boards in the second period, they found themselves behind by six at the half, 32-26. Charleston threatened to blow Bluff out in the third period, scoring 23 points and moving to their biggest lead of the game at 55-42, but the hosts weren't through just yet.

Taking advantage of the absence of Ricky Frazier, who drew his fourth foul early in the quarter and was replaced by Percy Owens, Bluff in the boards hard in the fourth period. They got five buckets following offensive rebounds as they pulled to within a point late in the period, but Frazier returned in time to pick his teammates up and halt the Poplar Bluff momentum. McCain's three-point play on a slam dunk in the closing seconds drove the final nail into the Poplar Bluff coffin and was a fitting climax to a game that had seen the high-leaping Jays control the boards most of the way.

Overshadowed by the big evenings of Drum and Farmer was Charleston guard Michael Smith. Smith passed out 11 assists while running the Bluejay offense to go along with his own 15 points.

Although he did not score, Percy Owens received a standing ovation from the Charleston delegation. Owens' brief appearance in place of Frazier was his first action since undergoing an appendectomy earlier this month.

BLOOMFIELD — Sylvester Patterson hit a follow-up shot with 1:16 to go in the game and Sullivan Clark followed with a three-point play off a steal and layup less than 30 seconds later to lift the Richland Rebels to an exciting 56-53 victory over the Woodland Cardinals in the finals of the Stoddard County Tournament Saturday night.

Patterson, whose 20 points were high in the game, came up with the winning bucket about a minute after teammate Glen Cole had tied the game at 51-all with a shot from the corner. Cole played an outstanding game on both ends of the court for Richland, scoring 16 points and coming up with a pair of crucial steals midway through the fourth quarter that helped coach Danny Rowland's Richland team fight back from a three-point deficit to assume the lead.

Richland was successful in stopping Woodland's inside threats--6-6 Mike Moyers and 6-5 Rusty Barker. The Rebels' 1-3-1 zone, which they employed when they weren't pressing, kept the ball away from the Woodland big men. Moyers wound up with six points and Barker had seven.

Richland, seeded first going into the tournament, scored the first six points of the game enroute to their 19th victory of the season against only one loss. That six-point advantage was the biggest one the Rebels held in the see-saw contest. The tall Cardinals--matched on the backboards by the shorter high-leaping Richland team--led by three at one point in the fourth quarter briefly before Cole's two steals brought the Rebels back into the lead.

Richland held a three-point lead at the half, but Woodland fought back in the third period to tie the game after three quarters. The Rebels hit only three field goals in the frame as they suffered their coldest shooting period of the tournament and scored a mere nine points. Woodland controlled the rebounding in the period, usually giving Richland only one shot at the bucket.

The Cardinals moved up by three with about five minutes to go in the fourth quarter before Cole went into his stealing act, picking off a pair of consecutive long passes by Woodland and allowing his teammates to convert them into points and put Richland on top by one. Jeff Wyatt, who scored 12 points for the Cardinals, gave Woodland their last lead of the game with 3:10 to go before Cole tied it about a minute later from the corner. Sylvester Patterson, who had missed Richland's semifinal game against Puxico because of an ankle injury, put Richland on top to stay with an offensive rebound and bucket with just over a minute left.

Guard Dave VanGennip led the Woodland scoring attack with 16.

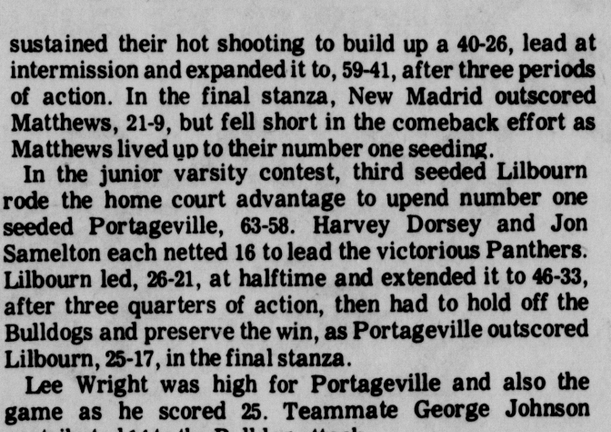
Puxico won the championship in the junior varsity bracket with a 61-45 win over Bell City. David Smith poured in 26 points and John Coffer added 18 for Puxico. Ellis Jackson led the losers with 12.

The consolation bracket of the tournament was held Friday night with Advance's Steve Vavak enjoying a memorable evening. The varsity game saw Advance take third place with a convincing, 94-66 win over Puxico. The junior varsity contest was won by the host, Bloomfield Wildcats, as they downed Advance, 61-48.

Before Friday's contest between Advance and Puxico, the all-time tournament scoring leader had been big Ken Andrews of Puxico who had averaged 33 pts. per game for the three game affair back in 1970. Steve Vavak of Advance entered Friday's contest with 62 points in two games and he was held scoreless in the first quarter. After that, the 6'-1" senior found the range. At halftime, he had collected 8 points, which still left him 29 short of tying the scoring record. After intermission, Vavak came out to hit 10 in the third period. With only 8:00 left to play in the contest, it looked like the odds were against Steve, but he collected 20 big fourth quarter points to capture the title of leading scorer of all-time in the Stoddard County Tournament. He hit for an even 100 points in the tournament to best by one point Andrews' record.

Morgan Sifford who played a fine ballgame for Puxico was high man for the Indians as he scored 26.

Bloomfield outscored Advance 14-0 in the opening qurarter of the junior varsity contest, then widened that gap to 47-26, after three periods. Advance made a noise in the fourth quarter but could not overcome the huge Wildcat lead.



Missouri will have 13 "walk-in" wild turkey hunting areas in the Ozarks, on National Forest land, during the April 20-May 3 season. The areas will be closed to vehicle traffic so hunters who want to trek into the wilderness and avoid competition with other hunters may do so. (Department of Conservation photo)

Bucs are New Madrid Co. champs

LILBOURN — The Matthews Pirates won the New Madrid County Tournament Friday night by building up an eighteen point lead after the first three quarters, then holding off a furious fourth period rally by New Madrid to claim a 68-62 victory. In the junior varsity game, the host Lilbourn Panthers won the first place trophy with a 63-58 win.

Larry Robinson asserted himself Friday night as he hit well from the 15 to 20 foot range to lead the Pirates in scoring and take high game honors by netting 30 for his evening's toil.

Teammates, Gerald Davis hit 11, Bill Sexton and Norman Webb scored 10 each. Chris Tanner topped New Madrid's scoring as he tallied 18 in the losing effort.

Matthews started shooting a high percentage from outside with Robinson doing the yeoman's task. They sustained their hot shooting to build up a 40-26, lead at intermission and expanded it to, 59-41, after three periods of action. In the final stanza, New Madrid outscored Matthews, 21-9, but fell short in the comeback effort as Matthews lived up to their number one seeding.

In the junior varsity contest, third seeded Lilbourn rode the home court advantage to upend number one seeded Portageville, 63-58. Harvey Dorsey and Jon Samelton each netted 16 to lead the victorious Panthers. Lilbourn led, 26-21, at halftime and extended it to 46-33, after three quarters of action, then had to hold off the Bulldogs and preserve the win, as Portageville outscored Lilbourn, 25-17, in the final stanza.

Lee Wright was high for Portageville and also the game as he scored 25. Teammate George Johnson contributed 14 to the Bulldog attack.

Central takes third at PB

Sharpshooter Blake Miller found the range in the second half and Cape Central exploited weak links in the SHS man-to-man defense as the Tigers grabbed a 77-71 decision and the third-place trophy in the Poplar Bluff Invitational. It was the second loss in a row for Sikeston.

The smaller Tigers led most of the first half against Sikeston, working the offensive boards with surprising success. A 13-11 first quarter lead was expanded as far as seven, 20-13, when Rick Sippel vacated the Bengal bench and started dominating the CCHS offensive boards.

A Paul Gilbow bucket narrowed the Tiger lead to 22-20, but Cape scored a pair of buckets in succession before Sikeston made its only serious charge at the Tigers all night. Trailing 26-20, the third-seede d Dogs scored 10 points in a row and claimed a 30-26 lead with 1:40 of the first half left.

Central didn't panic. They stole the ball twice, converted each time and tied the score. With the normally high scoring Miller held to just four points, the score was tied at intermission, 32-all.

Miller began to find the range in the second half. With the 6-foot senior hitting his deadly jumpers from the baseline and Sippel working inside, Cape began slowly to pull away. The lead varied from seven to nine points before a late rush enabled Sikeston to pull within one at the period's end.

Early in the fourth qurter another bucket by by Gilbow put Sikeston up 51-50. The lead lasted six seconds when a Miller 15-footer gave the margin back to Cape. Then, the Central guard swiped an inbounds pass, scorded a bucket to pub Cape up 54-51, and Sikeston never pulled even again.

Late game clutch free throw shooting by soph John Heins, Miller and their Central teammates spelled defeat for the Bulldogs for the third time in the last five games. The dreaded month of January, loaded with all the tough gamteams, proved gagain to be a back breaker for Sikeston--the Dogs were just 4-3.

Sippel, despite playing less than a minute in the first period, led all scorers with 21 points. Miller followed with 20, 16 in the last half.

Alonzo Harris and Paul Gilbow led Sikeston scoring. Harris had 18 and Gilbow 17.

Drum's 30-point night wasted as Jays win Bluff Tournament

POPLAR BLUFF — Lex Drum of the Poplar Bluff Mules may have won the battle Friday night, but it was the Charleston Bluejays who won the war.

Drum, the Mules' big 6-9 center who joined the team only three games ago, turned in the finest individual performance of this year's Poplar Bluff Invitational Tournament in the finals against Charleston. But it was the balance of the Bluejays that made the difference at the end as the top-seeded team survived a fourth-quarter scare to post a 69-63 win over the hosts and claim the championship of the Bluff event.

Although outrebounded 10-9 by 6-6 Ricky Frazier of Charleston in the battle of the big men, Drum canned a spectacular 13 of 15 floor attempts and four of five foul shots for 30 points Friday night. Frazier, who got into foul trouble and missed much of the second half, hit five out of ten from the field and wound up with 11 points.

Bluejay coach Mitch Haskins, whose team has been in the finals of the Poplar Bluff Tournament each year since taking over the post there three years ago, said the emergence of Wilbert McCain as a consistent performer the past few games has given his team more balance. "Wilbert is a much better passer than Percy (Owens) and is a better shooter, too." McCain edged Owens, last year's starter at the forward position for the Bluejays, out of his job early in the season and has especially blossomed as a scorer and rebounded lately. All five Bluejay starters scored in double figures.

Both teams shot well in the game, although it was Drum's stats that brought the Poplar Bluff percentage to where it was at game's end. Charleston canned 53 per cent of the floor shots, hitting 31 of 59, with high-scorer Danny Farmer leading the way with 8 of 15 from the field. Farmer, the 6-5 forward who wound up with 17 points, did most of his point-making from the 20 foot-plus range, teaming with guards Michael Smith and Mike Dean to take some of the scoring pressure off Frazier.

Smith scored 15 and Dean threw in 10.

But Bluff's lack of balance and depth was evident in their floor statistics. Drum's 13-of 15 night brought their percentage to 51 per cent, but the rest of the team was finding the range at a sub-par 16 of 42 clip (38 per cent).

Only 6-5 Dale Hinton (13 points) and guard Denis Duncan (10 points) joined the giant Drum in breaking the double digit barrier for Poplar Bluff.

Charleston's biggest advantage in the game came in the rebound department, where they held a 29-22 margin over the first team all season to be taller than them. Five of those rebounds came on the Jays' first possession, when they got off six shots without finding the hoop. In all, 15 of Charleston's 29 caroms came off the offensive boards.

The Mules took the area's only undefeated team man to man on defense throughout the contest and were successful in keeping the ball away from Frazier for the most part. "Ricky got only ten shots," pointed out Haskins while crediting the Bluff "D" for a job well done. "He'll usually get about 20."

Charleston Controlled the tempo in the first quarter and enjoyed a six-point lead at one point, although they were ahead only 17-14 at the end of the period.

Although the Mules did a much better job on the boards in the second period, they found themselves behind by six at the half, 32-26. Charleston threatened to blow Bluff out in the third period, scoring 23 points and moving to their biggest lead of the game at 55-42, but the hosts weren't through just yet.

Taking advantage of the absence of Ricky Frazier, who drew his fourth foul early in the quarter and was replaced by Percy Owens, Bluff in the boards hard in the fourth period. They got five buckets following offensive rebounds as they pulled to within a point late in the period, but Frazier returned in time to pick his teammates up and halt the Poplar Bluff momentum. McCain's three-point play on a slam dunk in the closing seconds drove the final nail into the Poplar Bluff coffin and was a fitting climax to a game that had seen the high-leaping Jays control the boards most of the way.

Overshadowed by the big evenings of Drum and Farmer was Charleston guard Michael Smith. Smith passed out 11 assists while running the Bluejay offense to go along with his own 15 points.

Although he did not score, Percy Owens received a standing ovation from the Charleston delegation. Owens' brief appearance in place of Frazier was his first action since undergoing an appendectomy earlier this month.

Rebels stop Woodland 56-63

BLOOMFIELD — Sylvester Patterson hit a follow-up shot with 1:16 to go in the game and Sullivan Clark followed with a three-point play off a steal and layup less than 30 seconds later to lift the Richland Rebels to an exciting 56-53 victory over the Woodland Cardinals in the finals of the Stoddard County Tournament Saturday night.

Patterson, whose 20 points were high in the game, came up with the winning bucket about a minute after teammate Glen Cole had tied the game at 51-all with a shot from the corner. Cole played an outstanding game on both ends of the court for Richland, scoring 16 points and coming up with a pair of crucial steals midway through the fourth quarter that helped coach Danny Rowland's Richland team fight back from a three-point deficit to assume the lead.

Richland was successful in stopping Woodland's inside threats--6-6 Mike Moyers and 6-5 Rusty Barker. The Rebels' 1-3-1 zone, which they employed when they weren't pressing, kept the ball away from the Woodland big men. Moyers wound up with six points and Barker had seven.

Richland, seeded first going into the tournament, scored the first six points of the game enroute to their 19th victory of the season against only one loss. That six-point advantage was the biggest one the Rebels held in the see-saw contest. The tall Cardinals--matched on the backboards by the shorter high-leaping Richland team--led by three at one point in the fourth quarter briefly before Cole's two steals brought the Rebels back into the lead.

Richland held a three-point lead at the half, but Woodland fought back in the third period to tie the game after three quarters. The Rebels hit only three field goals in the frame as they suffered their coldest shooting period of the tournament and scored a mere nine points. Woodland controlled the rebounding in the period, usually giving Richland only one shot at the bucket.

The Cardinals moved up by three with about five minutes to go in the fourth quarter before Cole went into his stealing act, picking off a pair of consecutive long passes by Woodland and allowing his teammates to convert them into points and put Richland on top by one. Jeff Wyatt, who scored 12 points for the Cardinals, gave Woodland their last lead of the game with 3:10 to go before Cole tied it about a minute later from the corner. Sylvester Patterson, who had missed Richland's semifinal game against Puxico because of an ankle injury, put Richland on top to stay with an offensive rebound and bucket with just over a minute left.

Guard Dave VanGennip led the Woodland scoring attack with 16.

Puxico won the championship in the junior varsity bracket with a 61-45 win over Bell City. David Smith poured in 26 points and John Coffer added 18 for Puxico. Ellis Jackson led the losers with 12.

The consolation bracket of the tournament was held Friday night with Advance's Steve Vavak enjoying a memorable evening. The varsity game saw Advance take third place with a convincing, 94-66 win over Puxico. The junior varsity contest was won by the host, Bloomfield Wildcats, as they downed Advance, 61-48.

Before Friday's contest between Advance and Puxico, the all-time tournament scoring leader had been big Ken Andrews of Puxico who had averaged 33 pts. per game for the three game affair back in 1970. Steve Vavak of Advance entered Friday's contest with 62 points in two games and he was held scoreless in the first quarter. After that, the 6'-1" senior found the range. At halftime, he had collected 8 points, which still left him 29 short of tying the scoring record. After intermission, Vavak came out to hit 10 in the third period. With only 8:00 left to play in the contest, it looked like the odds were against Steve, but he collected 20 big fourth quarter points to capture the title of leading scorer of all-time in the Stoddard County Tournament. He hit for an even 100 points in the tournament to best by one point Andrews' record.

Morgan Sifford who played a fine ballgame for Puxico was high man for the Indians as he scored 26.

Bloomfield outscored Advance 14-0 in the opening qurarter of the junior varsity contest, then widened that gap to 47-26, after three periods. Advance made a noise in the fourth quarter but could not overcome the huge Wildcat lead.

Missouri will have 13 "walk-in" wild turkey hunting areas in the Ozarks, on National Forest land, during the April 20-May 3 season. The areas will be closed to vehicle traffic so hunters who want to trek into the wilderness and avoid competition with other hunters may do so. (Department of Conservation photo)

I-SC Rams win marathon over Notre Dame

CAPE GIRARDEAU--The Illmo-Scott City Rams and the Notre Dame Bulldogs hooked up the longest game of the season in Southeast Missouri basketball Friday night as it took three overtime sessions before the visiting Rams finally prevailed, 73-70.

The first half belonged to Scott City as they treated their hosts rudely to take a 38-28 lead into the locker room at intermission. Coach Ed Arnzen must have stressed defense to his squad at halftime as the Bulldogs came out to outscore Scott City, 32-22, in the second half to send the game into overtime.

The first overtime round found little scoring as both teams were limited to only two points each. However, Notre Dame did have perhaps its best chance of the evening to win the game, when with only :03 left, Mark Van Weelden stepped to the charity line to shoot the one and one. He missed the front one and the game continued. The second overtime session found both teams picking up the tempo as Scott City tallied seven big points and Notre Dame did likewise. Then the third three minute period at the end of regulation play found Notre Dame revert to its old tactics of the first overtime as they scored 2 points and lost the ballgame to the Rams who tallied 5.

Notre Dame made the game close from the free throw line as they hit 10-16, to Scott City's 3-11. Rodney Littlepage was the games high scorer as he netted 21. Teammate Steve Heuring added 19 for the victorious Rams. Mike Goodson topped the Bulldogs in scoring as he had 20. Ken Blattel chipped in 18 in the losing gcause.

Malden rallies to upset Senath-Hornersville

MALDEN--The Senath-Hornersville Lions, with only one previous loss all season, were upset Friday night by the Malden Greenwave as the host Greenwave had a big final quarter to come from behind and gain the victory, 80-75.

Senath was ranked eighth in the latest poll compiled by Missouri sportcasters and sportswriters in class 2-A. Friday night however, it looked like Malden was the ranked team as they rolled to a 45-37 halftime advantage. In the third quarter, Senath showed why it had deserved the number eight spot by limiting the Greenwave to 8 points and scoring 19 themselves to take a, 56-53, lead into the final stanza. Malden finally overcame the tough Senath defense in the fourth period to score 27 big points and provide the margin of victory.

Larry Moore had the hot hand for Malden as he led the Greenwave in scoring with 19. He had good support from teammate Darrell Jones, who contributed 18 along with Jim Kilgore's 12.

Ralph Armour scored 21 to pace the Lion attack. Robert Duckworth hit for 15 in the losing effort.

S.O.A. meeting set

The SEMO Officials Association will hold its next meeting Wednesday, February 2, 1977, 7:00 p.m., at Malden High School.

A discussion will be held pertaining to this present basketball season with reference and emphasis placed on officials who are to work regional and-or state basketball games.

Charleston and Richland stay atop MSSA poll

The Charleston Bluejays head the rankings of Southeast Missouri basketball teams which received rankings in the latest statewide poll conducted by the sportscasters and sportwriters. Charleston drew the number one spot in Class 3-A as they continued to keep their undefeated season in tact with a first place trophy in the Poplar Bluff Invitational Tournament.

Richland also was ranked number one in class 1-A and faced the tough Woodland Cardinals in the finals of the Stoddard County Tournament Saturday night. Woodland was the top ranked team in Southeast Missouri in Class 2-A as the Cardinals drew the number four spot. The other Southeast Missouri team in Class 2-A to be ranked was Senath as they were ranked eighth. However, this was before their loss to Malden on Friday night.

The Poplar Bluff Mules were the only area team to receive mention in Class 4-A as they barely squeaked in the top ten. They were number 10 as Sikeston, ranked eighth in the previous poll, slipped out of the top ten following losses to Charleston, Bluff, and Cape.

Class 1-A found the most area representatives as besides Richland, Matthews, fresh from winning the New Madrid County Tournament on Friday night, was ranked eighth, with Advance drawing the number 10 spot.

In girls basketball, only one area school received statewide rankings as Kelly was ranked sixth in Class 2-A.

Oran boy hit by car

ORAN--A seven-year-old boy was reported in good condition Saturday night after being struck by a car while crossing Highway W at the intersection of Rose Street.

Police said Darrell Moody, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melton Moody of Oran, was crossing the highway from the north at 5:57 p.m. when he was struck by a westbound car driven by Bonnie Scharenberg, 19, of Oran.

Moody was taken to the hospital at Chaffee by a North Scott County ambulance.

Piggly Wiggly robbed of $193

The Piggly Wiggly Supermarket, 209 W. Malone Ave., was robbed of cash boxes containing $193 between midnight and 6 a.m. Friday, according to officrers of the Department of Public Safety.

Dewayne Reeves, assistant manager, told officers the back door of the store was found standing wide open, with its lock missing. The store was locked for the night at midnight.

Officers could find no point of entry to the store and think it is possible someone hid in the store when it was locked up and left through the back door.

10-year term in rape case

NEW MADRID--Richard Prather, 18, of Caruthersville pleaded guilty Friday in New Madrid County Circuit Court to a charge of statutory rape before Judge Marshall Craig, who imposed a 10-year sentence in custody of the Department of Corrections.

The case had been transferred on a change of venue from Pemiscot County where Prather was charged with the rape of a 13-year old Caruthersville girl on Feb. 14, 1976.

Trial date for a co-defendant, Glen Owens, was set for March 18.

Adieu Pedro

(A poem by Weber Gilmore)
(Dedicated to his ½-2nd cousin)

Pedro was a powerful man
In muscle as well as in name
Played football for the Charleston Blue Jay
Was a pro with the St. Louis Gunners,
and made Murray State Hall of Fame.

But the Southwest Pacific, Mary Jean,
and some mighty close calls,
Had a sobering effect on this man of gall.

From the Marines, to farming, to politics
From County Clerk, Presiding Judge then Sheriff
He felt he's found his niche.

Home from the Marines to Mary Jean and County Clerk again
Tried the Ford Business which almost got the best of him.

Politics, he decided, was his piece of pie.
Become presiding judge with blood in his eye.
T'was so easy, he thought, but no money to be earned
Eyed John Dennis and Doherty and thought Sheriff was his turn.

Easy, it seemed, but to no avail,
First Sheriff ever to be locked up in his own jail.
President of Lions, and Missouri Sheriff Officers Associations his game
To Charleston Man of Year they added his name.

An easy touch when a sad tale told
For behind that stern look
Lies a heart of gold.

16 years our Sheriff he's been
Til old father time got the best of him
But in spite of it all, the problems, the hearsay,
He never forgot Justice must be tempered with Mercy.

Now 64 and youthful still He'll now take the time to enjoy his fill.

History of the County is weaved with his name
Forever he'll be remembered as a man of Fame.

Weber Gilmore

Deliveries begin

Area man dead after shooting

EAST PRAIRIE--James R. Seabaugh, 29, Route One, was reportedly dead of an accidental gunshot wound on arrival at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis Saturday afternoon.

According to Mississippi County Sheriff Norris Grissom, Seabaugh was driving a pickup truck from the home of Don Taylor, East Prairie Route One, about 8 a.m. and had picked up a .22 single action revolver from the dash of the truck, cocked it, and pointed it out the right hand door.

Passengers in the truck were Taylor, J. C. Campbell of East Prairie Route One and a juvenile. Grissom said one of the passengers grabbed Seabaugh's hand, and the revolver fired, striking him near the right eye.

An ambulance was called to the scene, and Seabaugh was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital and later transferred to Memphis. Grissom said the shooting was apparently an accident.

The body is to be taken to Shelby Funeral Home in East Prairie, where arrangements are incomplete.

'Chico' is dead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Freddie Prinze, star of television's "Chico and the Man," died Saturday after a team of doctors fought vainly for 33 hours to save the life he decided to take in a fit of despair.

When Prinze's final crisis came Saturday morning, a nurse in the intensive care unit at UCLA Medical Center pounded on his chest and cried, "Hang on! The world needs all the laughter it can get."

Nurse Linda Rufkin's frantic efforts to keep Prinze's heart going were too late. Electronic signals marking his weak vital signs came to a sudden halt.

The 22-year-old Prinze pumped a bullet through his brain early Friday as his horrified manager stood by helplessly. Friends said the young comic was despondent over the breakup of his year-long marriage and the pressures of his hectic career.

Prinze never regained consciousness. Doctors said the bullet passed through his head, causing massive brain damage.

At 1 p.m. Saturday, doctors declared Prinze dead, ending a tense vigil by his mother and estranged wife, Katherine, who never left the hospital.

"A doctor brought the wife and mother into a room and broke the news," said Paul Wasserman, Prinze's agent and friend.

"They fell on the bed and each other, crying."

At about 2 p.m. PST hospital spokesman Richard Greene told reporters that Prinze had been declared dead after there was "no indication of any central nervous system function."

Greene added, "The wife and parents of Mr. Prinze wish to thank the many friends who have offered their prayers and support."

Herbert S. Schlosser, president of NBC, which had aired the popular series, said Prinze was "one of the brightest stars in the world of entertainment, and yet, at 22, he had only begun.

"We shall never know how far he could he have gone, how much laughter and pleasure he could have given us all in the years ahead."

Katherine Prinze, 26, filed for divorce last month.

It was she who Prinze telephoned early Friday from his West Los Angeles apartment. After the conversation, he pulled out a gun, placed the barrel to his right temple, and pulled the trigger.

Prinze's business manager, Marvin Snyder, watched in horror as his young friend tried to end his life.

Piggly Wiggly robbed of $193

The Piggly Wiggly Supermarket, 209 W. Malone Ave., was robbed of cash boxes containing $193 between midnight and 6 a.m. Friday, according to officrers of the Department of Public Safety.

Dewayne Reeves, assistant manager, told officers the back door of the store was found standing wide open, with its lock missing. The store was locked for the night at midnight.

Officers could find no point of entry to the store and think it is possible someone hid in the store when it was locked up and left through the back door.

10-year term in rape case

NEW MADRID--Richard Prather, 18, of Caruthersville pleaded guilty Friday in New Madrid County Circuit Court to a charge of statutory rape before Judge Marshall Craig, who imposed a 10-year sentence in custody of the Department of Corrections.

Trial date for a co-defendant, Glen Owens, was set for March 18.

Adieu Pedro

(A poem by Weber Gilmore)
(Dedicated to his ½-2nd cousin)

Pedro was a powerful man
In muscle as well as in name
Played football for the Charleston Blue Jay
Was a pro with the St. Louis Gunners,
and made Murray State Hall of Fame.

But the Southwest Pacific, Mary Jean,
and some mighty close calls,
Had a sobering effect on this man of gall.

From the Marines, to farming, to politics
From County Clerk, Presiding Judge then Sheriff
He felt he's found his niche.

Home from the Marines to Mary Jean and County Clerk again Tried the Ford Business which almost got the best of him.

Politics, he decided, was his piece of pie.
Become presiding judge with blood in his eye.
T'was so easy, he thought, but no money to be earned
Eyed John Dennis and Doherty and thought Sheriff was his turn.

Easy, it seemed, but to no avail,
First Sheriff ever to be locked up in his own jail.
President of Lions, and Missouri Sheriff Officers
Associations his game
To Charleston Man of Year they added his name.

An easy touch when a sad tale told
For behind that stern look
Lies a heart of gold.

16 years our Sheriff he's been
Til old father time got the best of him
But in spite of it all, the problems, the hearsay,
He never forgot Justice must be tempered with Mercy.

Now 64 and youthful still
He'll now take the time
to enjoy his fill.

History of the County is weaved with his name
Forever he'll be remembered as a man of Fame.

Weber Gilmore

Area man dead after shooting

EAST PRAIRIE--James R. Seabaugh, 29, Route One, was reportedly dead of an accidental gunshot wound on arrival at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis Saturday afternoon.

According to Mississippi County Sheriff Norris Grissom, Seabaugh was driving a pickup truck from the home of Don Taylor, East Prairie Route One, about 8 a.m. and had picked up a .22 single action revolver from the dash of the truck, cocked it, and pointed it out the right hand door.

Passengers in the truck were Taylor, J. C. Campbell of East Prairie Route One and a juvenile. Grissom said one of the passengers grabbed Seabaugh's hand, and the revolver fired, striking him near the right eye.

An ambulance was called to the scene, and Seabaugh was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital and later transferred to Memphis. Grissom said the shooting was apparently an accident.

The body is to be taken to Shelby Funeral Home in East Prairie, where arrangements are incomplete.

'Chico' is dead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Freddie Prinze, star of television's "Chico and the Man," died Saturday after a team of doctors fought vainly for 33 hours to save the life he decided to take in a fit of despair.

When Prinze's final crisis came Saturday morning, a nurse in the intensive care unit at UCLA Medical Center pounded on his chest and cried, "Hang on! The world needs all the laughter it can get."

Nurse Linda Rufkin's frantic efforts to keep Prinze's heart going were too late. Electronic signals marking his weak vital signs came to a sudden halt.

The 22-year-old Prinze pumped a bullet through his brain early Friday as his horrified manager stood by helplessly. Friends said the young comic was despondent over the breakup of his year-long marriage and the pressures of his hectic career.

Prinze never regained consciousness. Doctors said the bullet passed through his head, causing massive brain damage.

At 1 p.m. Saturday, doctors declared Prinze dead, ending a tense vigil by his mother and estranged wife, Katherine, who never left the hospital.

"A doctor brought the wife and mother into a room and broke the news," said Paul Wasserman, Prinze's agent and friend.

"They fell on the bed and each other, crying."

At about 2 p.m. PST hospital spokesman Richard Greene told reporters that Prinze had been declared dead after there was "no indication of any central nervous system function."

Greene added, "The wife and parents of Mr. Prinze wish to thank the many friends who have offered their prayers and support."

Herbert S. Schlosser, president of NBC, which had aired the popular series, said Prinze was "one of the brightest stars in the world of entertainment, and yet, at 22, he had only begun.

"We shall never know how far he could he have gone, how much laughter and pleasure he could have given us all in the years ahead."

Katherine Prinze, 26, filed for divorce last month.

It was she who Prinze telephoned early Friday from his West Los Angeles apartment. After the conversation, he pulled out a gun, placed the barrel to his right temple, and pulled the trigger.

Prinze's business manager, Marvin Snyder, watched in horror as his young friend tried to end his life.

Prinze met Kathy when he went into the Wyoming high country to escape the pressures of his rigorous schedule in early 1975.

Kathy, a North Carolina native, was working in a travel agency in Jackson Hole when she met the young comedian.

In October 1975, they were married in Las Vegas. It was Prinze's first marriage and her third.

In March 1976, Kathy Prinze gave birth to Freddie Jr.

Frozen rivers effect bulk commodities in transit and effect stock market rally

By CROCKETT SCOTT

Extreme cold and frozen rivers, with their devastating effect on fuel oil and other bulk commodities in transit, could postpone the New Year rally into late spring.

More bad news about Florida citrus fruit and the vegetable crop will not help the stock market either, analysts note.

Abnormally low temperatures necessitate a greater quantity of fuel oil, both in manufacturing plants and homes, despite pleas for restraint and thermostat settings in the 60's.

When river barges carrying the precious fuel oil and coal are tied up in the pack ice, the situation, of course, is complicated further; and the cost to the eventual user obviously will be higher for barge hands have to be paid even while they are aboard the stationary barges) when the cargo is delivered, barring the possibility of barge loss in an ice crunch.

Meanwhile, thousands of factory workers will be idled in forced plant shutdowns--for lack of fuel — and the price of edibles from southern climes moves up in a short crop situation.

"Everything will work out in time," say the optimists," though just when or how, no one really knows."

Should the pack ice in the rivers melt suddenly, midwestern and southern farmland up and down the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers (and their tributaries) could be ravaged by floods.

"One doesn't have to be a pessimist to perceive the horrible effects of widespread floods on next summer's crops," commented a St. Louis stock broker. "Let's hope such a catastrophe never comes to pass."

The potential aftermath of this extreme winter, however, undoubtedly has contributed to the pervasive chill so evident among investors during the past fortnight, asserts the investment banking community.

Securities and Exchange Commission-registered security analysts in Chicago remind that there are two more months of winter, however, before we have to concern ourselves with the spring thaw.

What . temporary unemployment and the rising prices of food and fuel will do to our economy is anybody's guess, they note.

But government intervention to help those out of work seems likely. This will add to the cost of the taxpayer bill as well.

"The acute bleakness of the economy and the nation amid this cruel wintry blast is difficult to comprehend," observed a spokesman for a leading Chicago investment banking firm.

"At best, we will have to wait several months for the answers. And, it's no wonder the stock market cannot find direction."

Around the Midwest and Mid-South relative safety in depressed equties is recommended.

Westinghouse Electric, around 17-18, is one common stock frequently mentioned; Marion Laboratories, in the 14-15 range, is another.

Westinghouse showed a nine-month net last Sept. 30 of $1.83 against $1.27 in the previous year.

Marion Laboratories had three-monoth earnings ended last Sept. 30 of 16 cents versus eight cents. This manufacturer of ethical pharmaceuticals is rated A-minus by Standard & Poor's and considering the fact the stock traded up into the high 50's a few years ago, it would, in the opinion of numerous Kansas City SEC-registered security analysts, be a relatively safe long-term holding.

Mary Kay Cosmetics, trading around 18-19 on the big board, is another common stock believed worthy of consideration by a number of St. Louis SEC-registered security analysts.

The firm's earnings were up to $1.08 per share for the quarter ended last Sept. 30, from 80 cents in the corresponding year earlier period.

Price range in recent years for the stock is wide, from 3 to 39, with trading range for the past two to three years from 14 to 22.

Balance sheet is strong, as is cash position, equivalent to $9.50 million and long-term debt only slightly more than half a million dollars, as of last Sept. 30 according to Standard & Poor's.

Springfield contractor is elected president Missouri contractors

KANSAS CITY — A Springfield contractor, Jack G. Bridges, president and general manager of Bridges & Co., Inc., was elected president of the Associated General Contractors of Missouri at the association's 51st annual meeting held here.

Other officers elected by the 270-member statewide construction organization include: vice president James W. Supica, president of United Construction Co., Inc., Overland Park, Kan., and treasurer Thomas H. McCrackin Jr., president of Kirkwood Contractors, Inc., Ellisville.

In addition to the officers, one member was re-elected to the AGC board of directors and six new members were elected to the board.

Re-elected to the board was J. K. Price, president of J. A. Tobin Construction Co., Kansas City, Kan.

New board members include G. J. Alberici, J. S. Alberici Construction Co., Inc., St. Louis; Ralph Drury, Bloomsdale Excavating Co., Inc., Hazelwood; Larry Howard, Howard Construction Co., Sedalia; Howard Metheny, Girardeau Contractors, Inc., Cape Girardeau; Gene Penzel, Penzel Construction Co., Inc., Jackson; and Sam Potashnick, S.J. Potashnick Construction Co., Cape Girardeau.

Bridges, the new AGC president, has served the construction organization as a member of the board, vice president and treasurer. He has also been a board member of the Springfield Contractors Association and is a past vice president of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce. He is a trustee of the Construction Industry Laborer's Pension Fund and a director of the Missouri Apprenticeship Training Program.

Bridges worked as a heavy equipment operator while attending Southwest Missouri State College. He received a bachelor of science degree in industrial arts in 1958 and at that time became manager of Bridges & Co., Inc. He is currently chairman of the board of Rhodes Supply Co., a plumbing and heating supply company; vice president of Springair Corp., a land development company; and is a former member of the board of directors of Squibb Insurance Co.

Bridges served in the Army from 1952 to 1955. He is active in a number of community organizations, including the Campfire Girls Council of the Ozarks, Good Samaritan Boy's Ranch, Kiwanis Club and Masons.

Bridges and his wife, the former Juanita Wade, make their home at Republic. They have three children, Teresa, 24, Jack Jr., 19, and Greg, 16.

Supica, the new vice president of the AGC, in addition to being president of United Construction Co., is also president of United Development, Inc., of Overland Park.

He has served on the AGC's joint cooperative committee with the Missouri State Highway Department for a number of years and has been chairman of the organization's open shop committee. In 1976, he served the group as treasurer and as chairman of the crime prevention committee.

A certified pilot, Supica married Miss Delcie Ann Bartow. They have two sons, James W. and Mark. The family lives in Leawood, Kan.

McCrackin, the new AGC treasurer, has been active in association affairs for a number of years. He has been a member of the group's board of directors for the past nine years and has served on virtually every active committee in the organization.

He received his bachelor's degree in civil engineering in 1940 and his master's degree from the University of Illinois in 1946. He served with the Army Corps of Engineers during World War II and left active duty with the rank of captain. He became affiliated with Kirkwood Contractors in 1955 and assumed the office of president in 1959.

McCrackin is married to the former Ardene Life of Erie, Pa. They have two daughters, Mrs. Holly A. Dudley and Mrs. Vicki L. Dasho, and a son, Thomas H. III, who is also active in the company. The McCrackins make their home in Kirkwood.

Traditional home mortgage inadequate

NEW YORK - - - The traditional home mortgage and its method of repayment over a 20 - or 30 - year period at a fixed rate of interest is inadequate to meet today's housing needs.

These words of mortgage reform were made recently by Leon T. Kendall, president of Morggage Inusrtance Corp. (MGIC), the nation's largest private insurer of mortgages.

Speaking at the 32nd annual senior Executives' Conference of Mortgage Bankers at New York University, Kendall said that this country now needs tailor-made mortgages designed to meet the varying requirementsd of individual families.

He noted that in almost every area of business and finance, diversity is the order of the day, with the exception of the standard mortgage, a heritage of the great depression.

Kendall outlined several innovations that would update the mortgage as a "debt instrument." These included:

Graduated payments. They would vary according to the home buyer's income. Payments could start low and increase as the homeowner's income increases. Such a mortgage might mean payments on interest only for the first five years.

Interest only loans. For a specified period, only interest would be paid, then the principal would be repaid in a "baloon" payment or the loan could be renegotiated.

Rate and term renegotiation every five years. This could benefit the transient home buyer or the person who plans to change homes within that period.

Permit skipped payments. A seasonal worker, for example, could make mortgage payments according to his own income flow.

Offer a line of credit. This would enable the home buyer to borrow against his increasing equity in his home to meet major family expenses, such as college education or home improvements at economical rates.

Sharing the value increase of the home with the builder or lender. This could be done in return for a lower down payment and a lower rate of interest.

Separate the land from the improvement and amortize them on two different bases.

Kendall said that pressure from home buyers and consumers for a more flexible mortgage instrument, as well as increasing interest in the subject by the federal government, legislators and the news media are forces that lenders and mortgage bankers can no longer ignore.

He pointed to a Mortgage Instrument Research Study by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board (FHLBB) and bills recently introduced in Congress by Sen. Edmund Brooke and Rep. Lud Ashley, as examples of government interest for change.

He added that the money crisis of 1974, along with double-digit interest rates, inflation in home prices, the cyclicality of housing and the economy and other forces, exposed the shortcomings of the present day mortgage structure.

"Usury ceilings, FHA ceilings, costly FHA origination procedures, cumber some foreclosure procedures, the restricted powers of thrift institutions, were but a few of the weaknesses laid bare," Kendall said.

Kendall said the demand for housing by first-time homebuyers between 25 and 34 years of age will continue for the balance of this decade and beyond. In 1975, households in this category totaled 13.5 million. By 1980, lthe number will be 16.8 million.

He explained that the trend toward flexibility of the mortgage instrument presents both a challenge and a threat to mortgage lenders.

"You face a conflict between standardization and diversity, between federalization of the mortgage instrument and pressures in the consumer marketplace for flexiblity, tailoring the mortgage instrument to the needs of individual homebuyers."

Ralston Purina okays stock split

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Shareholders of Ralston Purina Co. approved a three-for-one stock split their annual meeting here Jan. 20.

Stockholders increased the number of authorized common shares from 60,000,000 to 180,000,000.

Earlier in the day, the firm said its earnings for the first quarter of fiscal 1977 were $38.9 million, or $1.04 per share fully diluted, up 20 per cent from the same period 1976 profits of $32.1 million or 87 cents a share.

Taxpayers receive refunds faster by using pre-addressed returns

ST. LOUIS — Taxpayers can receive their refunds faster by using the pre-addressed peel-off label on their returns, the Internal Revenue Service says.

The label, which appears on the cover of the tax package mailed to taxpayers, lists name, address and Social Security number.

The IRS emphasized that if any information on the label is incorrect, the taxpayer should make corrections right on the label.

Married taxpayers filing a joint return should check to see that two Social Security numbers appear on the label. If only one social security number is shown, the other spouse's number should be entered on the appropriate line.

Taxpayers can also insure a faster refund by mailing their return in the coded envelope also included with the tax package.

Duffie resigns from funeral home in Bernie

BERNIE — R.L. Duffie has announced his resignation as manager of the Duffie-Rainey Funeral Home in Bernie after an affiliation of 22 years.

Duffie purchased Drum Funeral Home from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Drum on Jan. 19, 1955, and nearly three years later sold the business to Mr. and Mrs. Ray W. Rainey of Dexter. He continued to manage the business for the new owners.

Duffie is a graduate mortician of the College of Mortuary Science and also a graduate of Bluff City Business College.

He said his future plans are indefinite at this time, and that he would take a few weeks vacation before making a decision.

Contracting firms are honored

KANSAS CITY — Eight member firms of the Associated General Contractors of Missouri (AGC) were honored here for outstanding safety records at the 51st annual convention of the organization.

Two companies, Hall & Riley Quarries & Construction Co., Inc., Boonville, and Clarkson Construction Co., Kansas City, received the association's top safety award, named for E.C.L. Wagner, former manager of the AGC of Missouri.

The Hall & Riley firm recorded the lowest accident rate over a five-year period for companies working less than 100,000 manhours per year. Clarkson had the lowest accident rate for companies working over 100,000 manhours per year over the five-year period.

Six division safety awards were also presented to companies who achieved the best safety record in their respective divisions over the past year. Winning firms were: Masters-Jackson Paving Co., Springfield, Bituminous Division; Burk Bridge Co., Brookline Station, Bridge Division, Clarkson Construction Co., Kansas City, First Grading Division; Hall & Riley Quarries & Construction Co., Boonville, Second Grading Division; Luhr Bros., Inc., Columbia, Ill., Heavy Division; and Israel Bros., Inc., Clayton, Concrete Paving Division.

The AGC of Missouri, headquartered in Jefferson City, is a statewide association of more than 270 members performing 85 per cent of all highway, heavy and utility construction in the state.

New loan officer is acquired at Cape firm

CAPE GIRARDEAU — First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Southeast Missouri has acquired a new vice-president loan officer. Jerry L. Sneed is now making real estate loans, both residential and commercial, in this capacity.

Prior to his association with First Federal, Sneed was vice president loan officer in charge of the new Cape Girardeau branch of Heritage Savings & Loan Association, formerly Jackson Savings & Loan. He was associated with the institution for 11 years.

Sneed spent the first two years of his banking career in the savings department of Lemay Bank & Trust in St. Louis. He then was associated with the mortgage loan department at First National Bank of Cape Girardeau for five years.

Prior to transferring to what is now Heritage Savings & Loan, Sneed worked as assistant cashier in charge of teller operations at Cape Mercantile Bank & Trust and manager of its Town Plaza branch facility.

The new First Federal officer is married to the former Ellen Kay Kerstner of Jackson. They have two children, Pam, 18, and Kris, 16, and live on a farm on Jackson Route Four.

Sneed will be based at the home office in Cape Girardeau.

Malone & Hyde declares dividend

MEMPHIS — Malone & Hyde, Inc., has declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of 17 cents per share, payable April 15 to stockholders of record on March 18, according to an announcement by J.R. Hyde III, president of the Memphis-based firm.

Productivity decline is not uncommon

NEW YORK (AP) — A small productivity decline after a period of rather fast growth is not uncommon, said the Bureau of Labor Statistics in explaining a slump in production efficiency in the fourth quarter.

Not uncommon, not unexpected, but not good news either. While productivity did rise at a strong rate last year, despite the final-quarter slump, the long-term record still gives cause for concern.

Output per manhour in manufacturing, which is another way of labeling production efficiency, grew more slowly in the United States than in other industrial economies during the 1966-1975 period.

While there has been a pronounced upward sweep in productivity over the past 87 years in the United States, and despite an improvement in the past two or three years, a general slowdown has been evident since World War Two.

And so, when we have a quarterly dip in the rate of increase, it brings up the questions:

Are we still following the trend of the most recent two or three years? That is, have we only temporarily been set back?

Or, after having driven up productivity for two or three years, have we fallen back into the slower rate of advance that has characterized most years since the mid-1940s.

Why should we worry about productivity? You could just as well rephrase that question to ask why we should worry about prices and jobs and the material quality of life.

Productivity is a measure of efficiency. The greater the production efficiency — call it output per manhour if you like — the greater the rewards in terms of lower prices, higher incomes and job production.

Productivity is the yeast that makes a bigger loaf so that more people can be fed, and fed at a lower price per person. Technological advance is the major item in creating greater productivity.

Is technological advance being thwarted in the United States? Some say yes — by ecological considerations, consumerism, oligarchy, unions, the inability of entrepreneurs to obtain venture capital.

Another consideration is the general attitude of workers, not just those on assembly lines, but those in offices, including the top executive offices. Some critics maintain we are seeking too much from our businesses.

The Conference Board, a research organization with strong support from the corporate world, released today a report showing a growing number of companies are revamping their white-collar pay policies.

Eby is elected to ag industry council board

MATTHEWS — Bruce Eby, owner of Eby's Distributing Co. on Highway 61, has been elected to serve a three-year term on the board of directors of the Missouri Ag Industries Council.

The Ag Council represents the interests of the grain, feed, fertilizer, chemical and seed industries on local, state and national levels.

The Ag Council also engages in and sponsors research pertaining to production and processing grain, field crops and the manufacturing and utilization of commercial food stuffs.

Frozen rivers effect bulk commodities in transit and effect stock market rally

By CROCKETT SCOTT

Extreme cold and frozen rivers, with their devastating effect on fuel oil and other bulk commodities in transit, could postpone the New Year rally into late spring.

More bad news about Florida citrus fruit and the vegetable crop will not help the stock market either, analysts note.

Abnormally low temperatures necessitate a greater quantity of fuel oil, both in manufacturing plants and homes, despite pleas for restraint and thermostat settings in the 60's.

When river barges carrying the precious fuel oil and coal are tied up in the pack ice, the situation, of course, is complicated further; and the cost to the eventual user obviously will be higher for barge hands have to be paid even while they are aboard the stationary barges) when the cargo is delivered, barring the possibility of barge loss in an ice crunch.

Meanwhile, thousands of factory workers will be idled in forced plant shutdowns--for lack of fuel — and the price of edibles from southern climes moves up in a short crop situation.

"Everything will work out in time," say the optimists," though just when or how, no one really knows."

Should the pack ice in the rivers melt suddenly, midwestern and southern farmland up and down the Mississippi and Ohio Rivers (and their tributaries) could be ravaged by floods.

"One doesn't have to be a pessimist to perceive the horrible effects of widespread floods on next summer's crops," commented a St. Louis stock broker. "Let's hope such a catastrophe never comes to pass."

The potential aftermath of this extreme winter, however, undoubtedly has contributed to the pervasive chill so evident among investors during the past fortnight, asserts the investment banking community.

Securities and Exchange Commission-registered security analysts in Chicago remind that there are two more months of winter, however, before we have to concern ourselves with the spring thaw.

What temporary unemployment and the rising prices of food and fuel will do to our economy is anybody's guess, they note.

But government intervention to help those out of work seems likely. This will add to the cost of the taxpayer bill as well.

"The acute bleakness of the economy and the nation amid this cruel wintry blast is difficult to comprehend," observed a spokesman for a leading Chicago investment banking firm.

"At best, we will have to wait several months for the answers. And, it's no wonder the stock market cannot find direction."

Around the Midwest and Mid-South relative safety in depressed equties is recommended.

Westinghouse Electric, around 17-18, is one common stock frequently mentioned; Marion Laboratories, in the 14-15 range, is another.

Westinghouse showed a nine-month net last Sept. 30 of $1.83 against $1.27 in the previous year.

Marion Laboratories had three-monoth earnings ended last Sept. 30 of 16 cents versus eight cents. This manufacturer of ethical pharmaceuticals is rated A-minus by Standard & Poor's and considering the fact the stock traded up into the high 50's a few years ago, it would, in the opinion of numerous Kansas City SEC-registered security analysts, be a relatively safe long-term holding.

Mary Kay Cosmetics, trading around 18-19 on the big board, is another common stock believed worthy of consideration by a number of St. Louis SEC-registered security analysts.

The firm's earnings were up to $1.08 per share for the quarter ended last Sept. 30, from 80 cents in the corresponding year earlier period.

Price range in recent years for the stock is wide, from 3 to 39, with trading range for the past two to three years from 14 to 22.

Balance sheet is strong, as is cash position, equivalent to $9.50 million and long-term debt only slightly more than half a million dollars, as of last Sept. 30 according to Standard & Poor's.

Springfield contractor is elected president Missouri contractors

KANSAS CITY — A Springfield contractor, Jack G. Bridges, president and general manager of Bridges & Co., Inc., was elected president of the Associated General Contractors of Missouri at the association's 51st annual meeting held here.

Other officers elected by the 270-member statewide construction organization include: vice president James W. Supica, president of United Construction Co., Inc., Overland Park, Kan., and treasurer Thomas H. McCrackin Jr., president of Kirkwood Contractors, Inc., Ellisville.

In addition to the officers, one member was re-elected to the AGC board of directors and six new members were elected to the board.

Re-elected to the board was J. K. Price, president of J. A. Tobin Construction Co., Kansas City, Kan.

New board members include G. J. Alberici, J. S. Alberici Construction Co., Inc., St. Louis; Ralph Drury, Bloomsdale Excavating Co., Inc., Hazelwood; Larry Howard, Howard Construction Co., Sedalia; Howard Metheny, Girardeau Contractors, Inc., Cape Girardeau; Gene Penzel, Penzel Construction Co., Inc., Jackson; and Sam Potashnick, S.J. Potashnick Construction Co., Cape Girardeau.

Bridges, the new AGC president, has served the construction organization as a member of the board, vice president and treasurer. He has also been a board member of the Springfield Contractors Association and is a past vice president of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce. He is a trustee of the Construction Industry Laborer's Pension Fund and a director of the Missouri Apprenticeship Training Program.

Bridges worked as a heavy equipment operator while attending Southwest Missouri State College. He received a bachelor of science degree in industrial arts in 1958 and at that time became manager of Bridges & Co., Inc. He is currently chairman of the board of Rhodes Supply Co., a plumbing and heating supply company; vice president of Springair Corp., a land development company; and is a former member of the board of directors of Squibb Insurance Co.

Bridges served in the Army from 1952 to 1955. He is active in a number of community organizations, including the Campfire Girls Council of the Ozarks, Good Samaritan Boy's Ranch, Kiwanis Club and Masons.

Bridges and his wife, the former Juanita Wade, make their home at Republic. They have three children, Teresa, 24, Jack Jr., 19, and Greg, 16.

Supica, the new vice president of the AGC, in addition to being president of United Construction Co., is also president of United Development, Inc., of Overland Park.

He has served on the AGC's joint cooperative committee with the Missouri State Highway Department for a number of years and has been chairman of the organization's open shop committee. In 1976, he served the group as treasurer and as chairman of the crime prevention committee.

A certified pilot, Supica married Miss Delcie Ann Bartow. They have two sons, James W. and Mark. The family lives in Leawood, Kan.

McCrackin, the new AGC treasurer, has been active in association affairs for a number of years. He has been a member of the group's board of directors for the past nine years and has served on virtually every active committee in the organization.

He received his bachelor's degree in civil engineering in 1940 and his master's degree from the University of Illinois in 1946. He served with the Army Corps of Engineers during World War II and left active duty with the rank of captain. He became affiliated with Kirkwood Contractors in 1955 and assumed the office of president in 1959.

McCrackin is married to the former Ardene Life of Erie, Pa. They have two daughters, Mrs. Holly A. Dudley and Mrs. Vicki L. Dasho, and a son, Thomas H. III, who is also active in the company. The McCrackins make their home in Kirkwood.

Traditional home mortgage inadequate

NEW YORK - - - The traditional home mortgage and its method of repayment over a 20 - or 30 - year period at a fixed rate of interest is inadequate to meet today's housing needs.

These words of mortgage reform were made recently by Leon T. Kendall, president of Morggage Inusrtance Corp. (MGIC), the nation's largest private insurer of mortgages.

Speaking at the 32nd annual senior Executives' Conference of Mortgage Bankers at New York University, Kendall said that this country now needs tailor-made mortgages designed to meet the varying requirementsd of individual families.

He noted that in almost every area of business and finance, diversity is the order of the day, with the exception of the standard mortgage, a heritage of the great depression.

Kendall outlined several innovations that would update the mortgage as a "debt instrument." These included:

Graduated payments. They would vary according to the home buyer's income. Payments could start low and increase as the homeowner's income increases. Such a mortgage might mean payments on interest only for the first five years.

Interest only loans. For a specified period, only interest would be paid, then the principal would be repaid in a "baloon" payment or the loan could be renegotiated.

Rate and term renegotiation every five years. This could benefit the transient home buyer or the person who plans to change homes within that period.

Permit skipped payments. A seasonal worker, for example, could make mortgage payments according to his own income flow.

Offer a line of credit. This would enable the home buyer to borrow against his increasing equity in his home to meet major family expenses, such as college education or home improvements at economical rates.

Sharing the value increase of the home with the builder or lender. This could be done in return for a lower down payment and a lower rate of interest.

Separate the land from the improvement and amortize them on two different bases.

Kendall said that pressure from home buyers and consumers for a more flexible mortgage instrument, as well as increasing interest in the subject by the federal government, legislators and the news media are forces that lenders and mortgage bankers can no longer ignore.

He pointed to a Mortgage Instrument Research Study by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board (FHLBB) and bills recently introduced in Congress by Sen. Edmund Brooke and Rep. Lud Ashley, as examples of government interest for change.

He added that the money crisis of 1974, along with double-digit interest rates, inflation in home prices, the cyclicality of housing and the economy and other forces, exposed the shortcomings of the present day mortgage structure.

"Usury ceilings, FHA ceilings, costly FHA origination procedures, cumber some foreclosure procedures, the restricted powers of thrift institutions, were but a few of the weaknesses laid bare," Kendall said.

Kendall said the demand for housing by first-time homebuyers between 25 and 34 years of age will continue for the balance of this decade and beyond. In 1975, households in this category totaled 13.5 million. By 1980, lthe number will be 16.8 million.

He explained that the trend toward flexibility of the mortgage instrument presents both a challenge and a threat to mortgage lenders.

"You face a conflict between standardization and diversity, between federalization of the mortgage instrument and pressures in the consumer marketplace for flexiblity, tailoring the mortgage instrument to the needs of individual homebuyers."

Ralston Purina okays stock split

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Shareholders of Ralston Purina Co. approved a three-for-one stock split their annual meeting here Jan. 20.

Stockholders increased the number of authorized common shares from 60,000,000 to 180,000,000.

Earlier in the day, the firm said its earnings for the first quarter of fiscal 1977 were $38.9 million, or $1.04 per share fully diluted, up 20 per cent from the same period 1976 profits of $32.1 million or 87 cents a share.

Taxpayers receive refunds faster by using pre-addressed returns

ST. LOUIS — Taxpayers can receive their refunds faster by using the pre-addressed peel-off label on their returns, the Internal Revenue Service says.

The label, which appears on the cover of the tax package mailed to taxpayers, lists name, address and Social Security number.

The IRS emphasized that if any information on the label is incorrect, the taxpayer should make corrections right on the label.

Married taxpayers filing a joint return should check to see that two Social Security numbers appear on the label. If only one social security number is shown, the other spouse's number should be entered on the appropriate line.

Taxpayers can also insure a faster refund by mailing their return in the coded envelope also included with the tax package.

Duffie resigns from funeral home in Bernie

BERNIE — R.L. Duffie has announced his resignation as manager of the Duffie-Rainey Funeral Home in Bernie after an affiliation of 22 years.

Duffie purchased Drum Funeral Home from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Drum on Jan. 19, 1955, and nearly three years later sold the business to Mr. and Mrs. Ray W. Rainey of Dexter. He continued to manage the business for the new owners.

Duffie is a graduate mortician of the College of Mortuary Science and also a graduate of Bluff City Business College.

He said his future plans are indefinite at this time, and that he would take a few weeks vacation before making a decision.

Contracting firms are honored

KANSAS CITY — Eight member firms of the Associated General Contractors of Missouri (AGC) were honored here for outstanding safety records at the 51st annual convention of the organization.

Two companies, Hall & Riley Quarries & Construction Co., Inc., Boonville, and Clarkson Construction Co., Kansas City, received the association's top safety award, named for E.C.L. Wagner, former manager of the AGC of Missouri.

The Hall & Riley firm recorded the lowest accident rate over a five-year period for companies working less than 100,000 manhours per year. Clarkson had the lowest accident rate for companies working over 100,000 manhours per year over the five-year period.

Six division safety awards were also presented to companies who achieved the best safety record in their respective divisions over the past year. Winning firms were: Masters-Jackson Paving Co., Springfield, Bituminous Division; Burk Bridge Co., Brookline Station, Bridge Division, Clarkson Construction Co., Kansas City, First Grading Division; Hall & Riley Quarries & Construction Co., Boonville, Second Grading Division; Luhr Bros., Inc., Columbia, Ill., Heavy Division; and Israel Bros., Inc., Clayton, Concrete Paving Division.

The AGC of Missouri, headquartered in Jefferson City, is a statewide association of more than 270 members performing 85 per cent of all highway, heavy and utility construction in the state.

Industrialization is seen as threat to the independent family farms

COLUMBIA — The concept of the independent farmer is being threatened by increased industrialization of agriculture, University of California at Los anthropologist said here Wednesday.

In fact, said Walter Goldschmidt, "the pressures brought upon agriculture by the industrial sectors of our community are rapidly eroding the base of the very democracy that created this spirit."

Speaking at the first C.L. Gregory Memorial Lecture at the University of Missouri-Columbia, Goldschmidt cited specific activities as evidence of his claim:

— The handling of agricultural relief in a manner that gives greater assistance to larger farm operators.

— Tax rules and regulations that allow outsiders to use agriculture for making investments and gaining tax shelter advantages.

— The pressure toward increased mechanization and synthetic fertilizers.

— The effective fight against the unionization of agricultural workers.

— Activities of agricultural research which, said Goldschmidt, "is consistently directed toward the furtherance of industrialization rather than the family farm."

He said increased industrialization of agriculture as evidenced by the increased size of the farm unit is having "deleterious effects" on world life.

"If this tendency is to be counteracted," he said, "it will be necessary that the counter movement emerge out of the rural scene "to reformulate American policies affecting the family farm."

Goldschmidt's lecture was given in honor of C.L. Gregory, a lifelong student of the rural sector and faculty member in the UMC department of rural sociology for 25 years.

Experts to focus on hay situation

COLUMBIA — The critical hay situation facing many farmers will be the major focus of the American Forage and Grassland Council's (AFGC) 10th annual conference, scheduled here Feb. 14-16.

About 150 experts representing public institutions and industry will devote half a day of the conference to hay handling, marketing and quality, according to A.G. Matches, AFGC president-elect and USDA Agricultural Research Service agronomist at University of Missouri-Columbia.

Matches, who will become president of AFGC during the Wednesday luncheon that concludes the conference, said AFGC members will hear reports on haymaking systems and marketing. They will also discuss energy supplements and implants for grazing animals, silage and silage additives, and mineral composition of forages.

Other conference topics will include an update of marketing and livestock feeding, producers' reports on dairy and beef operations and a summary of Missouri forage research.

The sessions will begin at 1:30 p.m. February 14 at the Ramada Inn.

Public complaints on soaring coffee prices stops $9 million campaign

LONDON (AP) — Public outcry over soaring coffee prices has caused the U.S. coffee industry to give up plans for a $9 million promotion campaign, American source at the International Coffee Organization's board meeting said today.

Informants in the U.S. delegation to the meetingsaid it has withdrawn an application for an IOC grant of $4.5 million to pay half of the campaign to increase coffee drinking in the United States. The other half was to have been paid by the United States Coffee Council.

The application was presented to the IOC executive board last November by George Boecklin, president of the National Coffee Association of America on behalf of the U.S. Coffee Council. The board had decided to recommend its approval to the World Coffee Promotion Committee.

The United States Coffee Council, organized to promote coffee consumption, is made up half by the U.S. coffee industry and half by coffee growing nations.

Dried poultry waste may be fed to cattle, sheep and poultry

COLUMBIA — Dried poultry waste (dried cage hen manure) has been officially cleared for feeding to Missouri cattle, sheep and poultry.

Lest you start worrying about a "different taste" in your meat and eggs, you should know that recycling manure has been a natural process for years. Scientists have just recently got around to refining the process to produce an economical, high protein feed which helps solve a multimillion dollar poultry waste disposal problem..

"Dry poultry waste (DPW) can be used in ruminant diets (cattle and sheep), for its nitrogen, energy and mineral content," explains Joe Vandepopuliere, University of Missouri-Columbia poultry scientist. "It's value depends on the quality of the product which generally runs 25-27 per cent protein.

"It also contains high levels of calcium, phosphorus, significant quantities of trace minerals and some energy that can be used by the animal.

"It's value as a feedstuff will vary depending on the market prices of feeds like soybean meal, corn, etc. Right now, it looks like it should be worth $80-90 a ton."

DPW is generally processed by heating and dehydrating fresh manure in a rotary dehydrator. There's no manure odor, because the drying process has eliminated the decomposition process which produces the odor.

"After cattle have had a taste of the DPW, they prefer it to good corn silage," says Vandepopuliere.

Recycling manure goes back as long as hogs and chickens have followed cattle around the feedlot. "Many of us have eaten meat and eggs from these animals and did not detect any abnormal flavor," said Vandepopuliere.

"And taste panels have not been able to detect any carryover to meat or eggs."

There's no dietary restriction on feeding DPW to beef cattle. However, sheep rations are to be limited to 15 per cent DPW. Broiler and layer rations are to be limited to 20 and 25 per cent DPW. Broiler and layer rations are to be limited to 20 and 25 per cent, respectively.

He says properly formulated in the diet, average gain of animals fed DPW is comparable to the gains on conventional livestock feeds.

Two Missouri integrated poultry corporations are currently producing the DPW on a commercial basis: Bell Egg Farms, Joplin, and Agri-Foods, Inc., Troy.

Vandepopuliere says using poultry manure as a feedstuff will reduce poultry manure disposal problems considerably. "Not only will the production of DPW reduce the potential pollution problem," says Vandepopuliere, "but it could also provide a profit center in the egg operation."

Some say using DPW as a livestock feed will be worth more than a half billion dollars annually to the poultry industry.

"The consumer benefits directly by these improvements in agriculture," says Vandepopuliere. "This is an example of why we eat so good for such a small per cent of our income."

ASCS disaster program assisted 259 Scott County farmers for 1976

BENTON — A total of 259 Scott County farmers qualified for benefits under the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service's disaster payment program for 1976, according to Kenneth E. Vowels, ASCS county executive director who said most of the payments went to cotton producers whose crops were damaged by summer drought and early fall freezing temperatures.

Cotton production averaged a lowly 210 pounds per acre last year, compared with the county normal of 500 pounds.

Low yields on last summer's wheat crop accounted for the remaining eligible applications.

Under the disaster program, producers with feed grain, wheat or cotton allotments may be eligible for aid to help offset crop losses caused by adverse weather conditions.

A producer may qualify for payments by any one of three ways. One, if he is prevented from planting the crop. Two, if the crop is lost after planting and the area is devoted to another use. And, three, if the producer carries the damaged crop through to harvest and ultimately harvests an abnormally low yield. Generally, the yield must have been reduced by at least 40 per cent.

Payments to local farmers totaled $350,000 for 1976 crop losses. This compares to $85,000 in 1975 and $500,000 in 1974. Soybeans are not included in the disaster program.

Information about this or any other program administered by ASCS may be obtained by visiting the county ASCS office in Benton.

Proposed rules governing movement of livestock will be discussed Feb. 15

JEFFERSON CITY — Five proposed new rules governing health regulations for movement of livestock and poultry and brucellosis will be discussed at a public hearing called by the Missouri Department of Agriculture for 10 a.m. Feb. 15 at Jefferson City.

The rules changes deal specifically with brucellosis testing in cattle and pseudorabies testing in swine.

Under the proposed rules changes, all breeding cattle entering Missouri from Texas, Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi must originate from herds that have had a negative brucellosis herd test within the past 12 months. In addition, another proposed rule change would require official calfhood vaccination for brucellosis between the age of two and six months.

Split consignments of cattle at livestock markets is prohibited under a third rule change. Test eligible cattle consigned as a unit will be tested as a unit. If the consigner does not want his shipment tested, the animals will be marked as slaughter cattle and will not be comingled with nonslaughter livestock. Those animals must reach slaughter within five days from the date of sale.

For more specific information about the proposed rules, or hearing date, contact the Division of Animal Health, Missouri Department of Agriculture, P. O. Box 630, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101. You may call telephone number 751-3377.

— Activities of agricultural research which, said Goldschmidt, "is consistently directed toward the furtherance of industrialization rather than the family farm."

He said increased industrialization of agriculture as evidenced by the increased size of the farm unit is having "deleterious effects" on world life.

"If this tendency is to be counteracted," he said, "it will be necessary that the counter movement emerge out of the rural scene "to reformulate American policies affecting the family farm."

Goldschmidt's lecture was given in honor of C.L. Gregory, a lifelong student of the rural sector and faculty member in the UMC department of rural sociology for 25 years.

Experts to focus on hay situation

COLUMBIA — The critical hay situation facing many farmers will be the major focus of the American Forage and Grassland Council's (AFGC) 10th annual conference, scheduled here Feb. 14-16.

About 150 experts representing public institutions and industry will devote half a day of the conference to hay handling, marketing and quality, according to A.G. Matches, AFGC president-elect and USDA Agricultural Research Service agronomist at University of Missouri-Columbia.

Matches, who will become president of AFGC during the Wednesday luncheon that concludes the conference, said AFGC members will hear reports on haymaking systems and marketing. They will also discuss energy supplements and implants for grazing animals, silage and silage additives, and mineral composition of forages.

Other conference topics will include an update of marketing and livestock feeding, producers' reports on dairy and beef operations and a summary of Missouri forage research.

The sessions will begin at 1:30 p.m. February 14 at the Ramada Inn.

Public complaints on soaring coffee prices stops $9 million campaign

LONDON (AP) — Public outcry over soaring coffee prices has caused the U.S. coffee industry to give up plans for a $9 million promotion campaign, American source at the International Coffee Organization's board meeting said today.

Informants in the U.S. delegation to the meetingsaid it has withdrawn an application for an IOC grant of $4.5 million to pay half of the campaign to increase coffee drinking in the United States. The other half was to have been paid by the United States Coffee Council.

The application was presented to the IOC executive board last November by George Boecklin, president of the National Coffee Association of America on behalf of the U.S. Coffee Council. The board had decided to recommend its approval to the World Coffee Promotion Committee.

The United States Coffee Council, organized to promote coffee consumption, is made up half by the U.S. coffee industry and half by coffee growing nations.

Dried poultry waste may be fed to cattle, sheep and poultry

COLUMBIA -- Dried poultry waste (dried cage hen manure) has been officially cleared for feeding to Missouri cattle, sheep and poultry.

Lest you start worrying about a "different taste" in your meat and eggs, you should know that recycling manure has been a natural process for years. Scientists have just recently got around to refining the process to produce an economical, high protein feed which helps solve a multimillion dollar poultry waste disposal problem..

"Dry poultry waste (DPW) can be used in ruminant diets (cattle and sheep), for its nitrogen, energy and mineral content," explains Joe Vandepopuliere, University of Missouri-Columbia poultry scientist. "It's value depends on the quality of the product which generally runs 25-27 per cent protein.

"It also contains high levels of calcium, phosphorus, significant quantities of trace minerals and some energy that can be used by the animal.

"It's value as a feedstuff will vary depending on the market prices of feeds like soybean meal, corn, etc. Right now, it looks like it should be worth $80-90 a ton."

DPW is generally processed by heating and dehydrating fresh manure in a rotary dehydrator. There's no manure odor, because the drying process has eliminated the decomposition process which produces the odor.

"After cattle have had a taste of the DPW, they prefer it to good corn silage," says Vandepopuliere.

Recycling manure goes back as long as hogs and chickens have followed cattle around the feedlot. "Many of us have eaten meat and eggs from these animals and did not detect any abnormal flavor," said Vandepopuliere.

"And taste panels have not been able to detect any carryover to meat or eggs."

There's no dietary restriction on feeding DPW to beef cattle. However, sheep rations are to be limited to 15 per cent DPW. Broiler and layer rations are to be limited to 20 and 25 per cent DPW. Broiler and layer rations are to be limited to 20 and 25 per cent, respectively.

He says properly formulated in the diet, average gain of animals fed DPW is comparable to the gains on conventional livestock feeds.

Two Missouri integrated poultry corporations are currently producing the DPW on a commercial basis: Bell Egg Farms, Joplin, and Agri-Foods, Inc., Troy.

Vandepopuliere says using poultry manure as a feedstuff will reduce poultry manure disposal problems considerably. "Not only will the production of DPW reduce the potential pollution problem," says Vandepopuliere, "but it could also provide a profit center in the egg operation."

Some say using DPW as a livestock feed will be worth more than a half billion dollars annually to the poultry industry.

"The consumer benefits directly by these improvements in agriculture," says Vandepopuliere. "This is an example of why we eat so good for such a small per cent of our income."

ASCS disaster program assisted 259 Scott County farmers for 1976

BENTON — A total of 259 Scott County farmers qualified for benefits under the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service's disaster payment program for 1976, according to Kenneth E. Vowels, ASCS county executive director who said most of the payments went to cotton producers whose crops were damaged by summer drought and early fall freezing temperatures.

Cotton production averaged a lowly 210 pounds per acre last year, compared with the county normal of 500 pounds.

Low yields on last summer's wheat crop accounted for the remaining eligible applications.

Under the disaster program, producers with feed grain, wheat or cotton allotments may be eligible for aid to help offset crop losses caused by adverse weather conditions.

A producer may qualify for payments by any one of three ways. One, if he is prevented from planting the crop. Two, if the crop is lost after planting and the area is devoted to another use. And, three, if the producer carries the damaged crop through to harvest and ultimately harvests an abnormally low yield. Generally, the yield must have been reduced by at least 40 per cent.

Payments to local farmers totaled $350,000 for 1976 crop losses. This compares to $85,000 in 1975 and $500,000 in 1974. Soybeans are not included in the disaster program.

Information about this or any other program administered by ASCS may be obtained by visiting the county ASCS office in Benton.

Proposed rules governing movement of livestock will be discussed Feb. 15

JEFFERSON CITY -- Five proposed new rules governing health regulations for movement of livestock and poultry and brucellosis will be discussed at a public hearing called by the Missouri Department of Agriculture for 10 a.m. Feb. 15 at Jefferson City.

The rules changes deal specifically with brucellosis testing in cattle and pseudorabies testing in swine.

Under the proposed rules changes, all breeding cattle entering Missouri from Texas, Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi must originate from herds that have had a negative brucellosis herd test within the past 12 months. In addition, another proposed rule change would require official calfhood vaccination for brucellosis between the age of two and six months.

Split consignments of cattle at livestock markets is prohibited under a third rule change. Test eligible cattle consigned as a unit will be tested as a unit. If the consigner does not want his shipment tested, the animals will be marked as slaughter cattle and will not be comingled with nonslaughter livestock. Those animals must reach slaughter within five days from the date of sale.

For more specific information about the proposed rules, or hearing date, contact the Division of Animal Health, Missouri Department of Agriculture, P. O. Box 630, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101. You may call telephone number 751-3377.

Ag director lists specific goals

JEFFERSON CITY — Newly appointed Director of Agriculture Jack Runyan has announced his specific goals and objectives under which the Department of Agriculture will function for the next four years.

The list includes the establishment of an agricultural advisory board to assist in program development and public relations; continuation of the Governor's Conference on Agriculture, placing special emphasis on innovations in agriculture and export marketing development; maintaining a close working relationship with the House and Senate Agriculture Committees; and expansion of the cross-training of regulatory inspection personnel to improve efficiency and lower operations expenses.

"These four general goals," explained Runyan, "will ultimately lead to a fifth and more important goal: development of a department that is responsive to farmers, agri-businesses and consumers."

Runyan, a 42-year-old native Missourian, comes to the director's job from a general farming and cattle feedlot operation near St. Joseph. He graduated from Kansas State University in 1956 with a bachelor of science in animal husbandry and set up his farming operation near Easton, Mo., that same year.

Runyan holds membership in the Missouri and National Livestock Feeders Association, and was a charter member and first president of the Missouri Cattle Feeders Association (1960). He is also a member of the Missouri Cattlemen's Association, the Missouri Farm Bureau and the Missouri Farmers Association, and served as a past member of the Governor's Advisory Council on Agriculture.

In 1966, Runyan was awarded the Outstanding Young Farmer of the Year Award by the St. Joseph Chamber of Commerce. He was instrumental in working with the Missouri Cattlemen's Association and the Missouri Sheriffs Association in getting the Missouri Brand Law of 1971 through the Missouri Legislature. He also served as a coordinator of the program to merge the Missouri Cattle Feeders Association and the Missouri Cattlemen's Association.

In describing specific goals and objectives, Runyan explained that his chief aim was to make the department's regulatory functions more responsive to the farmers and consumers of the state. Among those goals are an effort to expand the department's export marketing program for Missouri farm products and continuation of the daily market summary, published by the department, with continued expansion of the mailing list as budgeting allows.

In the area of grain inspection and weighing, Runyan would like to maintain the grain inspection and grading service and will maintain a surveillance of the effects of the recently enacted Federal Grain Standards Act of 1976.

"Animal health is an area that needs continued emphasis," Runyan noted, "especially in the brucellosis eradication program and swine rabies testing program.

"Expansion of state aid funding for county and local fairs is another area we are looking at. We believe the Missouri State Fair must be recognized as the showplace of Missouri Agriculture and will be working to achieve this goal in coming months."

Runyan also expressed a desire to see the state fairgrounds used more in the offseason and stated that he feels this will be accomplished as more people become aware of the facilities available at the fairgrounds.

"Agriculture, the state's leading industry, is of prime importance to the overall economy of Missouri," Runyan noted. "Currently, we are evaluating the overall responsibilities of the department and the personnel requirements necessary to effectively serve the agricultural -agri- business sectors and the consumers of this state. We are concerned with maintaining a conservative fiscal line while giving the most efficient service possible to the taxpayers of the state.

"It's been quite a jump from the farm to state government," Runyan concluded, "but I realize the job potential and the responsibilities and I'm looking forward to the challenges of the next four years."

Farming advice sometimes beneficial

Farming advice sometimes brings subtle benefits. A producer can't always pin a dollar value on each separate piece of agricultural advice.

But a producer can expect to make the best decisions for higher profits when he considers all production and marketing factors. One source is crop reports from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Statistical Reporting Service (SRS).

How are crop reports valuable to the individual producer? The successful producer looks at how the crop reports relate to all other factors that may affect crop prices. He checks additional information, including export demand, production prospects in other parts of the world, government programs, etc., published by USDA and other organizations.

The January Prospective Plantings crop estimates the number of acres producers plan to seed to major crops in each significant producing state.

Let's look at how an individual farmer can use the January information. By comparing the prospective plantings with acres actually planted and harvested in previous years, a farmer would get an indication of prospective production and would have time to alter his cropping plans by shifting some or all of his land, for example, from corn to soybeans or other spring grains.

There is also a Spring Prospective Plantings report. Issued in mid-April, this report updates the January report and reflects farmer reactions to the January planting intentions and other factors such as economic conditions and the weather. Planting may be well underway in the southern producing states, but growers in the Corn Belt and other Northern states may still have time to switch to alternative crops.

A crop report released June 30, estimates planted acreages of the upcoming crops, and this helps determine which way crop prices may head after harvest. If the grower has grain on hand from a previous harvest, projections from the June report may influence his decision on whether to sell or hold his grain.

Another type of crop report estimates grain stocks. Issued in January, April, June and October, these indicate the volume of grains stored on farms and off farms in each state. These show the farmer the current national supply and provide additional data that may influence his marketing decisions.

A producer has local ways of staying on top of conditions in his area, but USDA's crop reports enable greater flexibility and freedom through knowing the situation elsewhere in his region and in the rest of the country. The careful producer considers domestic and export demand and supply prospects before adjusting his growing and marketing strategies for the highest possible returns.

Crop reports are free upon request from the Statistical Reporting Service, Room 0005, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

760 attend pesticide training

BLOOMFIELD — In spite of snow and cold weather, 760 people attended seven pesticide certification training meetings throughout Stoddard county last week, according to Tom Brown, area agronomy specialist who conducted the meetings.

The meetings were held for the benefit of farmers and other "private applicators" who use pesticides (chemicals for the control of weeds, insects, diseases, nematodes, rodents, etc.) in the production of agricultural commodities.

Purpose of the meetings was to qualify these people to become certified to use "restricted use" pesticides in compliance with the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act and the Missouri Pesticide Act of 1974.

The federal law provides that pesticides be classified as restricted or general use and that restricted use pesticides must be applied by a person who is certified as competent to use them or under his supervision. It also provides heavy penalties for persons caught violating this law.

The state act provides that agricultural producers in the state be certified to use restricted use pesticides.

Pesticides are classified as restricted use on the basis of danger involved in their use, detrimental affect on the envioronment and other such considerations.

General use pesticides refer to all other pesticides, and agricultural producers can use these as they have in the past. A private applicator is an agricultural producer who uses pesticides in this own private operation--not for sale or pay.

Private applicator training meetings were held at Bloomfield, Dexter, Bernie, Advance, Bell City, Puxico and Richland High School, near Essex.

The program for the three-hour meetings was designed to help agricultural producers to select and use pesticides effectively and safely. Subjects covered included pesticide laws and regulations, identifying common pests, pest control and pesticides, pesticide labels, using pesticides to protect the applicator and the environment, pesticide application equipment and calibrating pesticide equipment.

The pesticide certification program in Missouri is the responsibility of the state commissioner of agriculture. At his request, the University of Missouri Extension Service has assumed the responsibility of conducting the private applicator training meetings.

Persons who attended these meetings will be certified to use restricted use pesticides by the State Department of Agriculture on the basis of their participation in one of these meetings.

Ingredient is found to aid in treating poison from dry weather silage

COLUMBIA -- A lifesaving feed ingredient for cattle and sheep that eat poisonous, high-nitrate feeds was reported this week by scientists at University of Missouri-Columbia.

"We found that yeast culture will save the lives of animals that consume high-nitrate water and feeds like drought-stricken, high-nitrate silage," said Stan Grebing, UMC animal husbandry researcher.

The poisonous silage has been a problem in the Midwest during the last two years because of dry weather, said Grebing, "and we're concerned that we'll see more of the same in the future."

He said that bacteria in the rumen convert the nitrate in the silage to nitrite which is absorbed through the rumen walls into the bloodstream. There it combines with hemoglobin, prohibiting the animal from carrying oxygen in its blood. Result: the animal suffocates and dies.

In UMC tests with lambs, Grebing "orally drenched" them with nitrate. He dissolved sodium and potassium nitrate in water and force-fed the solution. "This was a much higher dose than what the average farmer would see," said Grebing, "but we wanted to really test the yeast culture."

He ran two trials on animals force-fed high nitrate feeds. The yeast culture proved effective in both tests.

There were 20 lambs on the first trial; 16 on the second. Half were fed the yeast culture; half were not. Six of the 10 untreated lambs died in the first trial; six of eight untreated lambs died in the second. Only one treated lamb died in each trial.

"That's a highly significant difference – enough for us to encourage yeast culture treatments for animals fed high-nitrate feeds and water," said Grebing.

Grebing said he isn't sure why the yeast culture works, but he expects that it changes bacterial metabolism in the rumen which breaks down nitrate to nitrite.

Grain marketing short courses are planned in area in February

Grain marketing short courses are planned for Sikeston and Portageville. The course is designed for commercial farmers and farm managers who want to learn more about grain marketing alternatives and how to use the futures market as a profitable grain marketing tool.

Each course will consist of three sessions. At Sikeston, the first and second session will be the afternoon and evening of Feb. 17. The first session will focus on understanding marketing alternatives, assessing the market, interpreting marketing information, marketing objectives and exploring marketing alternatives.

The second session will feature strategies for applying alternatives, how to actually use futures, understanding the basis and the mechanics of the futures market. It will conclude with developing your own marketing strategies.

The third session will meet on Feb. 23. Topics to be discussed are making or losing money in grain marketing, evaluating marketing strategies developed in session II, short-run and long-run marketing problems.

The same program outline will be followed for the short course at the Delta Center. The first and second sessions will be held the afternoon and evening of Feb. 16, and the third session will meet on Feb. 24.

The instructor for the short courses will be Dr. Richard Rudel, extension economist and grain marketing specialist. To enroll in this short course, contact a county University of Missouri Extension Center and ask for a grain marketing short course brochure, or contact Richard F. McIntosh at the extension center in Benton, telephone number 545-3516.

Advance M.F.A. to hold dinner on Feb. 3

ADVANCE — Glenn Jobe, coordinator of fertilizer operations for the Exchange Division of the Missouri Farmers Association, will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Advance MFA Exchange. The dinner and meeting will be held at the elementary school at 6:30 p.m. Feb. 3.

Ken Emerson, manager of the Advance exchange, will make a report to the membership about the year's operations. They will elect advisory board members and MFA delegates.

Present members of the board are David Holland, Charles D. Robins, Don Lanpher, Eldo Eaker, Joe Jenkins, James Bess and Harold Masters.

The delegates are Kenneth Spane, Charles D. Robins, Kenneth McFerron, James L. Bess, Odel Wiseman, Everett Hitt, Larry VanGennip, James Bess, Gary Smothers, Don Wiseman, George Seabaugh, Wayne Voss, David Holland, Joe Jenkins, Tony Jenkins, Ralph Shell, Kenneth Rhodes, Don Lanpher, Weldon Eggiman, David Stilts, Michael Robins, Don Garner, Paul Lanpher and Eldo Eaker.

Jobe was a rural banker before coming to work for the MFA. He has served as fertilizer plant manager, area supervisor, purchasing agent, training supervisor and his present position since coming to work for MFA 15 years ago.

Book is published telling contributions to history, economy by farmers

The U. S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service (ERS) recently published a 102-page book that tells the story of the American farmer's contributions to U. S. history and to the nation's economy today. The book, The American Farmer, traces developments that have made U. S. agriculture the world's most productive.

For example, one pre-1900 photo shows a Midwestern farmer beating grasshoppers away from his corn with a tree branch. The companion photo shows modern aerial spraying. Nebraska sodbusters from the last century, riverboats, many pieces of horse driven machinery and yesterdays' grocery store are pictured.

The book covers more than yesterday. The last chapter tells about "Farming in the Third Century . . . . and Beyond."

The American Farmer is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402. Price: $2.35. Send check or money order. A discount of 25 per cent is allowed on orders for 100 or more copies going to the same address.

Winter wheat acreage drops

Farmers in Missouri planted 1,730,000 acres of winter wheat in the fall of 1976 for harvest in 1977 — 9 per cent less than last year.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's December wheat report, the state's winter wheat production for this year is forecast at 48,440,000 bushels. Last year, Missouri farmers produced 54,450,000 bushels of winter wheat.

The total winter wheat acreage for the nation is 55.8 million acres, 3 per cent less than last year and 1 per cent less than in 1975. Production of the U. S. winter wheat crop for 1977 is forecast at 1,483 million bushels, 8 per cent below the 1976 crop.

Nebraska sodbusters from the last century, riverboats, many pieces of horse driven machinery and yesterdays' grocery store are pictured.

The book covers more than yesterday. The last chapter tells about "Farming in the Third Century . . . . and Beyond."

The American Farmer is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402. Price: $2.35. Send check or money order. A discount of 25 per cent is allowed on orders for 100 or more copies going to the same address.

Winter wheat acreage drops

Farmers in Missouri planted 1,730,000 acres of winter wheat in the fall of 1976 for harvest in 1977 — 9 per cent less than last year.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture's December wheat report, the state's winter wheat production for this year is forecast at 48,440,000 bushels. Last year, Missouri farmers produced 54,450,000 bushels of winter wheat.

The total winter wheat acreage for the nation is 55.8 million acres, 3 per cent less than last year and 1 per cent less than in 1975. Production of the U. S. winter wheat crop for 1977 is forecast at 1,483 million bushels, 8 per cent below the 1976 crop.

Farming advice sometimes beneficial

Farming advice sometimes brings subtle benefits. A producer can't always pin a dollar value on each separate piece of agricultural advice.

But a producer can expect to make the best decisions for higher profits when he considers all production and marketing factors. One source is crop reports from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Statistical Reporting Service (SRS).

How are crop reports valuable to the individual producer? The successful producer looks at how the crop reports relate to all other factors that may affect crop prices. He checks additional information, including export demand, production prospects in other parts of the world, government programs, etc., published by USDA and other organizations.

The January Prospective Plantings crop estimates the number of acres producers plan to seed to major crops in each significant producing state.

Let's look at how an individual farmer can use the January information. By comparing the prospective plantings with acres actually planted and harvested in previous years, a farmer would get an indication of prospective production and would have time to alter his cropping plans by shifting some or all of his land, for example, from corn to soybeans or other spring grains.

There is also a Spring Prospective Plantings report. Issued in mid-April, this report updates the January report and reflects farmer reactions to the January planting intentions and other factors such as economic conditions and the weather. Planting may be well underway in the southern producing states, but growers in the Corn Belt and other Northern states may still have time to switch to alternative crops.

A crop report released June 30, estimates planted acreages of the upcoming crops, and this helps determine which way crop prices may head after harvest. If the grower has grain on hand from a previous harvest, projections from the June report may influence his decision on whether to sell or hold his grain.

Another type of crop report estimates grain stocks. Issued in January, April, June and October, these indicate the volume of grains stored on farms and off farms in each state. These show the farmer the current national supply and provide additional data that may influence his marketing decisions.

A producer has local ways of staying on top of conditions in his area, but USDA's crop reports enable greater flexibility and freedom through knowing the situation elsewhere in his region and in the rest of the country. The careful producer considers domestic and export demand and supply prospects before adjusting his growing and marketing strategies for the highest possible returns.

Crop reports are free upon request from the Statistical Reporting Service, Room 0005, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

760 attend pesticide training

BLOOMFIELD — In spite of snow and cold weather, 760 people attended seven pesticide certification training meetings throughout Stoddard county last week, according to Tom Brown, area agronomy specialist who conducted the meetings.

The meetings were held for the benefit of farmers and other "private applicators" who use pesticides (chemicals for the control of weeds, insects, diseases, nematodes, rodents, etc.) in the production of agricultural commodities.

Purpose of the meetings was to qualify these people to become certified to use "restricted use" pesticides in compliance with the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act and the Missouri Pesticide Act of 1974.

The federal law provides that pesticides be classified as restricted or general use and that restricted use pesticides must be applied by a person who is certified as competent to use them or under his supervision. It also provides heavy penalties for persons caught violating this law.

The state act provides that agricultural producers in the state be certified to use restricted use pesticides.

Pesticides are classified as restricted use on the basis of danger involved in their use, detrimental affect on the envioronment and other such considerations.

General use pesticides refer to all other pesticides, and agricultural producers can use these as they have in the past. A private applicator is an agricultural producer who uses pesticides in this own private operation--not for sale or pay.

Private applicator training meetings were held at Bloomfield, Dexter, Bernie, Advance, Bell City, Puxico and Richland High School, near Essex.

The program for the three-hour meetings was designed to help agricultural producers to select and use pesticides effectively and safely. Subjects covered included pesticide laws and regulations, identifying common pests, pest control and pesticides, pesticide labels, using pesticides to protect the applicator and the environment, pesticide application equipment and calibrating pesticide equipment.

The pesticide certification program in Missouri is the responsibility of the state commissioner of agriculture. At his request, the University of Missouri Extension Service has assumed the responsibility of conducting the private applicator training meetings.

Persons who attended these meetings will be certified to use restricted use pesticides by the State Department of Agriculture on the basis of their participation in one of these meetings.

FLY THIS FLAG SET ON YOUR HOME...
FEBRUARY 12, 1977
LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY
OFFERED AT COST AS A PUBLIC SERVICE

THE SPIRIT OF '76 MUST BE KEPT ALIVE as our great country enters its 3rd Century. We must pull together under our new national administration to solve our many problems — both here and abroad. What better way to show this Spirit of '76 during '77 — and to commemorate the critical events of our War for Freedom during 1777 than by flying Old Glory on every important flag flying Holiday. Two of our country's greatest patriots and heroes — GEORGE WASHINGTON AND ABRAHAM LINCOLN — celebrate birthdays during February . . . Lincoln's on February 12 and Washington's on February 21 (Monday) or February 22 (traditional). SO BREAK OUT THE FLAG. Display it proudly to show everyone that you're behind America all the way — from the "mountains to the prairies, to the oceans white with foam." GOD BLESS AMERICA!!

NEW YORK (AP) — Princess Grace of Monaco will christen the new cruise ship, Cunard Princess, in the spring of 1977, while the vessel is berthed here.

Since 1840 the British Cunard Line has had its 179 passenger ships named by distinguished women from the United Kingdom, including the Royal Family.

This tradition was broken in August 1976 in honor of the U.S. Bicentennial, when Mrs. Janet Armstrong, wife of astronaut Neil Armstrong, named the Cunard Countess.

CPR: The breath of life

Sikeston Public Safety Department officer Rick Kreitzburg performs artificial respiration on the dummy. The sac-like objects on either side of the manikin's chest represent the lungs, which are filling with air.

By ANN O'LEARY

You are at a dinner meeting and the man next to you rises, complaining of pains in his chest. You get up to help him, and as you do, he falls to the floor, unconscious. What do you do?

That all depends. You may look around and shout for someone to call an ambulance, then watch and wait helplessly until it arrives. But if you have received certification for cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), and can perform it on your companion, you may very well save his life.

CPR is artificial respiration and cardiac compression. It is an emergency first aid procedure which can be used to help victims of sudden death, a condition which occurs when both breathing and heartbeat have stopped.

There are many causes of sudden death, such as drowning or choking, but the most common cause of sudden death is heart attack.

Studies show that 50 to 60 per cent of heart attack victims who do not receive life support treatment are dead on arrival at the hospital.

CPR is not a complicated procedure and it requires no mechanical equipment. But it must be taught by a qualified instructor to be done properly.

The CPR classes deal with everything from living wisely to avoid heart attacks to the technical handling of a victim of sudden death. Students in the classes will learn how to examine the victim for signals that pulse and breathing have stopped and will learn to maintain the life supports artificially until more sophisticated help, such as emergency medical technicians and an ambulance, arrives.

Time is of the essence in CPR. The technique is done in a few simple but vital steps and a rhythm must be set and followed. Those taking the class also learn how to provide CPR for infants and small children as well as adults.

A film is shown which re-enacts real life situations of sudden death and shows victims being given CPR. But instructors stress that CPR is never practiced on a real person, unless that person has been anaesthetized by professionals for demonstration purposes. It could be fatal to practice it on a healthy person.

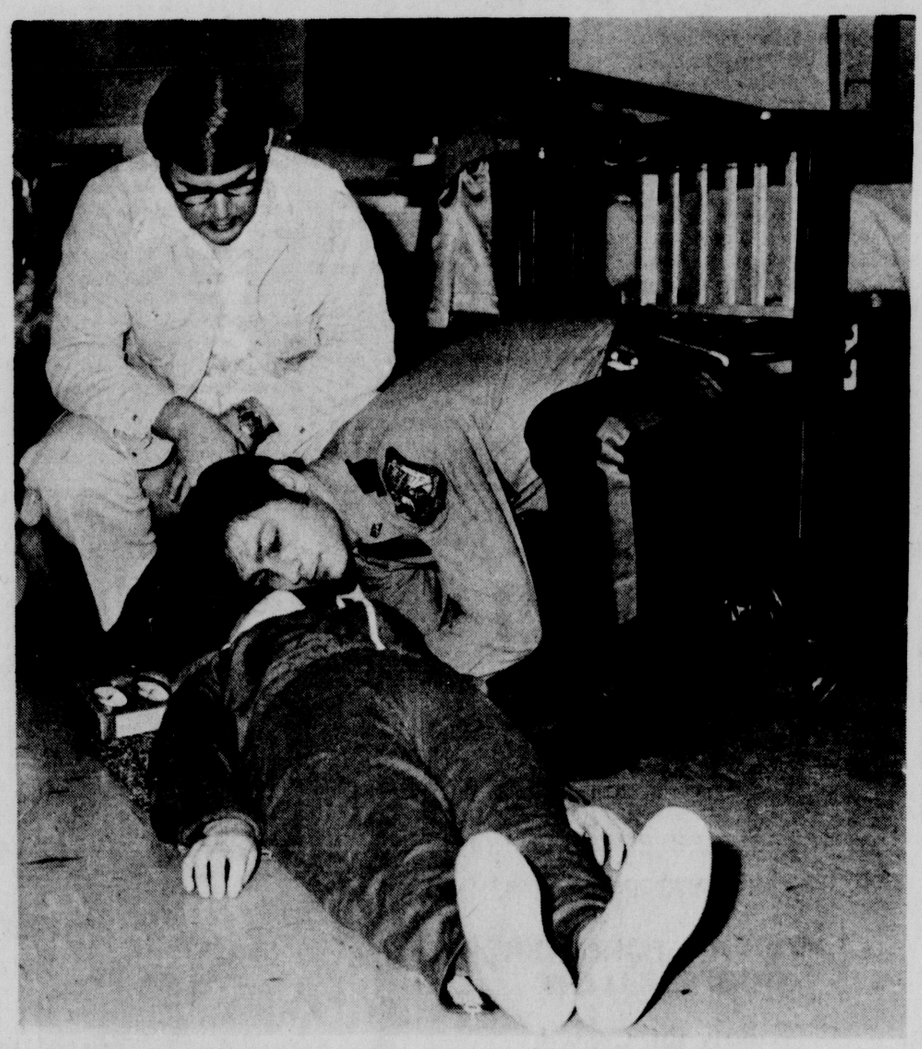
Manikins or dummies are used in the CPR training. The manikin is equipped with devices to monitor the strength of heart compressions given artificially and the adequacy of artificial breathing techniques.

Why bother with learning CPR? Because it saves lives. Not every life, all the time, but a recent study done by physicians at the University of Alabama Medical Center at Birmingham shows that CPR done by bystanders at the scene of a sudden death made a great deal of difference in chances for recovery of the victims.

Two groups of patients were studied. The first group consisted of seven victims who had received CPR from bystanders uniformly within five minutes. A second group of 12 victims had received delayed CPR after five minutes or more before trained rescue squads could intervene.

Six of seven patients in the first group survived; only six of the 12 in the second group pulled through. Fewer of the patients who survived in the first group sustained brain damage. The physicians concluded that "a significant benefit ... could be achieved by training the lay population to initiate early CPR..."

Why bother with learning CPR? Because someday, someone you care about may need it. And it could make all the difference.



Officer Shelby Jones demonstrates the "look, listen and feel" technique to check the victim's breathing. Students watch the manikin's chest to see if it is rising and falling, listen for breath and discover whether they can feel breath on their faces as they lean over the victim's mouth. Bob Kittrell, instructor, watches the technique.

Learning CPR

In Sikeston, CPR classes are available to the public at a small charge through a program sponsored by the American Red Cross and the American Heart Association. The course requires eight hours of training and is usually given in two sessions of four hours each.

The Health Occupations Department, Sikeston Public Schools, has trained most of the employes of Missouri Delta Community Hospital in the technique, according to Mrs. Clara Eisenbach, supervisor of Health Occupations. Adults who are enrolled in the Health Occupations program are also taught CPR. CPR is also offered to seniors at Sikeston High School.

Mrs. Eisenbach stressed the importance of the training for officers of the Department of Public Safety, since they are often called upon to come to the aid of persons in an emergency situation.

"I feel that everybody should avail themselves of the opportunity to learn it," she said.

Because the ability to perform CPR effectively decreases without practice, the certification to perform it must be renewed each year.

If you are interested in learning CPR, call Mrs. E. C. Matthews Jr., Mrs. Clay Matthews, Mrs. William Huff or Bob Kittrell.

And in case of an emergency, call the Department of Public Safety, 471-4711. Speak calmly and describe the situation as accurately as possible, giving clearly the address at which help is needed.

CPR: The breath of life

Sikeston Public Safety Department officer Rick Kreitzburg performs artificial respiration on the dummy. The sac-like objects on either side of the manikin's chest represent the lungs, which are filling with air.

By ANN O'LEARY

You are at a dinner meeting and the man next to you rises, complaining of pains in his chest. You get up to help him, and as you do, he falls to the floor, unconscious. What do you do?

That all depends. You may look around and shout for someone to call an ambulance, then watch and wait helplessly until it arrives. But if you have received certification for cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), and can perform it on your companion, you may very well save his life.

CPR is artificial respiration and cardiac compression. It is an emergency first aid procedure which can be used to help victims of sudden death, a condition which occurs when both breathing and heartbeat have stopped.

There are many causes of sudden death, such as drowning or choking, but the most common cause of sudden death is heart attack.

Studies show that 50 to 60 per cent of heart attack victims who do not receive life support treatment are dead on arrival at the hospital.

CPR is not a complicated procedure and it requires no mechanical equipment. But it must be taught by a qualified instructor to be done properly.

The CPR classes deal with everything from living wisely to avoid heart attacks to the technical handling of a victim of sudden death. Students in the classes will learn how to examine the victim for signals that pulse and breathing have stopped and will learn to maintain the life supports artificially until more sophisticated help, such as emergency medical technicians and an ambulance, arrives.

Time is of the essence in CPR. The technique is done in a few simple but vital steps and a rhythm must be set and followed. Those taking the class also learn how to provide CPR for infants and small children as well as adults.

A film is shown which re-enacts real life situations of sudden death and shows victims being given CPR. But instructors stress that CPR is never practiced on a real person, unless that person has been anaesthetized by professionals for demonstration purposes. It could be fatal to practice it on a healthy person.

Manikins or dummies are used in the CPR training. The manikin is equipped with devices to monitor the strength of heart compressions given artificially and the adequacy of artificial breathing techniques.

Why bother with learning CPR? Because it saves lives. Not every life, all the time, but a recent study done by physicians at the University of Alabama Medical Center at Birmingham shows that CPR done by bystanders at the scene of a sudden death made a great deal of difference in chances for recovery of the victims.

Two groups of patients were studied. The first group consisted of seven victims who had received CPR from bystanders uniformly within five minutes. A second group of 12 victims had received delayed CPR after five minutes or more before trained rescue squads could intervene.

Six of seven patients in the first group survived; only six of the 12 in the second group pulled through. Fewer of the patients who survived in the first group sustained brain damage. The physicians concluded that "a significant benefit ... could be achieved by training the lay population to initiate early CPR..."

Why bother with learning CPR? Because someday, someone you care about may need it. And it could make all the difference.

Officer Shelby Jones demonstrates the "look, listen and feel" technique to check the victim's breathing. Students watch the manikin's chest to see if it is rising and falling, listen for breath and discover whether they can feel breath on their faces as they lean over the victim's mouth. Bob Kittrell, instructor, watches the technique.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Taylor

Jackson-Taylor

LILBOURN— Karen Jackson and Sammy Taylor were wed recently at the First Church of God. The Rev. Bob Medlock of Kennett officiated.

The bride's parents are Mrs. Larry Atchley of Lilbourn and Alton Jackson of New Madrid. The groom is the son of Mrs. Shirely Taylor of Lilbourn and the late J. R. Taylor.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional floor length gown of acetate, nylon, chantilace and taffeta featuring a Victorian sleeve and a Gibson Girl neckline. The gown had an empire waist and the A-line skirt swept to a chapel train encircled with a wide flounce.

The sleeves, neckline and flounce were highlighted by inserted satin ribbons and tiny covered buttons. The bride chose a triple-tiered veil of silk illusion attached to an arrangement of Venice highlighted by rosebuds.

For her bouquet, the bride chose white roses and baby's breath with greenery entwined.

Maid of honor was Kim Mainord of Lilbourn. Bridesmaids were Janet Jackson of Sikeston, Tammy Schaeffer, Debbie Wallace and Kimberly Jackson, sister of the bride, all of Lilbourn.

Serving as best man was Jeff McClarty of Lilbourn. Groomsmen were Tony and Steve Taylor, brothers of the groom, and Jerry Duncan of Lilbourn.

Flower girl was Michelle Warren of Lilbourn. Ringbearer was Jefferey Davis of New Madrid. Candlelighters were Denise Jackson of New Madrid, Carla Jackson, sister of the bride, and LaDonna Coffee of Lilbourn. The groomsmen served as ushers.

A reception at the church followed the ceremony.

Mrs. Taylor is a junior at Lilbourn High School. Taylor, a 1976 graduate of Lilbourn High School, is owner and operator of a Standard service station located at the junction of Highway 61 and Interstate 55 interchange south of New Madrid.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor live at 115 South 6th St., Lilbourn.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Bohannon

Bowles-Bohannon

The East Side Nazarene Church was the setting for the Jan. 8 wedding of Vickie Bowles and Mike Bohannon. Officiating at the wedding ceremony was the Rev. Dale Fish.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McClendon of East Prairie Route One. Mrs. Alice Bohannon of Sikeston is the groom's mother.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory semi-sheer sac woven of polyester and cotton. It featured an empire bodice, a V-neckline accented with lace, and a raised waist trimmed with a band of ginger suede. The long puffed sleeves of the dress were highlighted by wide cuffs and small covered buttons.

The gathered triple-tiered skirt of the dress was accented with lace. On her head, the bride wore an ivory crocheted Juliet cap.

She carried a bouquet of yellow and white miniature mums, baby's breath and greenery.

Matron of honor was Mary Beth Stanberry of Morehouse.

For his best man, the groom chose Kenny Friedman of Sikeston. Ushers and candlelighters were Kenny McClendon of Sikeston, the bride's brother, and Anthony Wallace of East Prairie Route One.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Mrs. Dale Fish and Tammie Greenwood of East Prairie. Miss Greenwood and Mrs. Doris Coffer of Charleston attended the guest book.

The bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hamill of Jackson and Mr. and Mrs. Mack McClendon of Charleston Route Three, attended the wedding. Other out-of-town guests were Willa Dean Gordon of Jackson, the bride's aunt, Herman and Jerry Simpson of Belleville, Ill. and the groom's sister, Bonnie Alshier of Barnhart.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Reception servers were Mrs. Doris Coffer and Mrs. Bill McClendson of Charleston and Mrs. Bill Greenwood of East Prairie Route One.

Mrs. James D. Matthews

CAPE GIRARDEAU --- Deborah Kay Ford of Cape Girardeau became the bride of James Dale Matthews of Sikeston recently at Lynwood Baptist Church. The Rev. Bill Ellis officiated at the wedding ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ford of Cape Girardeau. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Matthews of Sikeston.

The bride appeared in a gown of polyster organza with three-dimensional lace trim. The dress was styled with a high bodice. Lace adorned the front bodice and encircled the shoulder cresting a sheer yoke. A half-cap secured her lace-edged bouffant veil.

A white lace Bible arranged with red carnations, white stephanotis and greenery arranged in a cascade was carried by the former Miss Ford. The Bible was a gift from Riverview.

Mrs. Terry Gaines of Cape Girardeau was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Lea Ann Matthews of Sikeston, the groom's sister, and Gail Masterson of Cape Girardeau. The groom was attended by David Matthews as best man. Groomsmen were Drew Matthews, the groom's cousin, and Mike McReynolds.

Candlelighters were Candi McKinney of Cape Girardeau and Lisa Romine of Nashville, Ark. Ushers were the bride's brothers, David and Randy Ford, of Cape Girardeau.

A reception at the church followed the ceremony.

Mrs. Matthews is a 1975 of Cape Central High School and attended Hannibal-LaGrange Baptist College at Hannibal. She is attending Southwest Baptist College at Bolivar.

Matthews is a 1974 graduate of Sikeston High School. He attended Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, and Southwest Baptist College. He is youth director at Riverview Baptist Church at Osage Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews live at 1008 Mill, Bolivar.

An in-depth visitor survey conducted by the American Museum of Natural History in New York City revealed that 58 per cent of all visitors come from outside the metropolitan area.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Elfrink

Doyle-Elfrink

Paula Jean Doyle became the bride of John A. Elfrink Jan. 8 at the First Christian Church at Sikeston. The Rev. Paul Walker officiated at the wedding, with the Rev. Robert Landewe of St. Henry's Church of Charleston, cousin of the groom, assisting.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. George Martin Doyle, 313 Kramer Driver. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Elfrink of St. Louis.

The bride's fitted princess gown of ivory peau de soie had a pearl embroidered Alencon lace motif. This accented the bodice, forming a high fitted neckline. The long fitted sleeves and chapel train were decorated with the same motif. Self covered buttons and fabric loops closed the back of the gown and the sleeves at the wrist.

An Alencon pearl encrusted fitted Juliet cap held the cathedral length veil of chiffon. The former Miss Doyle carried a wedding Bible overlaid with satin and lace studded with pearls. White roses served as markers in the Bible. The Bible was designed for the bride by her late aunt, Mrs. Raymond Cotner.

Maid of honor was Mrs. Michael Couch of Sikeston, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Mary Lynn Caldwell of Sikeston, Janet Caldwell of Columbia and Donna Wimperly of Port Gibson, Miss.

Best man was Ted Elfrink of St. Louis. Groomsmen were Tom, Neil and Gary Elfrink of St. Louis. All are brothers of the groom.

True fulfillment

By ARTHUR C. FULBRIGHT

Sex finds fulfillment only in relationships of love and deep running responsibility for each other as persons. Premarital sexual intercourse, even between knowledgeable and mature engaged couples, probably cannot be totally positive for the persons involved because they are not yet able to affirm each other in the wider relationships possible in marriage.

Values, such as personal and psychic health, strength of character, and worthy purposes of life, are those which give sexual relationships the depth and more pervasive meaning and joy they deserve. Sexual expressions can find full meaning only in establishment of a new family which itself must be grounded in wider values.

I invite young persons to look carefully at the more basic values held by each other. Premarital sex, while conceivably of value to persons in given situations, rearely has the full value it can have in marriage. Sexual intercourse, a gift of God to man and of deep meaning as a way of expressing the love relationship, can and has become a disvalue for many sincere but misguided couples.

I see religious values as those which couples would do well to explore and appropriate in order for their relationships to find full meaning. The marriage ceremony itself is seen as a moment of public commitment for the couple. The commitment allows the wider values of marriage to be embraced and developed.

Love is essential to sexual expression and a view of God as the reality of love which is lived out and celebrated in the marriage rite and in the relationships of the couple in their marriage in an absolute requirement to happiness.

Headaches can't be blamed on boss

Dear Ann: My boss has had affairs with one or more women ever since I have been his secretary (ten years). He is an important man in the community and has kept his secret very well. His wife suspects nothing because he does his cheating during office hours.

We've never discussed his double life. He has a private phone which I've been instructed never to answer and that's that. My only "involvement" is to tell his colleagues he is at some fakey place when he disappears during office hours. But lately my migraines have been getting worse.

Mr husband says what the boss does is none of my business -- that I'm there to do my work. Period.

I've thought of going to a shrink but I'm afraid he'll tell me to quit my job and I can't afford to. I'm 50 years old and employment isn't all that easy to find. What can you suggest? -- Georgia Fix

Dear G.: If these shenanigans have been going on for ten years, I doubt that your migraines are in any way related. Since they are "getting worse," I suggest you get a complete physical and find out if there is an organic problem. If there is none, perhaps it might be a good idea to do a little shrinking and find out what is REALLY bothering you.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please tell us what could be wrong with three 16-year-old girls whose main topic of conversation for the last year has been what we would do if we got pregnant, how we'd tell our parents, what reaction we would expect from our boyfriends, whether we'd have an abortion, go to a home for unwed mothers, or keep the baby if the guy didn't want to get married.

This letter is no joke. There is no one else we can ask without letting them know we are involved in heavy sex. Please help us. -- Topics A, B, And C In Chillicothe

Dear Ann: I've been dating Brad for 3½ years. He's 24. I'm 22. We are in love.

A year ago my family moved 1500 miles from here. I was living at home and moved with them. A few months later Brad got a good job and asked me to move back so I could be near him. I agreed.

In October, Brad received a promotion and had to move 100 miles away. We see each other twice a month. Brad wants me to give up my job and move to where he is. I said I would but this time I want a ring.

Brad resents the pressure -- says AFTER I move I'll get the ring. I feel I've done my part by moving 1500 miles and it's his turn now. What do you say? -- Camp Follower

Dear Camp: If Brad wants to marry you he'll give you the ring now. If he refuses, take the hint and mother other friends.

Dear Ann: I've been dating Brad for 3½ years. He's 24. I'm 22. We are in love.

A year ago my family moved 1500 miles from here. I was living at home and moved with them. A few months later Brad got a good job and asked me to move back so I could be near him. I agreed.

In October, Brad received a promotion and had to move 100 miles away. We see each other twice a month. Brad wants me to give up my job and move to where he is. I said I would but this time I want a ring.

Brad resents the pressure – says AFTER I move I'll get the ring. I feel I've done my part by moving 1500 miles and it's his turn now. What do you say? – Camp Follower

Dear Camp: If Brad wants to marry you he'll give you the ring now. If he refuses, take the hint and mother other friends.

How to – and how much? Find out with Ann Lander's new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy, send 50 cents in coin along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Open mind

Adoptee may seek biological parent

Dear Open Mind:

Twenty years ago at age 27 I had a baby out of wedlock and gave it up for adoption through a lawyer. I remember the adoptive parents' name and address on the papers I signed. Except for sending a card once, unsigned, I have never tried to contact these people. I am married now, and my husband and three children do not know about this.

A recent article in the paper encourages parents to write to Vital Statistics to update the files with names and addresses, etc. I wonder for the child's state of mind and mine, should I get in touch? If the child is really interested to learn about its biological parents, should not such information be available? Would the Bureau of Vital Statistics accept more information, and would it be addressed to the state where the child was born?

Please print any information you can give me. It will be appreciated.

Mrs. Dee

Dear Mrs. Dee:

I appreciate your sensitivity and concern for the child you relinquished 20 years ago. It is my conviction, based on my long experience in the adoption field, that although some adoptees express a wish to know their biological parents, there are many more who do not have this desire. The publicity about "finding one's identity" has created both negative and positive reactions for adoptees, adoptive and biological parents. It has become a controversial and legal issue.

I would suggest that you talk with a professional counselor who is experienced in adoption. This will help you consider the many facets involved and enable you to make a decision.

Sincerely,
(Miss) Margaret Mugan, ACSW
Director of Adoption Program
Family and Children's Service of Greater St. Louis
St. Louis, Missouri 63103

Dear Mrs. Dee:

Section 193.250 of the current Missouri Statutes requires that when a decree or certificate of decree of adoption is received in this office that the original record be removed from the files and replaced with one reflecting the findings of the court. The original record together with the decree or certificate of decree of adoption is then placed in a sealed file which can be opened only by order of the court that issued the decree.

Therefore, under the law, a person desiring information from the original record should petition the court outlining the reasons for obtraining the information and if the court agrees that the reasons are sound and directs this office to open the files and furnish the contents of such files, this action will be taken upon receipt of the order together with the statutory fee of one dollar for each copy of the original record desired.

Very truly yours,

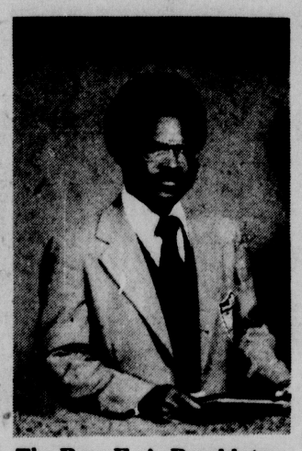
Ask the pastor

Forgiving wife unable to forget the 'other woman'



The Rev. E. A. Pembleton

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Rev. Ephraim Adolphus Pembleton, pastor of the Compress Road Seventh-day Adventist Church, is a counselor who has pastored and counseled in Kansas, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, the West Indies and Alabama. He received his bachelor's degrees in theology and business administration from Oakwood College in Huntsville, Ala. and received his master of divinity degree from Andrews University Theological Seminary in Berrien Springs, Mich. This is the first in a series of columns which will appear each Sunday in the Daily Standard answering questions directed to Rev. Pembleton:)

Dear Pastor Pembleton: My husband became involved with another woman and we started divorce proceedings by mutual agreement. After several months, we both decided that our lives should be continued together because of the kind of love we had for each other. He decided to and succeeded in giving up the strange woman. We stopped the divorce proceedings. We have moved to another city. I have discovered that I am still not so happy, I still continue to think of the other woman. What should I do?-Sarah M.

Dear Mrs. M: While, of course, your husband's unfaithfulness is most unfortunate, you have very much for which to be grateful. When faced with making a decision, your husband chose you and was willing to leave the other woman, his job, and even the city in which you lived in order to set up life with you again. Your husband must really love you to do all this, and this should make you proud and happy. Resolve to be the best kind of wife and mother that you can possibly be. In taking him back and reestablishing your lives together, you surely have implied forgiveness for what he has done. Forgiveness also includes forgetting to the best of your ability. Doing anything else causes you to run the risk of erecting a barrier between you and your husband. Don't let your marriage be ruined by a memory.

Dear Pastor Pembleton: In my geography class the other day, the teacher spoke about a confluence. What is a confluence?-Jerry T.

Dear Jerry: A confluence is the junction of two rivers.

Dear Pastor Pembleton: In English grammar, what is a foot? I know the meaning of a foot in math.-Betty H.

Dear Betty: In English grammar a foot is the art of making verse. A foot is two or more syllables, constituting a portion of a line of verse.

Dear Pastor Pembleton: My parents seem so old-fashioned and constantly try to restrict me in just about everything that I want to do. Most of my friends in high school seem to have the same trouble with their parents, too. Why do parents have to be this way?-Robert A.

Dear Robert: I am glad you have observed that most parents seem to be more or less like your own. Perhaps only when you get to be a parent yourself you will be able to understand what makes fathers and mothers so concerned about their children, and why many times they attempt to "restrict" them. Might it be possible that your parents, having lived longer than you, are alert to some of life's pitfalls which have not occurred to you? Do they restrict you because they enjoy bringing disappointment to you, or because they love you so much that they have your best welfare at heart? Do you know some young people who have flaunted convention and lived "dangerously" who have already come to regret it? Wouldn't it be wiser to accept the counsel and guidance of the two people in all the world who are completely unselfish in their devotion to you, and who have dreamed of great things and a happy life for you since the day they welcomed you into this world? If you have parents who care enough for you to want to guide you, thank God for them. And if besides this they have taught you to love God and His word, resolve never to bring disappointment to them.

Dear Pastor Pembleton: I believe in Jesus, but am always faced with the same temptations that bugged me before I accepted Him. Is there any way to overcome these temptations?-Laura M.

Dear Laura: There is no easy way out. God has promised to give us strength to overcome temptations not to remove them. Jesus faced temptations. The Bible says "He was tested in all things as we are, yet without sin." If Jesus had to face temptations, then why should we expect preferential treatment? Temptations, then, show what people really are. Temptation makes the Christian stronger when he, through the power of the Holy Spirit, overcomes. Jesus said, "Count it all joy when you fall into various temptations; knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience. But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing." (James 1:2-4).

Try pepper cookies

PEPPER COOKIES
From foreign cuisine.
1 cup butter or margarine, softened
1¼ cups sugar
¼ cup molasses
1 egg
2 tablespoons milk
3½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1¾ teaspoons ginger
1 teaspoon cardamom
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

In large bowl of electric mixer cream butter, sugar and molasses. Beat in egg and milk to blend. Stir together the remaining ingredients. At low speed, gradually beat the flour-spice mixture into the creamed mixture until smooth. On a prepared pastry cloth with a prepared stocknet-covered rolling pin, roll out the dough one-half at a time so it is between ⅛ and ¼ inch thick. With a floured 2-inch round cutter, cut out. Place 1 inch apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until golden and set - about 8 minutes. Remove to wire racks to cool. Makes about 4 dozen. (All the spices used should be in the ground form.)

Try pepper cookies

PEPPER COOKIES
From foreign cuisine.
1 cup butter or margarine, softened
1¼ cups sugar
¼ cup molasses
1 egg
2 tablespoons milk
3½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1½ teaspoons ginger
1 teaspoon cardamom
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

In large bowl of electric mixer cream butter, sugar and molasses. Beat in egg and milk to blend. Stir together the remaining ingredients. At low speed, gradually beat the flour-spice mixture into the creamed mixture until smooth. On a prepared pastry cloth with a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out the dough one-half at a time so it is between ⅛ and ¼ inch thick. With a floured 2-inch round cutter, cut out. Place 1 inch apart on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until golden and set -- about 8 minutes. Remove to wire racks to cool. Makes about 4 dozen. (All the spices used should be in the ground form.)

Frontier medicare supplementary BENEFIT POLICY

YOUR HOSPITALIZATION PAYMENTS BY MEDICARE CAN "RUN OUT"

Medicare is a good health care program that goes a long way toward paying for hospital and doctor bills when you are ill. But Medicare is limited. It does not provide for all of the medical service you may need and there are time and money limits on Medicare coverages. When Medicare payments end, who will pay the additional costs of vital treatment? This message tells you about an unusual insurance policy for people aged 65 and over and how it fills many of the gaps in the Medicare program.

HOW FRONTIER MEDICARE SUPPLEMENTARY INSURANCE ADDS COST PROTECTION

Suppose you are hospitalized for a period of 60 days. Medicare pays hospital expenses — except for the first $124.00. (And this figure is subject to change by the federal program.) That amount is billed to you. With Frontier Medicare Supplementary Insurance that charge is taken care of for you. The use of surgical and diagnostic facilities plus physicians costs is only partially covered by Medicare. You are responsible for part of diagnostic fees and a percentage of additional surgical and doctor's costs. With Frontier Supplementary Benefit policy those costs over and above Medicare allowances are paid by your insurance. These are some typical examples of how Frontier Medicare Supplementary Insurance takes over when Medicare stops. Without this kind of protection an extended stay in a hospital or nursing home can soon use up your lifetime savings.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE FOR THIS SUPPLEMENTARY COVERAGE

If you are 65 years of age or over you can be covered by a Frontier Medicare Supplementary Benefit policy, even if you have not previously used your Medicare benefits or established your right to them. Your application must, of course, be approved by the insuring company. Usually there will not be a medical examination required, but you can be asked to have one. Frontier Medicare Supplementary Insurance is not connected with or endorsed by the U.S. government or the Federal Medicare Program. Your supplementary coverage is a private agreement between you and the company.

WHAT MEDICARE DOES NOT PAY FOR

Certain costs often incurred during hospital care are not covered at all by Medicare. Frontier Medicare Supplementary Insurance does pay for these benefits not covered by Medicare: cost allowances for registered nurses, blood transfusions, ambulance service and benefits to persons 65 and over without established entitlement to Medicare benefits. In the event of accidental death of a policy holder while insurance is in force, all premiums are refunded to the policy holder's beneficiary.

FRONTIER MEDICARE SUPPLEMENTARY BENEFIT INSURANCE CAN PAY FOR ITSELF

The cost of this insurance can be as low as $9.50 per month. The annual premium is $114.00 for ages 65-74 and $244.80 for ages 75 and up. Premiums may be paid monthly, quarterly, semi-annually or annually. By examining the chart below you can see quickly how the costs not paid by Medicare will equal the modest premium costs. Your Frontier Medicare Supplementary Benefit policy is guaranteed renewable for life. The premium cannot be increased for you alone, any increase must affect all policies.

This chart shows you what Supplementary Benefit Insurance pays for on basic hospital costs and doctor bills.

FEDERAL MEDICARE PROGRAM	FRONTIER SUPPLEMENTARY BENEFITS
When you are hospitalized: For the first 60 days, Medicare pays for all covered expenses except for the first $124. For the 61st through the 90th day — Medicare pays for all covered services except for $31 a day.	When you are hospitalized: Frontier pays the first $124 which Medicare does not pay. Frontier pays the $31 per day which Medicare does not pay.
Lifetime Reserve Benefit This is like a "bank account" of 60 extra days to draw from if you need them. You can use them if you ever need more than 90 days of hospital care in the same benefit period. For each "lifetime reserve" day used, Medicare pays for all covered expenses, except for $62 per day.	Lifetime Reserve Benefit Frontier pays the $62 per day which Medicare does not pay, for 60 additional days.
Skilled Nursing Facility Benefit Medicare pays for all covered services in a participating skilled nursing facility for the first 20 days and all but $15.50 a day for up to 80 more days in that same benefit period.	Skilled Nursing Facility Benefit Frontier pays the $15.50 per day after 20 days, and for up to 80 more days, which Medicare does not pay.
"B" Medicare Part B pays all but the first $60 of diagnostic, and pays only 80% of other surgical or physicians' expenses.	Medical Insurance Frontier pays benefits equal to 25% of the amount paid by Medicare for physician's charges or surgical expense in hospital.

Medicare benefits outlined above are a brief summary of benefits explained in detail in "Your Medicare Handbook". New amounts effective Jan. 1976.

PLUS, Frontier will automatically increase benefits under this policy as Medicare decreases benefits or raises deductibles.

This is an illustration only. Details, provisions and conditions are in the contract.
10-day policy inspection with premium refund if not satisfied.

Doing without coffee becomes a real grind

BY ERMA BOMBECK

I want to boycott coffee. I really do, but basically I'm weak and cannot endure pain.

Last week, I paid more for three pounds of coffee than I paid for a winter coat the first year I was married, but I can't help myself.

You cannot imagine the pressure I get from the women in the neighborhood. The other morning I practically ran to the coffee klatch at Lois's house.

Just inside the door Lois said, "Want a cup?" She put an empty cup in my hand.

"Where's the coffee?" I asked.

"I never promised you coffee."

"That's not funny, Lois. Do you have any idea what I would give for a cup of coffee? I'd sell my children."

"Wouldn't we all."

"I'd sell my self-respect."

"Braggart."

"Lois! I'd sell my bowling trophy!"

"Will you get hold of yourself? We've got to stand firm together or there is no telling how high the price of coffee will go."

"Look," I said regaining my composure. "I never thought I'd admit this to anyone, but I am older than the rest of you and I lived through the Great Caffein Drought of 1942 during the war."

"I never heard of it," said Carol.

"And I hope you never do," I said. "I saw my mother in the morning without a cup of coffee once and it's the closest to death I ever want to come. She toasted and buttered her hand and put it on my sister's plate. She bumped into a footstool with her head. She felt a draft and it was her eyelashes blinking. When she thought no one was looking, she put her head in the coffee canister and inhaled. My father caught her trying to shave her tongue. It was awful."

"It must have been a terrible thing for a child to see," comforted Carol, "but have courage and it'll all be over soon."

"I know," I whimpered, "but a day without Joe DiMaggio is like a day without sunshine."

You can only be "lousy with courage" for so long. On the way back from school after lunch, I swung the car into a drive-in and yelled, "One cup of coffee please . . . and will you take a personal check?"

PEARL'S MAINDISH NOODLE PUDDING

New version of a favorite dish.

8 ounces wide egg noodles
½ cup butter, softened
Two 3-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
3 large eggs, separated
1 pint sour cream, at room temperature

Cook noodles according to package directions and drain. Meanwhile beat together the butter and cream cheese until blended; add egg yolks and sour cream and beat, scraping bowl and beaters several times, until smooth. Fold in the cooked drained noodles. With a clean beater beat egg whites until stiff; fold in. Turn into a buttered 2-quart oblong glass baking dish (11¾ by 7½ by 1¾ inches) or similar utensil. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until top browns and cracks — 35 to 40 minutes. Serve at once, passing extra sour cream and grated Parmesan cheese as toppings for the pudding. Makes 6 large servings as a main dish.

Potassium sources are numerous

Questions from readers about food and diet are welcomed. Letters should be addressed to: Dr. James W. Nordstrom, Cooperative Extension, Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

Q. I would like to know which foods are high in potassium. I'm getting tired of eating bananas!

A. Potassium is found in good supply in most of the foods we eat, so this mineral is rarely deficient in the diet. However, vomiting and diarrhea that lead to excessive water loss from the body can cause a depletion of potassium. Wasting diseases, burns, severe malnutrition, diabetic acidosis and certain diueretics (water pills) can also result in low levels of potassium in body tissues.

Anyone who has been advised to eat foods high in potassium has a wide assortment to choose from, inspite of the popular notion that bananas are the primary source. In fact, a medium-size patato contains more potassium than a large (10 in.) banana. Milk, either whole or skim, and buttermilk are also good sources. Other foods quite rich in potassium include fish and practically all kinds of meat, dates, dried figs, and dried beans and peas. Also, most fruits and vegetables contain a good supply of this mineral.

Breads and cereals are not very rich in potassium, although whole grain products contain more than foods made from refined grains. Thus, a slice of whole wheat bread has about 68 milligrams, which is nearly three times as much as is found in a slice of enriched white bread.

Q. Why is potassium important in the diet?

A. Potassium is essential for the proper function of nerve impulses. Calcium, sodium and potassium act together so that muscles can work in response to a "message" from the nervous system.

One of the symptons of a lack of potassium is muscle weakness. However, extra amounts of this mineral will not make muscles stronger if an adequate supply is already present. As mentioned above, normal diets should have all the potassium that is needed since so many foods contain abundant amounts of it.

Some autnorities believe that excess sodium in the diet from the large amounts of salt that many consume can increase the need for potassium. In addition, highly processed foods tend to contain smaller quantities of this mineral than less refined foods.

Careless methods of cooking will increase losses of potassium. Since it is soluble in water, about a fourth is lost when foods are cooked in a small amount of water and the cooking water is discarded. Prolonged cooking in large amounts of water will cause more potassium to be lost from foods.

Cooking potatoes in their skins helps to prevent the loss of potassium. About a third of this mineral is leached out in the cooking water if potatoes are peeled before they are cooked, while very little loss occurs when they are boiled with the skins on and peeled after cooking.

It is possible that a person with careless eating habits is not getting adequate amounts of potassium in the diet. A dependence on empty-calorie foods and soft drinks for a large share of one's caloric intake carries the risk of shortage of many vitamins and minerals. Conversely, a balanced diet based on a variety of wholesome foods is good insurance against nutritional deficiency.

Marriage bureaus thrive

SINGAPORE (AP) — Marriage bureaus say business is booming because many Singaporeans with a yen for wedded bliss are too busy to seek out mates.

"Women work in the day and take courses at night. It leaves them almost no time to mix socially. For men who work on shifts, making friends is also difficult," said Mrs. Patsy Tay of the Singapore Marriage Bureau.

There are more than 30 bureaus, and representatives of several said business has almost tripled since 1973. Some boast an 80 per cent success rate.

Miss Annabelle Lee of Honeymoon Marriage Aid said many people who want to wed lack the opportunity of meeting prospective partners.

"The pressure of work forces them to be without friends," Miss Lee said.

Statistics indicate that for every one of the 23,408 persons married in 1975 there was at least one lonely heart registered with a marriage bureau, dating service or other introductory agency. One in every dozen marriages in 1975 was said to have originated with marriage bureau help.

Bureau bills range from $50 (about U.S. $20) to $300 (U.S. $120) from registration to the day the knot is tied. Traditional matchmakers charge as much as $800 (U.S. $320). Andrew Soh said his Asia Marriage Aid charges a membership fee of $39 (U.S. $15.60) for a woman and $50 (U.S. $20) for males because "men earn more than women."

The fee for each introduction is $5 (U.S. $2) and there is no limit to the number of introductions. When wedding bells ring, a final fee of $150 (U.S. $60) is paid, said Soh.

Female clients are generally attractive girls in their late teens or early 20s. The men are often qualified professionals younger than 45.

The bureaus say they represent secretaries, nurses, business executives, doctors, accountants, laborers, teachers, factory hands, engineers and salespersons.

"These people sincerely want to get married. The modern way of life and pressure of work gives them no chance to meet friends. They feel alienated and come to us for help," said the manager of one bureau.

The first meeting usually takes place at the bureau. Subsequent dates are left to the man's initiative. However, several bureaus arrange social gatherings for groups of singles instead of one-to-one introductions.

"Some seem to fall in love with the first match, get engaged within the first month of courtship and are married by their second month of acquaintance."

Other foods quite rich in potassium include fish and practically all kinds of meat, dates, dried figs, and dried beans and peas. Also, most fruits and vegetables contain a good supply of this mineral.

Breads and cereals are not very rich in potassium, although whole grain products contain more than foods made from refined grains. Thus, a slice of whole wheat bread has about 68 milligrams, which is nearly three times as much as is found in a slice of enriched white bread.

Q. Why is potassium important in the diet?

A. Potassium is essential for the proper function of nerve impulses. Calcium, sodium and potassium act together so that muscles can work in response to a "message" from the nervous system.

One of the symptons of a lack of potassiumis muscle weakness. However, extra amounts of this mineral will not make muscles stronger if an adequate supply is already present. As mentioned above, normal diets should have all the potassium that is needed since so many foods contain abundant amounts of it.

Some autnorities believe that excess sodium in the diet from the large amounts of salt that many consume can increase the need for potassium. In addition, highly processed foods tend to contain smaller quantities of this mineral than less refined foods.

Careless methods of cooking will increase losses of potassium. Since it is soluble in water, about a fourth is lost when foods are cooked in a small amount of water and the cooking water is discarded. Prolonged cooking in large amounts of water will cause more potassium to be lost from foods.

Cooking potatoes in their skins helps to prevent the loss of potassium. About a third of this mineral is leached out in the cooking water if potatoes are peeled before they are cooked, while very little loss occurs when they are boiled with the skins on and peeled after cooking.

It is possible that a person with careless eating habits is not getting adequate amounts of potassium in the diet. A dependence on empty-calorie foods and soft drinks for a large share of one's caloric intake carries the risk of shortage of many vitamins and minerals. Conversely, a balanced diet based on a variety of wholesome foods is good insurance against nutritional deficiency.

Marriage bureaus thrive

SINGAPORE (AP) — Marriage bureaus say business is booming because many Singaporean with a yen for wedded bliss are too busy to seek out mates.

"Women work in the day and take courses at night. It leaves them almost no time to mix socially. For men who work on shifts, making friends is also difficult," said Mrs. Patsy Tay of the Singapore Marriage Bureau.

There are more than 30 bureaus, and representatives of several said business has almost tripled since 1973. Some boast an 80 per cent success rate.

Miss Annabelle Lee of Honeymoon Marriage Aid said many people who want to wed lack the opportunity of meeting prospective partners.

"The pressure of work forces them to be without friends," Miss Lee said.

Statistics indicate that for every one of the 23,408 persons married in 1975 there was at least one lonely heart registered with a marriage bureau, dating service or other introductory agency. One in every dozen marriages in 1975 was said to have originated with marriage bureau help.

Bureau bills range from $50 (about U.S. $20) to $300 (U.S. $120) from registration to the day the knot is tied. Traditional matchmakers charge as much as $800 (U.S. $320). Andrew Soh said his Asia Marriage Aid charges a membership fee of $39 (U.S. $15.60) for a woman and $50 (U.S. $20) for males because "men earn more than women."

The fee for each introduction is $5 (U.S. $2) and there is no limit to the number of introductions. When wedding bells ring, a final fee of $150 (U.S. $60) is paid, said Soh.

Female clients are generally attractive girls in their late teens or early 20s. The men are often qualified professionals younger than 45.

The bureaus say they represent secretaries, nurses, business executives, doctors, accountants, laborers, teachers, factory hands, engineers and salespersons.

"These people sincerely want to get married. The modern way of life and pressure of work gives them no chance to meet friends. They feel alienated and come to us for help," said the manager of one bureau.

The first meeting usually takes place at the bureau. Subsequent dates are left to the man's initiative. However, several bureaus arrange social gatherings for groups of singles instead of one-to-one introductions.

"Some seem to fall in love with the first match, get engaged within the first month of courtship and are married by their second month of acquaintance."

CONGRESS URGED TO ENCOURAGE COAL PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON — The spokesman for the U.S. coal industry urged recently that this country "reject the political myths about energy and face the realities of our nation's energy dilemma."

Carl E. Bagge, president of the National Coal Association, said the "tragedy" of the energy crisis of recent years is that the U.S. "is still blessed with vast reserves of coal—the fuel that powered this nation to its pre-eminence in the world and which remains our only truly abundant energy source."

"Coal," he pointed out, "represents more than 80 per cent of all known domestic reserves." Yet imported oil is supplying 20 percent of U.S. current energy needs compared to coal's 19 per cent.

"Ironically, Congress has failed to pass any legislation to expedite coal's production and use," Mr. Bagge said.

Mr. Bagge, writing in a special energy issue of NAM Reports, magazine of the NAM, stated:

"As a nation, we are suffering from clean air overkill. Instead of amending the law to put new restrictions on energy production and use, Congress should consider law changes to allow industry to function and expand—while meeting air quality standards in a realistic time frame and through the least expensive strategies."

USING WHAT WE KNOW

"We, as scientists and citizens of the United States, believe that the Republic is in the most serious situation since World War II....Many of us have worked for a long time on energy problems and therefore we feel the responsibility to speak out. The energy famine that threatens will require many sacrifices on the part of the American people, but these will be reduced if we marshal the huge scientific and technical resources of our country to improve the use of known energy sources."

HE FOCUSED TOO MUCH ON THE BIG PICTURE

Even his harshest critics must agree that Henry Kissinger's place among this country's outstanding secretaries of state is assured.

But even his staunchest admirers must concede that much of Kissinger's reputation rests less on actual accomplishment than on the appearance of it, or perhaps more accurately, the promise of it.

Henry Kissinger was no mere tinker or patcher in the field of international relations. He was a master builder, with an eye on the long-range future. Only history can judge his success in fashioning an enduring structure of world peace, balanced between the world's two giants, the United States and the Soviet Union.

Perhaps we are too close to it to see it in its true perspective, but much of that structure, if not already crumbling, appears to be more facade than substance.

What progress has been made in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (Salt) has been by virtue of concession after concession by the United States.

The Middle East, where Kissinger's skill as a negotiator and go-between shone best, was probably the scene of his greatest triumph. Yet the realistic Israelis are not beating their breasts in contemplation of his imminent retirement.

Even the peace agreement ending the Vietnam war, for which Kissinger shared a Nobel Prize, eventuated in the humiliating retreat by the United States that tens of thousands of American lives had been sacrificed to prevent. And only the common sense of Congress prevented Kissinger from leading us into another Vietnam in Angola.

There is such a thing as concentrating too much on the big, strategic picture and ignoring the messy details—like the little people of the world whose destinies a vigorous secretary of state can so profoundly affect. We learned that from another master builder, John Foster Dulles.

There are too many messy details in Dr. Kissinger's record as secretary of state to permit us an expression of great sorrow at seeing him go.

Our occupational contacts, our church and our affiliations in numerous organizations all have an influence on what we think. Sometimes we are prejudiced, we may not have the right view of the facts. In this troubled age, how can we keep informed on the problems of the day? Do we take opinions from pressure groups?

We know that we want domestic, national, and international policies that will free the world of fear and threats of war; we know that we want economic stability at home. But in this maze of facts and opinions we might take a lesson from that ancient philosopher, Confucius, who emphasized that there is no place for arbitrary opinions and foregone conclusions.

NIXON THE SLOW LEARNER

When former President Richard Nixon signed his resignation and retired to his seaside home in San Clemente, many of us thought he finally had come to realize a president of the United States is not a power unto himself and above the law.

It is clear now he did not realize it at that time. Nor does he understand it even yet. He is obviously a slow learner.

His lack of understanding and his lack of appreciation of the basic tenets of our democratic institutions show clearly in the answers he has given to the questions posed by the Senate Intelligence Committee.

He still says "that there are certain inherently governmental actions which, if undertaken by the soveriegn in protection of....the nation's security, are lawful but which if undertaken by a private person are not..."

"A "sovereign"?

Where in the United States Constitution does it say that the president of this nation shall be regarded by the citizens or by himself as a sovereign?

We fought a revolution to get away from the concept of an all-powerful soverign, not to create our own.

And the Constitution states clearly that all presidents shall take an oath that they will "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States." It does not say that presidents are above or beyond that Constitution and no other president to our knowledge ever has claimed such exemption from it.

The former president's replies bring to mind the arrogant John Ehrlichman's testimony before the Watergate investigating committee in which he stated that the President of the United States has the power "to do anything."

Spare us any more of such arrogance.—Commercial Appeal

AN EX-UNIMPEACHABLE SOURCE

WASHINGTON— The worst thing for anyone to be in Washington right now is an "unimpeachable source" from the Ford Administration. No one will take you to lunch, no one will answer your telephone calls, and your chances of getting invited to a decent cocktail party or dinner are nil.

I am one of the few people in town who will still speak to an "unimpeachable source" from the previous administration. I don't like doing it. But at the same time I don't just drop a guy because he's absolutely useless when it comes to leaking the government's business.

Just the other day I took a call from a fellow who supplied me with some of the best information I ever had during the Nixon and Ford years. I'll call him "Deep Laryngitis."

"I think I have something hot for you," he said hopefully.

"Look, Deep," I told him, "I'm awfully busy."

"Don't hang up on me," he begged. "Everyone's been hanging up on me all week."

"What have you got?"

"William Morris is trying to work out a deal to get Gerry Ford to do the American Express card commercial–where the guy says, 'I know you don't know my name, but I used to be President of the United States.'"

"I'm sorry, Deep," Isaid, trying to be kind, "but it's not a big story."

"Well, how about this? Secretary William Simon got caught trying to smuggle a machine gun under his raincoat out of the Internal Revenue Service Building on the day before he left office."

"It won't fly. No one cares any more. Do you have anything on Billy Carter?" I said.

"No, I don't have anything on Billy Carter. Do you know where Jack Ford spent the last weekend?"

"I don't know and I don't care. You've got to realize we're in a new era. You can't live in th past."

"I was very good to you for eight years," he said. "I gave you the story on the eighteen and one-half minute gap on the tapes. I told you about how the Committee to Re-elect the President laundered its money in Mexico. I tipped you off on Earl Butz' joke on the airplane. Doesn't that count for something?"

"Look, Deep," I said, "as an unimpeachable source you were one of the greatest, and I'll always be grateful for all those calls you made to me at midnight. But it's over for you now. Even Sonny Jurgeson knew when it was time to retire. Why don't you go away somewhere and start a new life?"

"Rockefeller? What do you want to know about Rockefeller. I've got stuff that would make your ears burn."

"It's no good, Deep. I can't quote you as an unimpeachable source any more."

"Why not?"

"Because you're an impeachable source. Do you think it's easy for me? I have to cultivate a whole new team of sources -- guys who talk with Southern accents and don't know a good government leak even when they're standing under it."

He just wouldn't give up. "I went through Henry Kissinger's garbage last night."

I started to lose my patience. "Don't you understand? Kissinger's garbage is not a story now. It's just garbage."

"Look," he said, pleading. "Even if you can't use any of my stuff, would you just be seen with me at the Sans Souci, so it doesn't look as if I'm all washed up?"

"It's out of the question. If I'm seen with you, the Carter people will know about it in minutes. They don't forgive easily. I'll tell you what. Maybe we could meet under the arch at McDonald's in Annapolis. No one knows either of us there, and it will be fun to see you again for old times' sake."

His voice broke. "You're all heart."

He got me choked up. "What are friends for?"

Inside Labor
By Victor Riesel

Strike-less Strike
Global Socialist-Marxist Labor Chiefs' call for World South African Paralysis Fails

UNITED NATIONS—International Socialist labor chiefs have faces redder than their politics these days.

Social Democrats who govern 11 nations and powerful Communist and religious union coalitions, all boasting of some 100 million membrs, called a global boycott of the Republic of South Africa. It was to be a "Week of Protest." It was to paralyze that apartheid nation. It was to begin Jan. 17.

Not a South African ship was to be handled in any harbor. Not a South African plane was to be serviced in any airport. South African mail was to be disrupted. Junked if possible. The working masses were to demonstrate in a score of capitals, hundreds of factories, thousands of stores carrying South African wares.

The strike call failed. The "Week of Protest" was hardly heard above a whimper.

After plastering walls with some 15,000 boycott posters, British labor urged its truckers, seamen, postal workers and other communications employes to slash South African trade.

Very little happened during the week. Some South African mail was shunted aside.

Italian transport union leaders promised not to service any South African planes in any airport. But the aircraft was handled -- taking off and landing virtually on time all week.

The results of this "Week of Protest" mocked the message which one of the sponsoring Socialist organizations, known as the International Confederation of Free Trades Unions, had dispatched to its affiliates.

"You will be pleased to hear that preparations for the above campaign are well under way and there is every indication that action will be truly worldwide," wrote ICFTU General Secretary Otto Kersten on Jan. 4.

In America the only prominent union official to back the boycott was Leonard Woodcock, United Auto Workers outgoing president. He told some newspeople that he would support the global protest fully.

UN officials here who monitored the world front during the "strike" week found mighty little job action anywhere.

Further they report that African nations themselves continued to deal with the Republic of South Africa, handle its freighters, expedite its aircraft and exchange scores of millions of dollars worth of imports and exports.

The South African Airlines continued operating in and out of Abidjan, capital of the Ivory Coast, for example. Regular flights from Johannesburg flew in and out of Lusaka, Zambia. Charters went into the Central African Republic.

Mozambique's east African ports and rails were not cut off from the Republic of South Africa.

There is no universal explanation for the global strike and boycott failure. The "Week of Protest" sponsors are powerful indeed. Their unions are tied, in the free world, to the leaders of many states.

These governments are headed by men put into office by national labor federations which are affiliated with the Brussels-based International Confederation of Free Trades Unions. The AFL-CIO split from it several years ago. Working with the ICFTU is the "believers" World Confederation of Labor. And operating separately is the Prague-based, KGB-controlled, Communist World Federation of Trade Unions. Together, this array of humanity should have been able to cripple any nation.

For example, when, on Oct. 1, the U.S. nuclear-powered cruiser Long Beach pulled into the harbor at Auckland, New Zealand, practically all union labor pulled out. The truck drivers wouldn't service our fighter ship. Left-wing tug workers and waterfront hands and longshoremen simply paralyzed the port. They refused to return until the American cruiser left.

Why then wasn't a strike-call against the Republic of South Africa successful? That's like asking why firemen wear red suspenders. To keep up their trousers, of course.

The answer to those inquiring of specialists here why the "Week of Protest" failed is -- there apparently was little interest among the workers in surrendering a week's pay for the cause.

And this was one of the best prepared "industrial" and commercial actions in years. There have been a series of international protest-coordinating meetings in Burssels since September. Failure resulted from the Communist world's production managers being permitted to duck the strike so desperately needed materials wouldn't be stalled on rails and waterfronts.

As for the non-Communist world, propaganda is propaganda, but few top labor chiefs are really going to ask their people to give up a week's pay.

As for the African nations, those not controlled by the Marxist-Leninist new breed nationalists want peace. Just ask their representatives here -- privately and off the record, of course. They want to work "it all out with Pretoria" at the conference table. They don't want war. Large-scale fighting such as that sponsored by the Soviet-Cuban alliance in Angola results always in Communist control.

So the "Week of Protest" roared in like a lion but squeaked quietly out of history. As one high UN official said the other day: "It's better to have them shoot off mouths than guns."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Secrecy Provides Cover For Hiding Conflicts of Interest

by Jack Anderson
and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- Our most companies would get the juicy hush-hush intelligence agency is satellite contracts.

the National Reconnaissance Office, which operates America's spy satellites. The strict secrecy, however, has provided the NRO's top policymakers with a convenient cover for hiding conflicts of interest.

Our sources estimate that the NRO spends at least $1.5 billion a year. Huge secret contracts are handed out to fortunate, favored companies. Because the spy-in-the-sky technology cannot be revealed for security reasons, the contracting process is hidden from the public.

But we can report a few interesting facts, which have nothing to do with military security:

The NRO draws its top policymakers from the White House, Pentagon and Central Intelligence Agency. One seat on the policy board, for example, is assigned to the undersecretary of the Air Force. In 1973, this sensitive seat went to James Plummer, who came to the Air Force from Lockheed Corporation.

At Lockheed, he had been in charge of developing spy satellites. He had an 18-year record of loyalty to the corporation. Then overnight, he was in a position to help determine which

This was an obvious conflict, which was taken up quietly with Senate Armed Services Chairman John Stennis (D.-Miss.). He is known inside the Senate as "The Whitewasher."

In a letter to Stennis, Plummer pledged that he had agreed "to serve as undersecretary for three and one half years minimum." He added solemnly: "I have no agreement, express or implied, with Lockheed and no understanding respecting re-employment." He later repeated both pledges under oath.

Yet last June, Plummer notified his superiors in the Pentagon that he was quitting, although he had served only two and one half, not three and one half years. Thereafter, he returned to the Lockheed payroll as vice president in charge of the corporation's Missiles and Space Company at Sunnyvale, Calif.

While Plummer was riding the merry-go-round between the Pentagon and Lockheed, the corporation was the nation's top spy satellite contractor.

Another passenger on the merry-go-round was Albert Hall, who started out with Martin Marietta from 1958 to 1963. He moved into the Pentagon for the next two years, then back to Martin Marietta from 1965 to 1971. Finally, he returned to the Pentagon again as assistant defense secretary in charge of intelligence.

This position gives Hall a seat on NRO's policy board, where he, too, has influence over the spy satellite program. Martin Marietta, it turns out, builds booster rockets for spy satellites.

Footnote: A Defense Department spokesman said all military contracts are awarded according to law, but he refused to respond to specific questions about the secret reconnaissance contracts.

Plummer was asked to remain at his post, according to the Pentagon, in the interest of continuity. Safeguards were taken to avoid any conflicts, Pentagon officials said. Both Plummer and Hall denied any conflicts; both insisted they were not involved in contract decisions affecting their former companies.

Plummer said he left the Pentagon early to return to Lockheed for "personal" reasons. Hall, currently an Air Force consultant, acknowledged collecting huge termination payments from Martin Marietta while on the Pentagon payroll, but said this was perfectly proper.

Soviet Martyr: The Soviet prison system is developing another Soviet martyr. His name is Hillel Butman, a Jew, who had heard about an attempt to hijack an Aeroflot airliner but had not been involved in the plot.

He was arrested anyway, his friends tell us, because he was acquainted with the conspirators and was an active Zionist. Before the Soviet secret police had finished with him, he had been sentenced to 10 years in the bleak Soviet penal system.

It takes rare courage in Russia for a prisoner to speak out against his jailers, who have the power to make his life unbearable. But like Alexander Solzhenitsyn before him, Hillel Butman has dared to defy his oppressors.

He has written a devastating, tongue-in-cheek letter to his warden -- the chief of the Perm Soviet labor camp. The unpublished letter reverses their roles, elevating Butman to prison chief and placing the chief in one of Perm's cells.

"Like every healthy Soviet prisoner," Butman explains to his imaginary prisoner, "you have a sick heart, a sick stomach and sick teeth; neurosis, gastritis and paradentesis."

Butman praises the prison harassment, such as the six daily roll calls the prisoners must endure. "Can the prisoners of the Chilean junta expect so much considerate treatment?" he asks sarcastically.

For his insubordination, Butman probably will be shipped to Vladimir prison, the disciplinary camp, where prisoners are kept on a hunger diet, with little heat, no running water and no respite from the 24-hour overhead electric light.

Meanwhile, Butman hasn't seen his wife, Eva, since July, 1973, although Soviet law allows one family visit per year.

We in America, in our Lilliputian practicality and historic good fortune, have evolved a free press to undertake the role that in a tyranny falls to the lonely hero.

This knowledge has helped create the world-wide unrest which we describe as the revolution of rising expectations. The meaning of this revolution is very simple: It means that people in the rest of the world want for themselves the same things that you and I want for our loved ones, for our friends,and for our children. They want their familes to live decent lives and have jobs that give them survival and dignity. They want their children to be taught to read and to write. They want the hungry to be fed and the sick to be treated. They intend to take their place in the great movement of modern society, to share in the benefits of that society.

CONGRESS URGED TO ENCOURAGE COAL PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON — The spokesman for the U.S. coal industry urged recently that this country "reject the political myths about energy and face the realities of our nation's energy dilemma."

Carl E. Bagge, president of the National Coal Association, said the "tragedy" of the energy crisis of recent years is that the U.S. "is still blessed with vast reserves of coal—the fuel that powered this nation to its pre-eminence in the world and which remains our only truly abundant energy source."

"Coal," he pointed out, "represents more than 80 per cent of all known domestic reserves." Yet imported oil is supplying 20 percent of U.S. current energy needs compared to coal's 19 per cent.

"Ironically, Congress has failed to pass any legislation to expedite coal's production and use," Mr. Bagge said.

Mr. Bagge, writing in a special energy issue of NAM Reports, magazine of the NAM, stated:

"As a nation, we are suffering from clean air overkill. Instead of amending the law to put new restrictions on energy production and use, Congress should consider law changes to allow industry to function and expand—while meeting air quality standards in a realistic time frame and through the least expensive strategies."

USING WHAT WE KNOW

"We, as scientists and citizens of the United States, believe that the Republic is in the most serious situation since World War II....Many of us have worked for a long time on energy problems and therefore we feel the responsibility to speak out. The energy famine that threatens will require many sacrifices on the part of the American people, but these will be reduced if we marshal the huge scientific and technical resources of our country to improve the use of known energy sources."

HE FOCUSED TOO MUCH ON THE BIG PICTURE

Even his harshest critics must agree that Henry Kissinger's place among this country's outstanding secretaries of state is assured.

But even his staunchest admirers must concede that much of Kissinger's reputation rests less on actual accomplishment than on the appearance of it, or perhaps more accurately, the promise of it.

Henry Kissinger was no mere tinker or patcher in the field of international relations. He was a master builder, with an eye on the long-range future. Only history can judge his success in fashioning an enduring structure of world peace, balanced between the world's two giants, the United States and the Soviet Union.

Perhaps we are too close to it to see it in its true perspective, but much of that structure, if not already crumbling, appears to be more facade than substance.

What progress has been made in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (Salt) has been by virtue of concession after concession by the United States.

The Middle East, where Kissinger's skill as a negotiator and go-between shone best, was probably the scene of his greatest triumph. Yet the realistic Israelis are not beating their breasts in contemplation of his imminent retirement.

Even the peace agreement ending the Vietnam war, for which Kissinger shared a Nobel Prize, eventuated in the humiliating retreat by the United States that tens of thousands of American lives had been sacrificed to prevent. And only the common sense of Congress prevented Kissinger from leading us into another Vietnam in Angola.

There is such a thing as concentrating too much on the big, strategic picture and ignoring the messy details—like the little people of the world whose destinies a vigorous secretary of state can so profoundly affect. We learned that from another master builder, John Foster Dulles.

There are too many messy details in Dr. Kissinger's record as secretary of state to permit us an expression of great sorrow at seeing him go.

Our opinions are affected by our early home training, our schooling, our associations in the social fabric in which we live. Our occupational contacts, our church and our affiliations in numerous organizations all have an influence on what we think. Sometimes we are prejudiced, we may not have the right view of the facts. In this troubled age, how can we keep informed on the problems of the day? Do we take opinions from pressure groups?

We know that we want domestic, national, and international policies that will free the world of fear and threats of war; we know that we want economic stability at home. But in this maze of facts and opinions we might take a lesson from that ancient philosopher, Confucius, who emphasized that there is no place for arbitrary opinions and foregone conclusions.

Safety in American economy depends on well-informed and thinking citizens. It might be well to analyze your sources of information so that you may best serve your country and your own economic and political welfare.

PRESCRIPTION FOR WHAT AILS YOU

If you are poor—work.

If you are rich—continue to work.

If you are burdened with seemingly unfair responsibilities—work.

If you are happy—keep right on working. Idleness gives room for doubts and fears.

If disappointments come—work.

If sorrow overwhelms you, and loved ones seem not true—work.

When faith falters and reason fails—just work.

When dreams are shattered and hope seems dead—work.

Work as if your life were in peril—it really is.

No matter what ails you—work.

Work will cure both mental and physical afflictions.

People understand that nuclear power has some degree of risk despite its unparaleled safety record. They also recognize that there are risks in whatever man does or does not do. They know that the price of not going nuclear is to accept much higher risks that flow to a nation with an inadequate, undependable and costly energy supply."

NIXON THE SLOW LEARNER

When former President Richard Nixon signed his resignation and retired to his seaside home in San Clemente, many of us thought he finally had come to realize a president of the United States is not a power unto himself and above the law.

It is clear now he did not realize it at that time. Nor does he understand it even yet. He is obviously a slow learner.

His lack of understanding and his lack of appreciation of the basic tenets of our democratic institutions show clearly in the answers he has given to the questions posed by the Senate Intelligence Committee.

He still says "that there are certain inherently governmental actions which, if undertaken by the soveriegn in protection of....the nation's security, are lawful but which if undertaken by a private person are not..."

"A "sovereign"?

Where in the United States Constitution does it say that the president of this nation shall be regarded by the citizens or by himself as a sovereign?

We fought a revolution to get away from the concept of an all-powerful soverign, not to create our own.

And the Constitution states clearly that all presidents shall take an oath that they will "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States." It does not say that presidents are above or beyond that Constitution and no other president to our knowledge ever has claimed such exemption from it.

The former president's replies bring to mind the arrogant John Ehrlichman's testimony before the Watergate investigating committee in which he stated that the President of the United States has the power "to do anything."

Spare us any more of such arrogance.—Commercial Appeal

Strike-less Strike

Global Socialist-Marxist Labor Chiefs' call for World South African Paralysis Fails

UNITED NATIONS—International Socialist labor chiefs have faces redder than their politics these days.

Social Democrats who govern 11 nations and powerful Communist and religious union coalitions, all boasting of some 100 million membrs, called a global boycott of the Republic of South Africa. It was to be a "Week of Protest." It was to paralyze that apartheid nation. It was to begin Jan. 17.

Not a South African ship was to be handled in any harbor. Not a South African plane was to be serviced in any airport. South African mail was to be disrupted. Junked if possible. The working masses were to demonstrate in a score of capitals, hundreds of factories, thousands of stores carrying South African wares.

The strike call failed. The "Week of Protest" was hardly heard above a whimper.

After plastering walls with some 15,000 boycott posters, British labor urged its truckers, seamen, postal workers and other communications employes to slash South African trade.

Very little happened during the week. Some South African mail was shunted aside.

Italian transport union leaders promised not to service any South African planes in any airport. But the aircraft was handled -- taking off and landing virtually on time all week.

The results of this "Week of Protest" mocked the message which one of the sponsoring Socialist organizations, known as the International Confederation of Free Trades Unions, had dispatched to its affiliates.

"You will be pleased to hear that preparations for the above campaign are well under way and there is every indication that action will be truly worldwide," wrote ICFTU General Secretary Otto Kersten on Jan. 4.

In America the only prominent union official to back the boycott was Leonard Woodcock, United Auto Workers outgoing president. He told some newspeople that he would support the global protest fully.

UN officials here who monitored the world front during the "strike" week found mighty little job action anywhere.

Further they report that African nations themselves continued to deal with the Republic of South Africa, handle its freighters, expedite its aircraft and exchange scores of millions of dollars worth of imports and exports.

The South African Airlines continued operating in and out of Abidjan, capital of the Ivory Coast, for example. Regular flights from Johannesburg flew in and out of Lusaka, Zambia. Charters went into the Central African Republic.

Mozambique's east African ports and rails were not cut off from the Republic of South Africa.

There is no universal explanation for the global strike and boycott failure. The "Week of Protest" sponsors are powerful indeed. Their unions are tied, in the free world, to the leaders of many states.

These governments are headed by men put into office by national labor federations which are affiliated with the Brussels-based International Confederation of Free Trades Unions. The AFL-CIO split from it several years ago. Working with the ICFTU is the "believers" World Confederation of Labor. And operating separately is the Prague-based, KGB-controlled, Communist World Federation of Trade Unions. Together, this array of humanity should have been able to cripple any nation.

For example, when, on Oct. 1, the U.S. nuclear-powered cruiser Long Beach pulled into the harbor at Auckland, New Zealand, practically all union labor pulled out. The truck drivers wouldn't service our fighter ship. Left-wing tug workers and waterfront hands and longshoremen simply paralyzed the port. They refused to return until the American cruiser left.

Why then wasn't a strike-call against the Republic of South Africa successful? That's like asking why firemen wear red suspenders. To keep up their trousers, of course.

The answer to those inquiring of specialists here why the "Week of Protest" failed is -- there apparently was little interest among the workers in surrendering a week's pay for the cause.

And this was one of the best prepared "industrial" and commercial actions in years. There have been a series of international protest-coordinating meetings in Burssels since September. Failure resulted from the Communist world's production managers being permitted to duck the strike so desperately needed materials wouldn't be stalled on rails and waterfronts.

As for the non-Communist world, propaganda is propaganda, but few top labor chiefs are really going to ask their people to give up a week's pay.

As for the African nations, those not controlled by the Marxist-Leninist new breed nationalists want peace. Just ask their representatives here -- privately and off the record, of course. They want to work "it all out with Pretoria" at the conference table. They don't want war. Large-scale fighting such as that sponsored by the Soviet-Cuban alliance in Angola results always in Communist control.

So the "Week of Protest" roared in like a lion but squeaked quietly out of history. As one high UN official said the other day: "It's better to have them shoot off mouths than guns."

AN EX-UNIMPEACHABLE SOURCE

WASHINGTON— The worst thing for anyone to be in Washington right now is an "unimpeachable source" from the Ford Administration. No one will take you to lunch, no one will answer your telephone calls, and your chances of getting invited to a decent cocktail party or dinner are nil.

I am one of the few people in town who will still speak to an "unimpeachable source" from the previous administration. I don't like doing it. But at the same time I don't just drop a guy because he's absolutely useless when it comes to leaking the government's business.

Just the other day I took a call from a fellow who supplied me with some of the best information I ever had during the Nixon and Ford years. I'll call him "Deep Laryngitis."

"I think I have something hot for you," he said hopefully.

"Look, Deep," I told him, "I'm awfully busy."

"Don't hang up on me," he begged. "Everyone's been hanging up on me all week."

"What have you got?"

"William Morris is trying to work out a deal to get Gerry Ford to do the American Express card commercial--where the guy says, 'I know you don't know my name, but I used to be President of the United States.'"

"I'm sorry, Deep," Isaid, trying to be kind, "but it's not a big story."

"Well, how about this? Secretary William Simon got caught trying to smuggle a machine gun under his raincoat out of the Internal Revenue Service Building on the day before he left office."

"It won't fly. No one cares any more. Do you have anything on Billy Carter?" I said.

"No, I don't have anything on Billy Carter. Do you know where Jack Ford spent the last weekend?"

"I don't know and I don't care. You've got to realize we're in a new era. You can't live in th past."

"I was very good to you for eight years," he said. "I gave you the story on the eighteen and one-half minute gap on the tapes. I told you about how the Committee to Re-elect the President laundered its money in Mexico. I tipped you off on Earl Butz' joke on the airplane. Doesn't that count for something?"

"Look, Deep," I said, "as an unimpeachable source you were one of the greatest, and I'll always be grateful for all those calls you made to me at midnight. But it's over for you now. Even Sonny Jurgeson knew when it was time to retire. Why don't you go away somewhere and start a new life?"

"Rockefeller? What do you want to know about Rockefeller. I've got stuff that would make your ears burn."

"It's no good, Deep. I can't quote you as an unimpeachable source any more."

"Why not?"

"Because you're an impeachable source. Do you think it's easy for me? I have to cultivate a whole new team of sources -- guys who talk with Southern accents and don't know a good government leak even when they're standing under it."

He just wouldn't give up. "I went through Henry Kissinger's garbage last night."

I started to lose my patience. "Don't you understand? Kissinger's garbage is not a story now. It's just garbage."

"Look," he said, pleading. "Even if you can't use any of my stuff, would you just be seen with me at the Sans Souci, so it doesn't look as if I'm all washed up?"

"It's out of the question. If I'm seen with you, the Carter people will know about it in minutes. They don't forgive easily. I'll tell you what. Maybe we could meet under the arch at McDonald's in Annapolis. No one knows either of us there, and it will be fun to see you again for old times' sake."

His voice broke. "You're all heart."

He got me choked up. "What are friends for?"

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON -- Our most hush-hush intelligence agency is the National Reconnaissance Office, which operates America's spy satellites. The strict secrecy, however, has provided the NRO's top policymakers with a convenient cover for hiding conflicts of interest.

Our sources estimate that the NRO spends at least $1.5 billion a year. Huge secret contracts are handed out to fortunate, favored companies. Because the spy-in-the-sky technology cannot be revealed for security reasons, the contracting process is hidden from the public.

But we can report a few interesting facts, which have nothing to do with military security.

The NRO draws its top policymakers from the White House, Pentagon and Central Intelligence Agency. One seat on the policy board, for example, is assigned to the undersecretary of the Air Force. In 1973, this sensitive seat went to James Plummer, who came to the Air Force from Lockheed Corporation.

At Lockheed, he had been in charge of developing spy satellites. He had an 18-year record of loyalty to the corporation. Then overnight, he was in a position to help determine which companies would get the juicy satellite contracts.

This was an obvious conflict, which was taken up quietly with Senate Armed Services Chairman John Stennis (D.-Miss.). He is known inside the Senate as "The Whitewasher."

In a letter to Stennis, Plummer pledged that he had agreed "to serve as undersecretary for three and one half years minimum." He added solemnly: "I have no agreement, express or implied, with Lockheed and no understanding respecting re-employment." He later repeated both pledges under oath.

Yet last June, Plummer notified his superiors in the Pentagon that he was quitting, although he had served only two and one half, not three and one half years. Thereafter, he returned to the Lockheed payroll as vice president in charge of the corporation's Missiles and Space Company at Sunnyvale, Calif.

While Plummer was riding the merry-go-round between the Pentagon and Lockheed, the corporation was the nation's top spy satellite contractor.

Another passenger on the merry-go-round was Albert Hall, who started out with Martin Marietta from 1958 to 1963. He moved into the Pentagon for the next two years, then back to Martin Marietta from 1965 to 1971. Finally, he returned to the Pentagon again as assistant defense secretary in charge of intelligence.

This position gives Hall a seat on NRO's policy board, where he, too, has influence over the spy satellite program. Martin Marietta, it turns out, builds booster rockets for spy satellites.

Footnote: A Defense Department spokesman said all military contracts are awarded according to law, but he refused to respond to specific questions about the secret reconnaissance contracts.

Plummer was asked to remain at his post, according to the Pentagon, in the interest of continuity. Safeguards were taken to avoid any conflicts, Pentagon officials said. Both Plummer and Hall denied any conflicts; both insisted they were not involved in contract decisions affecting their former companies.

Plummer said he left the Pentagon early to return to Lockheed for "personal" reasons. Hall, currently an Air Force consultant, acknowledged collecting huge termination payments from Martin Marietta while on the Pentagon payroll, but said this was perfectly proper.

Soviet Martyr: The Soviet prison system is developing another Soviet martyr. His name is Hillel Butman, a Jew, who had heard about an attempt to hijack an Aeroflot airliner but had not been involved in the plot.

He was arrested anyway, his friends tell us, because he was acquainted with the conspirators and was an active Zionist. Before the Soviet secret police had finished with him, he had been sentenced to 10 years in the bleak Soviet penal system.

It takes rare courage in Russia for a prisoner to speak out against his jailers, who have the power to make his life unbearable. But like Alexander Solzhenitsyn before him, Hillel Butman has dared to defy his oppressors.

He has written a devastating, tongue-in-cheek letter to his warden -- the chief of the Perm Soviet labor camp. The unpublished letter reverses their roles, elevating Butman to prison chief and placing the chief in one of Perm's cells.

"Like every healthy Soviet prisoner," Butman explains to his imaginary prisoner, "you have a sick heart, a sick stomach and sick teeth; neurosis, gastritis and paradentesis."

Butman praises the prison harassment, such as the six daily roll calls the prisoners must endure. "Can the prisoners of the Chilean junta expect so much considerate treatment?" he asks sarcastically.

For his insubordination, Butman probably will be shipped to Vladimir prison, the disciplinary camp, where prisoners are kept on a hunger diet, with little heat, no running water and no respite from the 24-hour overhead electric light.

Meanwhile, Butman hasn't seen his wife, Eva, since July, 1973, although Soviet law allows one family visit per year.

We in America, in our Lilliputian practicality and historic good fortune, have evolved a free press to undertake the role that in a tyranny falls to the lonely hero.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Jan. 30, the 30th day of 1977. There are 335 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1933, Adolf Hitler became Chancellor of Germany.

On this date:

In 1649, King Charles I of England was beheaded.

In 1835, a would-be assassin fired two shots at President Andrew Jackson at the Capitol in Washington, but missed.

In 1847, the California town of Yerba Buena was renamed San Francisco.

In 1882, Franklin D. Roosevelt was born at Hyde Park, N.Y.

In 1948, the Indian nationalist leader, Mohandas Gandhi, was assassinated in New Delhi.

In 1974, President Richard M. Nixon vowed not to resign and called for a speedy end to all Watergate investigations, saying "one year of Watergate is enough."

Ten years ago: President Nikolai Podgorny of the Soviet Union had a long meeting with Pope Paul VI at the Vatican.

Five years ago: Pakistan withdrew from the British Commonwealth after becoming convinced that Britain, Australia and New Zealand would recognized the breakaway state of Bangladesh.

One year ago: Eighteen leading oil consumer countries agreed in Paris on a long-term program of energy development to become less dependent on foreign oil.

Today's birthdays: Actress Vanessa Redgrave is 40. Writer Barbara Tuchman is 65.

Thought for today: It is not best that we should all think alike. It is difference of opinion that makes horse races. — Mark Twain, American writer, 1835-1910.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Jan. 30, the 30th day of 1977. There are 335 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1933, Adolf Hitler became Chancellor of Germany.

On this date:

In 1649, King Charles I of England was beheaded.

In 1835, a would-be assassin fired two shots at President Andrew Jackson at the Capitol in Washington, but missed.

In 1847, the California town of Yerba Buena was renamed San Francisco.

In 1882, Franklin D. Roosevelt was born at Hyde Park, N.Y.

In 1948, the Indian nationalist leader, Mohandas Gandhi, was assassinated in New Delhi.

In 1974, President Richard M. Nixon vowed not to resign and called for a speedy end to all Watergate investigations, saying "one year of Watergate is enough."

Ten years ago: President Nikolai Podgorny of the Soviet Union had a long meeting with Pope Paul VI at the Vatican.

Five years ago: Pakistan withdrew from the British Commonwealth after becoming convinced that Britain, Australia and New Zealand would recognized the breakaway state of Bangladesh.

One year ago: Eighteen leading oil consumer countries agreed in Paris on a long-term program of energy development to become less dependent on foreign oil.

Today's birthdays: Actress Vanessa Redgrave is 40. Writer Barbara Tuchman is 65.

Thought for today: It is not best that we should all think alike. It is difference of opinion that makes horse races. — Mark Twain, American writer, 1835-1910.

They'll Do It Every Time

Shopping for others

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — Emily Cho, attractive and chic, doesn't dare look at herself in the mirror when she's working.

"I'm always focusing on the client," she says. "If she sees you looking at yourself or at something that isn't for her, you won't get away with it."

And possibly you won't collect the fees Miss Cho, and others like her, charge for buying wardrobes for other women.

But in the seven years Miss Cho has been, as she calls it, a personal stylist, she's had no problem getting her fees: $40 for an initial hour's consultation, followed by $75 for research in boutiques and department stores to find and set aside the clothes she thinks will please the client — "That's approximately four hours per client when I become her" — and, finally, $30 an hour for a shopping spree with the client which lasts an average of five or six hours.

Her 200 clients range in age from "daughters of clients up to grandmothers," and sizes four to 14. "That's why it's really interesting, because I'm not searching for new clothes in the same department day after day."

She works a five-day week, scheduling four shopping sprees in that time, and the women she shops for come from all over: New York, Tennessee, Louisiana, Illinois.

They're lawyers, doctors, "even psychiatrists," even women who work in fashion, and they come for a variety of reasons.

"Sometimes a client will say, 'I've spent a lot of money and I know I can do better,' or 'I don't have time to shop,' or 'I can't stand to.' " But more often Miss Cho hears, "I've given to everyone else, my children, my husband, it's my turn now."

Here, the client continues, handing her a minimum budget of $1,000 for a season's wardrobe, "you go fight the crowds and get the blisters. All I want is something to wear for every occasion."

But that's only part of it. In the best of circumstances, Miss Cho says, "the success story is when a client develops a terrific sense of personal style which means the clothes she wears fit like a second skin. She wears them with ease, they make her feel good and enhance who she is."

There was the doctor's wife who came to her three years ago, a woman "who had to meet and greet a fantastic circle of high society and, at the same time, who was a sculptress in her own right. She rushed me through the whole thing the first time.

"You could see she felt very guilty because an artist is not supposed to worry about her image. And she was torn between who she should be and whether she should get two wardrobes for her two personalities."

She did, that first time, lots of dinner clothes for her hosting duties, and pants and tweed skirts and tunics for art's sake.

"Then last season," Miss Cho continues, "we integrated that into one wardrobe and it's the sculptress who won out. That exactly reflects her. But it wouldn't have been right for me to push her into one image three years ago because I would have cut her husband out." (He, in the interim, learned to accept his wife as an individual and she became more confident.)

Obviously there's psychology involved here, which happens to have been Miss Cho's major at Cornell University. "This job would be impossible without a real empathy for someone else's problem, and they feel it. Otherwise you won't get anything out of them."

During that first consultation, you see, when she's quietly assessing the client and her clothes — either at the client's home or in Miss Cho's New Image business office ("I ask people to bring two outfits to my office") — she's also finding out how they feel about themselves, what their needs are, how their husbands think. "You won't get any of those insights unless they really believe you're out to help," she says.

What helps her when she's out thumbing through the racks is her experience in Bloomingdale's executive trainee program after college, and as a photography stylist at Vogue-Butterick.

"At Vogue-Butterick, I was given the perfect garment and I had to pick the ideal model for the picture and accessorize her in the best way for the garment.

Josephine Tran and her teacher Sister Ann Regan of Academy of the Holy Names in Tampa, Fla., proudly display the essay that won a fourth place award in the "Real Goodness" of America Bicentennial writing contest. The competition was sponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken.

This Freedom Land

A Vietnamese girl who won an essay contest on the "Real Goodness" of America? That's right!

Josephine Tran, a teenager from Vietnam who has lived in the United States for less than a year, was a fourth place winner in the national Bicentennial essay contest sponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken. Out of more than 40,000 entries submitted, Miss Tran was one of the top 13 winners.

"Josephine is a very, very bright girl," commented Sister Ann Regan, Josephine's teacher at Academy of the Holy Names in Tampa, Fla. "I'm certain that in her land, she was top in her class. Here in America, she has problems with the language verbally and I'm sure that it is frustrating for her because in written language, she comes across beautifully." This, of course, is evident in her essay:

"In the evening when the sun is setting behind the slopes of the mountain, doves sweep to their sweet nest. Everytime I see them, I feel something. . . to me, they are the goodness of America. They represent to me a sign of this country's freedom. . . a peaceful land, without war.

"I have experienced life and death. I have breathed the atmosphere of fire and bullets. My homeland lost, I had to leave and look for a new life. I endured all kinds of hardships not enough clothes or food. . . now I'm living in a new country. . . America a land of beauty and peace.

"As I watch these doves settle in their nest, they are free to come and go. I wish I were a dove to fly back to my homeland. But, I can't live there. So I now settle the rest of my life in this freedom land."

"Josephine felt deeply about the contents of her essay. She has so much emotion and that's what came out on paper. It is evident that Josephine misses her homeland," observed Sister Ann. To Josephine, the most difficult part is, "In America it is hard to make friends. I miss my friends in my country."

As fourth place winner, Josephine won a $100 United States Savings Bond and a picnic sponsored by KFC in her honor.

"Tonight Show"

Two of the most acclaimed performers from the world of grand opera – Italy's Luciano Pavarotti and America's Jan Peerce – are scheduled to make separate return guest appearances on NBC-TV's "Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson." Pavarotti will be Carson's guest Friday, Feb. 4, and Peerce, Tuesday, Feb. 8 (10:30 p.m. 12:00 p.m. CST). Operatic performers who have appeared on "The Tonight Show" in recent months include Judith Blegen, Marilyn Horne, William Walker, Robert Merrill, Beverly Sills and Richard Fredericks.

"All In The Family"

Archie is touched twice by tragedy – the first is the news of Stretch Cunningham's death, and the second is that he's been chosen to deliver Stretch's eulogy, on "All in the Family," Saturday, Jan. 29 (8:00 - 8:30 PM, CST) on the CBS Television Network. Paul Bogart directed from a script by Phil Doran, Douglas Arango and Milt Josefsberg.

Archie's fear of speaking in front of a group turns to panic when he finds out just what sort of group it is.

"Code R"

The island's Emergency Services Division is having a heavy day – two ten-year-old boys are floating out to sea on a makeshift raft, someone is making bootleg whiskey, and Fire Chief Rick Wilson's volunteer fire fighters have walked off the job, on "Code R," Friday, Feb. 4 (7:00 - 8:00 PM, CST) on the CBS Television Network. Phil Bondelli directed from a script by James Schmerer.

Chief Lifeguard George Baker goes to rescue the two boys while Police Chief Walt Robinson sets a trap for the bootlegger, and Wilson wonders how his volunteer fire fighters will respond if and when an emergency situation occurs.

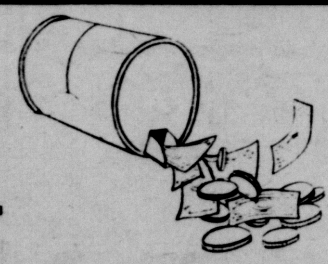
UPON EACH HOME A LITTLE RAIN WILL FALL...



When it rains, we pour.

Somebody said there's always going to be a little "rain" in life. Financial rain is one of the hardest kinds..like when you've got too many bills, or your car breaks down, or you need new furniture, or you want to go on vacation.
But you don't have the money to do any of these things. That's when we can help you with a personal loan. Come see one of our loan officers. You'll find him helpful, friendly and ready to fight financial rain.

Josephine Tran and her teacher Sister Ann Regan of Academy of the Holy Names in Tampa, Fla., proudly display the essay that won a fourth place award in the "Real Goodness" of America Bicentennial writing contest. The competition was sponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken.

This Freedom Land

A Vietnamese girl who won an essay contest on the "Real Goodness" of America? That's right!

Josephine Tran, a teenager from Vietnam who has lived in the United States for less than a year, was a fourth place winner in the national Bicentennial essay contest sponsored by Kentucky Fried Chicken. Out of more than 40,000 entries submitted, Miss Tran was one of the top 13 winners.

"Josephine is a very, very bright girl," commented Sister Ann Regan, Josephine's teacher at Academy of the Holy Names in Tampa, Fla. "I'm certain that in her land, she was top in her class. Here in America, she has problems with the language verbally and I'm sure that it is frustrating for her because in written language, she comes across beautifully." This, of course, is evident in her essay:

"In the evening when the sun is setting behind the slopes of the mountain, doves sweep to their sweet nest. Everytime I see them, I feel something. . . to me, they are the goodness of America. They represent to me a sign of this country's freedom. . . a peaceful land, without war.

"I have experienced life and death. I have breathed the atmosphere of fire and bullets. My homeland lost, I had to leave and look for a new life. I endured all kinds of hardships not enough clothes or food. . . now I'm living in a new country. . . America a land of beauty and peace.

"As I watch these doves settle in their nest, they are free to come and go. I wish I were a dove to fly back to my homeland. But, I can't live there. So I now settle the rest of my life in this freedom land."

"Josephine felt deeply about the contents of her essay. She has so much emotion and that's what came out on paper. It is evident that Josephine misses her homeland," observed Sister Ann. To Josephine, the most difficult part is, "In America it is hard to make friends. I miss my friends in my country."

As fourth place winner, Josephine won a $400 United States Savings Bond and a picnic sponsored by KFC in her honor.

"Tonight Show"

Two of the most acclaimed performers from the world of grand opera – Italy's Luciano Pavarotti and America's Jan Peerce – are scheduled to make separate return guest appearances on NBC-TV's "Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson." Pavarotti will be Carson's guest Friday, Feb. 4, and Peerce, Tuesday, Feb. 8 (10:30 p.m. 12:00 p.m. CST). Operatic performers who have appeared on "The Tonight Show" in recent months include Judith Blegen, Marilyn Horne, William Walker, Robert Merrill, Beverly Sills and Richard Fredericks.

"All In The Family"

Archie is touched twice by tragedy – the first is the news of Stretch Cunningham's death, and the second is that he's been chosen to deliver Stretch's eulogy, on "All in the Family," Saturday, Jan. 29 (8:00 - 8:30 PM, CST) on the CBS Television Network. Paul Bogart directed from a script by Phil Doran, Douglas Arango and Milt Josefsberg.

Archie's fear of speaking in front of a group turns to panic when he finds out just what sort of group it is.

"Code R"

The island's Emergency Services Division is having a heavy day – two ten-year-old boys are floating out to sea on a makeshift raft, someone is making bootleg whiskey, and Fire Chief Rick Wilson's volunteer fire fighters have walked off the job, on "Code R," Friday, Feb. 4 (7:00 - 8:00 PM, CST) on the CBS Television Network. Phil Bondelli directed from a script by James Schmerer.

Chief Lifeguard George Baker goes to rescue the two boys while Police Chief Walt Robinson sets a trap for the bootlegger, and Wilson wonders how his volunteer fire fighters will respond if and when an emergency situation occurs.

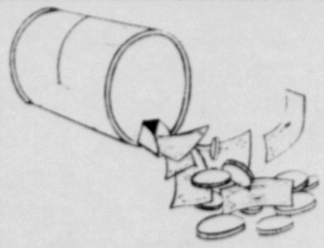
UPON EACH HOME A LITTLE RAIN WILL FALL...



When it rains, we pour.

Somebody said there's always going to be a little "rain" in life. Financial rain is one of the hardest kinds..like when you've got too many bills, or your car breaks down, or you need new furniture, or you want to go on vacation.
But you don't have the money to do any of these things. That's when we can help you with a personal loan. Come see one of our loan officers. You'll find him helpful, friendly and ready to fight financial rain.

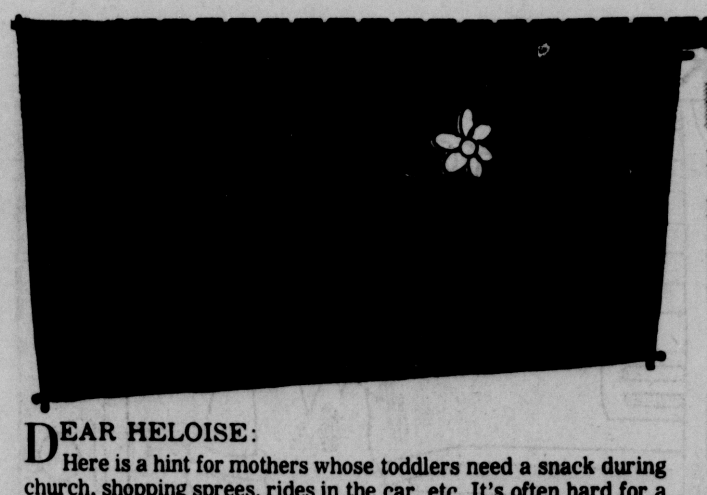
HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS



DEAR HELOISE:

Here is a hint for mothers whose toddlers need a snack during church, shopping sprees, rides in the car, etc. It's often hard for a child to handle a container with dry cereal in it during a quiet worship service or in a shopping cart.

When my daughter reached this age, I remembered what my mother (a minister's wife) did for my younger brother and sister. She would string cereal shaped like tiny doughnuts on a doubled thread with an ordinary sewing needle. Then she would tie it in a circle large enough to fit over the child's head. A cereal necklace that the child could wear and eat at the same time!

I've tried it and it works great. So many people have told me I should share it with your readers. Hope it helps some other mothers.

Mrs. Connie Oswalt

I'm sure it will, Connie. I might add one thing, however. Check the strength of the thread you are using by tying the double strand in a circle about as large as you plan to use. Try to break it yourself and if it pops easily, add another couple of strands.

Sure wouldn't want that "necklace" to snap (especially during a "quiet worship service"). You and I both might be ostracized!

Heloise

ON PINS AND HANGERS

DEAR HELOISE:

This hint may be old hat to a lot of people.

Since scarfs are so much in style, I'm sure we all have accumulated a lot of them. If kept in the scarf drawer, mine always needed to be pressed. I hit on the idea of pinning them to the padded satin coat hangers. They can be pinned in two rows each on BOTH sides of the hanger where they are easily accessible.

The big-headed straight pins work nicely and the scarfs are colorful and pretty hanging in the closet.

Ruth Gaines Davis

THE BENEFIT IS FELT

DEAR HELOISE:

My children are always borrowing the wrenches and screwdrivers from my tool box for their bike repairs.

To keep them from rummaging through my tool box and making a mess, I purchased two felt silverware holders, the type with the long stitched compartments. Into one I put the screwdrivers and into the other the wrenches.

They are easily folded up and tied neatly and now just two items are taken out.

Delores Pugliese

LETTER OF LOVE

DEAR HELOISE:

Your personal touch turned up the thermostat of my heart and I'm aglow all over.

"Bobbs" Condon

COVERING NEW GROUND

DEAR HELOISE:

One day while making hamburgers I decided to try something new.

After mixing in an egg and bread crumbs I poured in some barbecue sauce. The hamburgers were delicious. The meat had a different flavor and was not dry.

Now I do this when I make meatloaf too.

Marie Thompson

CAN YOU TOP THIS?

DEAR HELOISE:

Tired of throwing away shower curtains because the hook tops have all ripped from pushing the curtain back and forth?

Well, save yourself some money and repair that still usable curtain. Simply cut the entire top from the curtain and sew a new piece of material across, doubled of course. Then make 12 buttonholes, and there you have it!

If a plain curtain, use a print to match the decor or if flowered, use a plain color.

Mrs. Nick Monda

TAKES THE CAKE

DEAR HELOISE:

My mom had a real good idea for my birthday party.

Just take the icing in the tube and write the guests' names on their plates and let it harden.

Each one knows where his or her place is and they can eat their names too!

D. Barber

1-30

MINI-TOOLS

DEAR HELOISE:

I follow your hints about using a child-sized broom and duster around the house for hard-to-reach places, but now I've added children's garden tools.

The rake and hoe are perfect for retrieving shoes from under beds and small toys from under buffets, dressers, etc. The shovel is a great mini-dustpan.

With two small children, there's a lot of picking up to do, and these tools sure help the process.

Virginia Lynch

NOT FOR PRYING

DEAR HELOISE:

You can open a sealed envelope, if you have forgotten an enclosure, by putting a dampened cloth over the flap and putting heat, such as a hot iron, over it briefly.

Judy Coleman

SPICED WAYS

DEAR HELOISE:

When we were having guests for dinner, my candles looked too unattractive to use!

Always remember when putting candles away to place them in a box before putting them into a drawer. This prevents them from getting marred and dull-looking.

If you don't have a box that the candles will fit into, use the cardboard tubes from paper towels, aluminum foil, etc.

Heloise

AT THE TRADING POST

DEAR HELOISE:

We keep an empty facial-tissue box in the kitchen drawer to hold all our acquired trading stamps.

They are kept there until the box is full and then we paste the stamps in the books.

Joe and Billy McIlroy

LET'S SPROUT

DEAR HELOISE:

If you like a little cabbage flavor in your homemade vegetable soup and do not want to buy a head of cabbage each time you make soup, buy frozen Brussels sprouts and add a few to the soup.

Keep the remainder in the freezer for future use.

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Fish is missing. 2. Muffler is different. 3. Pole is different. 4. Coat is different. 5. Ice chisel is repositioned. 6. Foot is repositioned.

Hal Kaufman's JUNIOR WHIRL®

BULLETIN BOARD

RACK BRAINS! Pocket billiards or pool is played with 15 balls numbered from 1 through 15. At the beginning of a game, the 15 balls are "racked" in a triangular frame.

Just for fun, let us assume that the 7, 14 and 15 balls are placed in the center of the rack, as seen above. Now, for a test of wits: How can the remaining 12 balls be placed in the rack so that each side of the outer triangle totals 36?

Clue: One corner ball is an 8 (corner balls count in two directions, natch).

One way: Clockwise from top left: 8, 12, 9, 1, 6, 13, 3, 4, 10, 2, 5, 11.

● DOG DAZE! Which dog shreds cheese? The Grate Dane. Which dog tills the soil? The Farmeranian. Which dog is part flower? The Phlox Terrier.

● Kick over Traces! Challenge: Find five six-letter words by rearranging letters in the word TRACES. Time limit: two minutes.

Crates, caters, recast, carets, reacts are five.

● Granny Crock is in her 80s. She's 27 years older than her only son whose age with numerals reversed is the same as hers. How old is Granny?

She's eighty-five

PAPER CHASE! Has our groundhog pal above caught up with his shadow? Connect dots 1, 2, 3, etc., to find out.

JOY RIDERS! Add colors for a surprise picture: 1—Red. 2—Lt. blue. 3—Yellow. 4—Lt. brown. 5—Flesh. 6—Dk. purple. 7—Orange. 8—Gray. 9—Dk. brown. 10—Lt. purple. 11—Black.

SPELLBINDER!

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

. . . . . .

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 50 points.

Possible anagram: Bend, fire.

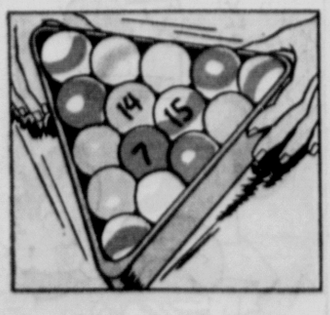
BULLETIN BOARD



RACK BRAINS! Pocket billiards or pool is played with 15 balls numbered from 1 through 15. At the beginning of a game, the 15 balls are "racked" in a triangular frame.

Just for fun, let us assume that the 7, 14 and 15 balls are placed in the center of the rack, as seen above. Now, for a test of wits: How can the remaining 12 balls be placed in the rack so that each side of the outer triangle totals 36?

Clue: One corner ball is an 8 (corner balls count in two directions, natch).

One way: Clockwise from top left: 8, 12, 9, 1, 6, 13, 3, 4, 10, 2, 5, 11.

- DOG DAZE! Which dog shreds cheese? The Grate Dane. Which dog tills the soil? The Farmeranian. Which dog is part flower? The Phlox Terrier.
- Kick over Traces! Challenge: Find five six-letter words by rearranging letters in the word TRACES. Time limit: two minutes.

  Crates, caters, recast, carets, reacts are five.
- Granny Crock is in her 80s. She's 27 years older than her only son whose age with numerals reversed is the same as hers. How old is Granny?

  She's eighty-five
- Twisters! Say fast: How much ground would a groundhog grind if a groundhog could grind ground? Mamie Meany never met a neater meter reader.

PAPER CHASE! Has our groundhog pal above caught up with his shadow? Connect dots 1, 2, 3, etc., to find out.
